CYCLOPEDIA

PAINTERS AND PAINTINGS.

EAKINS, THOMAS, born in Philadelphia, Pa., in 1844. Portrait and genre painter; pupil of Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, of J. L. Gérôme, Léon Bonnat, and of A. A. Dumont, sculptor. At present professor of painting at Pennsylvania Academy. Studio in Philadelphia. Works in oil: William Rush carving his Allegorical Representation of the Schuylkill; Surgical Clinic of Professor Gross in Jefferson College, Jefferson Collection; Portraits of Dr. Brinton and Professor Rand; Chess-Players (1878), Metropolitan Museum, New York; Professional at Rehearsal, T. B. Clarke, New York; Pair-Oared Shell (1879); May Morning in the Park (1881), Fairman Rogers, Philadelphia; Mending the Net, Shad Fishing at Gloucester—on the Delaware (1882); Singing Girl (1883). Water-colours: Whistling for Plover, Base-Ball (1876).

EARL, RALPH, born at Lebanon, Conn., about 1751, died at Bolton, Conn., in 1801. History and portrait painter, self-taught. Was at first an itinerant portrait painter; went with the Governor's Guard to Lexington and Cambridge, and painted from sketches made at the time four scenes of the battle of Lexington, engraved by Amos Doolittle, which are believed to be the first historical compositions by an American artist. Went to London after the war and studied under Benjamin West, but returned to America in 1786. Among his works are a large picture of the Falls of Niagara, and portraits of George III., Roger Sherman, Judge Ellsworth, Colonel George Willis, Dr. Dwight of Yale College, and Governor Strong. His son, Augustus Earle, history and marine painter, fellow-student at Royal Academy in 1813 with C. R. Leslie and S. F. B. Morse, was known from his roving disposition as the "wandering artist." James Earle, portrait painter (died in Charleston, S. C., in 1796), was perhaps a brother of Ralph.—Bryan (Graves), 451; French, Art in Connecticut (Boston, 1879), 32.

EASTLAKE, Sir CHARLES LOCK, born at Plymouth, Eng., Nov. 17, 1793, died in Pisa, Italy, Dec. 24, 1865. History painter, pupil in London of Haydon and of Royal Academy; exhibited at British Institute, in 1813, Christ raising the Daughter of the Ruler of the Synagogue. Went to Paris in following year to copy pictures in Louvre, but the escape of Napoleon from Elba obliged him to return to Plymouth, where he saw the deposed Emperor on the Bellerophon, and from memory and some hasty sketches painted him surrounded by his officers, a picture, now belonging to Lord Lansdowne, which brought him into notice. In 1817 he went to Italy, and in 1819 to Greece, returning to Rome, where, and at Ferrara chiefly, he spent in all fourteen years. He sent, in 1823, to the Royal Academy three views of Rome, but his first work which won special praise was The Spartan Isidas (1827), now the property of the Duke of Devonshire. He became an A.R.A. in 1828 and R.A. in 1830; was appointed, in 1841, secretary to the royal commission for decorating the Houses of Parliament, in 1842 librarian of the Royal Academy, in 1843 keeper of the National Gallery, and in 1850 was elected president of the Royal Academy and knighted. From that time until his death he was chiefly engaged in selecting pictures to be bought by the government for the National Gallery. He published "Materials for a History of Painting" (1847), and "The Schools of Painting in Italy," translated from Kugler (1851); and edited "Kugler's Handbook of Painting" (1855). Works: Christ lamenting over Jerusalem (replica; original, 1841), Haidee (1831), Escape of the Carrara Family (replica, 1850; original, 1834), Lord Byron's Dream (1827), National Gallery, London; Una delivering the Red Cross Knight (1830); Greek Fugitives (1833); Arab selling Captives (1837); Gaston de Foix before Battle of Ravenna (1838); Christ blessing Little Children (1840); Hagar and Ishmael (1843).—Redgrave; Art Journal (1855), 277; Cat. Nat. Gal.; Life by Lady Eastlake (London); Quarterly Rev., April, 1870; Sandby, ii. 280; Kunst-Chronik, i. 3; Zeitschr. f. b. K., iv. 93.

EATON, CHARLES HARRY, born at Akron, O., Dec. 13, 1850. Landscape painter, self-taught. Studio in New York. Works: At Elyria—Ohio (1881); Near Avon—New York, Apples (1882); Autumn Study of Beech Trees (1883); Marsh Lands, Meadow

Brook, Morning at Lakeside (1884); Indian Summer, Autumn Days (1885).

EATON, JOSEPH O., born in 1829, died at Yonkers, N. Y., in 1875. Genre and portrait painter. An Associate of the National Academy in New York, where his professional life was spent; visited Europe in 1873. Ideal works: Landscape—View on the Hudson (1868); Moral Instruction (1869); Last Chapter, Dawning Maternity (1871); Greek Water-Carrier (1872); Lady Godiva (1874); Tender Thoughts, John Hoey, New York. Portraits: R. S. Gifford (1869); E. J. Kuntze (belonging to National Academy, New York); Rev. G. H. Hepworth (1870). The painter's own portrait (belonging to the National Academy), and Looking through the Kaleidoscope, were exhibited after his death. Water-colours: Vision of the Cross (1869); Little Nell and her Grandfather (1871); Two Pets (1874).

EATON, WYATT, born at Philipsburg, Canada, May 6, 1849. Portrait and figure painter; pupil of the National Academy and of J. O. Eaton in New York, later of Gérôme in Paris. In 1872 he studied and sketched in England and France. Studio in New York. Works: Farmer's Boy (1870); Reverie (1875); Harvesters at Rest (1876); Boy Whittling, G. A. Drummond, Baltimore; Portrait of William Cullen Bryant (1878); do. of Miss Ella M. M. (1879); Grandmother and Child (1880); Portrait (Salon, 1884).—Sheldon, 169; Mag. of Art (1884), 496.

EBEL, FRITZ, born at Lauterbach, Hesse, in 1835. Landscape painter; was a chemist, but took up painting in Darmstadt in 1856, and in Düsseldorf under Schirmer in 1857-61. Studied nature in Germany, Italy, and France, and settled in Düsseldorf. Works: Mountainous Country (1862); View in Rhön Mountains; Hessian Summer Landscape (1864); View in Southern Tyrol; Ilse Valley in the Hartz; Autumn Landscape in Teutoburg Forest; Uklei Lake in Holstein (1880).—Müller, 151.

EBERHARD

painter and sculptor, first instructed by his father, then studied in Munich and Rome. Works: Altarpiece with Historic Development, Propagation, and Triumph of Christianity; Procession of Corpus Christi; portraits of Dante, Goethe, Cornelius, and Plattner.—Regnet, i. 87.

EBERHARD THE WEEPER (Larmoyeur), Ary Scheffer, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 5 ft. × 5 ft. 4 in.; signed. Ulrich, son of Count Eberhard, of Würtemberg, on recovering from wounds received in the battle of Reutlingen, which he had lost, sought his father at Stuttgart. The old knight received him coldly, and when his son took his seat opposite him at table, seized a knife and cut the table-cloth between them. Ulrich, stung by the insult, made extraordinary efforts in the next battle, Döflingen, which he won at the cost of his life. The picture represents the father alone in his tent, weeping over his son's dead body, as described in Schiller's ballad. Salon, 1834; Collection of Louis Philippe; from Luxembourg. Replicas in Corcoran Gallery, Washington, Boston Art Museum, and Rotterdam Museum. A second picture (Salon, 1851), called Le Coupeur de Nappe, represents the father cutting the table-cloth.—Art Treasures of America, i. 5.

EBERLE, ADAM, born at Aix-la-Chapelle in 1805, died in Rome in 1830. History painter, student of the Academy at Düsseldorf. After Cornelius was appointed director, Eberle became his devoted pupil, painted two remarkable pictures under his influence, and accompanied him to Munich in 1825, where he painted a large fresco on the ceiling of the Odeon, and another in the arcade of the Hofgarten. In 1829 he went to Rome. Works: Entombment, St. Helena and Angels; Apollo with the Shepherds (fresco, Odeon Hall, Munich); Investiture of Maximilian I. of Bavaria (fresco, Arcade of the Hofgarten).—Allgem. d. Biogr., v. 573; Brockhaus, v. 708; Förster, Denkmale, iii. 29; do. Gesch., v. 13, 67, 78.

EBERLE, ADOLF, born in Munich, Jan. 11, 1843. Genre painter, son of Robert E., pupil of Munich Academy, and from 1856 of Piloty. Painted his first picture in 1861. Medal at Vienna, 1868. Works: Seizure of the Last Cow (1861); Fruitless Effort; Outpost Scene; Camp School from Thirty Years' War; Quartering of Pandours; Love Declaration; Unsuccessful Music Rehearsal; Wedding Day; Subhastation (1869), Kunsthalle, Hamburg; After Baptism; Zither Lesson; Old Innsbruck Woman with Granddaughter; Bridal Dance; Saying Grace; The First Deer (1879); Visit to Bello Family (1883); Hunter's Lodge (1884).—*Zeitschr. f. b. EBERT, KARL, born in Stuttgart, Oct. 13, 1821, died in Munich, March 1, 1885. Landscape painter, pupil of Stuttgart Art-School under Steinkopf. Settled at Munich in 1846. Member of Amsterdam Academy. Works: Starnberg Lake, Suabian Alp near the Hohenstaufen, Bathing Children in the Woods (1867), Stuttgart Gallery; Landscape near Rotterdam; Storm in the Woods; The Seasons; Beech Wood with Sheep (1871); Evening Landscape (1873); Wood of Tall Trees, Wood Interior (1874); Chestnut Wood in Tyrol; Forge in the Woods; Vranduk in Bosnia (1880); Storm (1882).—Brockhaus, v. 712; Illustr. Zeitg. (1881), ii. 441; (1883), i. 466; Kunst-Chronik, xx. 445.

ECCE ANCILLA DOMINI (Behold the Handmaid of the Lord), Dante Gabriel Rossetti, National Gallery, London; canvas, H. 2 ft. 4 in. × 1 ft. 5 in. The Annunciation. Head of Virgin painted from Christina Rossetti; W. M. Rossetti sat for the angel, but it was finished from another sitter. Royal Academy, 1850; sold in 1853 to Mr. MacCracken, Belfast, for £52 10s.; Graham sale (1886) bought for National Gallery (1886), £850.—Art Journal (1884), 150; Athen. (1883), i. 23.

ECCE HOMO (Behold the Man), the presentation of Christ to the people, after scourging, by Pilate (John xix. 5).

By Annibale Carracci, Dresden Gallery; canvas, H. 3 ft. × 3 ft. 6 in. Christ, half-length, crowned with thorns, with an angel on each side. From Modena Collection. Engraved by M. Keyl.—Gal. Roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 18.

By Correggio, National Gallery, London; wood, H. 3 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. 7½ in. Christ, half-length, with hands bound and crowned with thorns; in front, the Virgin sinks fainting into arms of Mary Magdalen; behind, Pilate looking out of a window, and on other side the head of a soldier. Painted about 1519–21; bought of the Colonna family, Rome, by Sir Simon Clarke, who sold it to Murat, King of Naples; from his widow, the ex-Queen, it passed to the Marquis of Londonderry, who sold it in 1834, together with the Education of Cupid, to National Gallery for £11,500. Placed by Meyer among the doubtful works of Correggio. At the end of the 16th century there were two Ecce Homos claimed to be by Correggio: One belonging to Count Prati (engraved by Agostino Carracci, 1587), the other to Lorenzo Salviati, Florence. This latter, which passed to the Colonna family, is the National Gallery picture. The other has disappeared. Engraved by Bettelini; Doo; Asioli; Rosaspina.—Meyer, Correggio, 357, 487; do. Kunst. Lex., i. 434; Waagen, Treasures, i. 326; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 505; Richter, 62.

By Guido Reni, Dresden Gallery; wood, oval, H. 1 ft. 9 in. × 1 ft. 3 in. Head of Christ, crowned with thorns, with eyes turned upward. One of Guido's most celebrated pictures, known through many copies. Presented by Innocent XII to Augustus II., King of Poland and Elector of Saxony. Restored by Palm. Engraved by Ant. Krüger.—Gal. Roy. de Dresde, iii. Pl. 26.

By Guido Reni, Dresden Gallery; copper, H. 2 ft. 8 in. × 2 ft. 1 in. Christ, crowned with thorns and holding a reed in his bound hand; around his shoulders a red mantle.

ECCE

Formerly in the Imperial Gallery at Prague, whence bought in 1748. Engraved by C. G. Schultze.—Gal. Roy. de Dresde, iii. Pl. 4.

By Guido Reni, Louvre; canvas, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 6 in. Head of Christ, crowned with thorns, and surrounded with an aureole; at right, before his shoulder, a reed. Given to Louis XIV. in 1696 by the Commander de Hautefeuille.—Fillhol, i. Pl. 53; Villot, Cat. Louvre.

By Guido Reni, National Gallery, London; wood, oval, H. 1 ft. 9½ in. × 1 ft. 4 in. Head of Christ, crowned with thorns. Formerly in Collection of Benjamin West, P.R.A. Bequeathed to National Gallery by Samuel Rogers in 1855. Engraved by William Sharp.

By Murillo, Lord Ashburton, London; canvas, H. 2 ft. 7 in. × 2 ft. Christ, crowned with thorns, wearing a brown robe, looking up, half-length. Purchased in 1815 from General Sebastiani. — Stirling, iii. 1430; Waagen, ii. 102; Curtis, 199.

By Murillo, Cadiz Museum; canvas, H. 2 ft. 8 in. × 2 ft. 2 in. Christ, crowned with thorns, and wrists bound, standing front, half-length; upper part of body naked, lower part draped with red; right hand holds a reed. Presented to Capuchin Convent, Cadiz, in 1730, by Doña Catalina Rodriguez; deposited in Museum in 1852. Repetitions, with changes: Mrs. Thomas Birchall, Preston, Lancashire; Robert Baillie-Hamilton, Langton House, Dunse, Berwickshire, Scotland; William C. Cartwright, Aynhoe, Northamptonshire.—Ponz, Viage, xvii. 339; C. Bermudez, ii. 62; Curtis, 197.

By Murillo, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 1 ft. 9 in. × 1 ft. 4 in. Bust, three quarters right, looking down; heavy dark hair and beard, crowned with thorns, purple robe. Companion to Mater Dolorosa, Madrid Museum. From Isabel Farnese Collection.—Curtis, 198; Madrazo, 487.

By Murillo; called The Veronica, original lost? On a napkin, suspended by two upper corners, which are formed into rosettes, is the face of Christ, crowned with thorns, the eyes downcast, the beard short, and the hair falling below the chin. Called La Santa Faz (The Holy Face); formerly in Capuchin Convent, Seville, whence disappeared, in what way is unknown.—Repetitions: Lord Overstone, London; A. J. Beresford-Hope, London.—Curtis, 198.

By Il Sodoma, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. 6 in. Christ, half-length, crowned with thorns, and hands bound with a rope; behind, three executioners. Engraved by I. Bonajuti.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, ii. Pl. 80.

By Il Sodoma, Siena Academy; fresco, H. 3 ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. 4 in. Christ, crowned with thorns and bound to the column. Formerly in cloister of Convent of S. Francesco; cut from wall in 1841.

By Lo Spagna, National Gallery, London; wood, H. 1 ft. 3 in. × 1 ft. Christ crowned with thorns, presented by Pilate to the people.—Nat. Gal. Cat.

By Tintoretto, Munich Gallery; copper, H. 1 ft. 3 in. × 1 ft. Christ sitting, crowned with thorns, holding in his bound hands the reed sceptre, aided by an officer; in background, Pilate.

By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. Christ lies fainting on the ground, with a soldier standing beside him; on the other side, Pilate withdraws the robe from the scourged body and points it out to the Jews. In treatment, resembles Titian more than Tintoretto.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 352.

By Titian, Madrid Museum; slate, H. 2 ft. 3 in. × 1 ft. 9½ in.; signed. Figure, half-length, turned to the right; arms bound in front of body; head bent, and blood drops from punctures of the crown of thorns. Painted in 1547 for Charles V., and carried by Titian to Augsburg; at Yuste at time of Emperor's death. A copy, given by Titian to Aretino, is perhaps the one of the Averoldi collection, Breseia, now in gallery of Due d'Aumale; exhibited at Leeds in 1868 and in Paris in 1874.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 160.

By Titian, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice;

ECHENA

canvas. Christ, with face inclined and arms folded, sorrowing. Painted before 1500.—C. & C., Titian, i. 58.

By Titian, Vienna Museum; canvas, H. 12 ft. x 8 ft.; signed and dated 1543. ELSHEIMER (Elzheimer). ADAM, born in Frankfort, baptized March 18, 1578, died in Rome in 1620. German school; landscape painter, pupil of Philip Uffenbach; called Adam of Frankfort at Rome, where he fixed his residence at an early age. Had numerous pupils, such as Lastman, Jan Pinas, and Goudt, and founded a new school which treated biblical subjects in the natural, anti-classic style afterwards developed by Rembrandt, of whom he is regarded as one of the precursors. His biblical and mythological scenes are represented in landscapes suggested by Italian motives, and the figures are no lay figures, but human in dress and sentiment. Each one of his pupils brought back to Holland something of his master, whose influence was communicated to Rembrandt through Lastman. Works: Sacrifice at Lystra, Bacchus among the Nymphs at Nysa, Städels Gallery, Frankfort; Landscape with Mountain Prospect, Aurora, Brunswick Museum; St. Lawrence, Karlsruhe Gallery; replica, Montpellier Museum; Landscape with St. Jerome, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Walk to Emmaus, Aschaffenburg Gallery; Martyrdom of St. Lawrence, Contento, an Allegory, Flight into Egypt, Burning of Troy, Woodland Valley, St. John Preaching (?), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Six Scenes from Life of Mary, Syrinx and Pan, St. Martin and the Beggar, Arcadian Wood Landscape, Berlin Museum; Flight into Egypt, Joseph put into a Pit by his Brethren, Jupiter and Mercury visiting Philemon and Baucis, Judith (?), Dresden Gallery; Repose in Egypt, Museum, Vienna; Realm of Venus, Academy, ib.; Birth of Christ, Czernin Gallery, ib.; Flight into Egypt, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; do., Ferdinandeum, Innsbruck; Peter denying Christ, Francesco, where it remained until 1608, when it was removed to the Palazzo Borghese, a copy made by the Cavaliere di Arpino being put into its place. Carried in 1797 to Paris; returned to Vatican in 1815; afterward removed to Palazzo Borghese. Dis-

ed. Mil., iv. 327; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 422; Müntz, 233, 247; Perkins, Essay, 75.

By Il Rosso, Louvre; canvas, H. 4 ft. 1 in. × 5 ft. 3 in. The body of Christ, on a cushion at the entrance of the tomb, is sustained by Nicodemus; at left, the Magdalen holds his feet; the Virgin, on her knees, with arms extended, swoons in the arms of one of the holy women. Probably the picture which, according to Vasari, was painted for Signor di Piondino, or that executed for the Constable.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 158, 171; Villot, Cat. Louvre; Landon, xii. Pl. 61.

figured by spits and patches. Copies by P. Penni (1548), Turin Gallery; by Orazio Alfani, Perugia Gallery; by Sassoferrato, S. Pietro, Perugia; and others. Three round monochromes, Faith, Hope, and Charity, once the predella of the Entombment, are in the Vatican. The lunette representing God the Father surrounded by ten cherubs' heads is in the Perugia Gallery; designed, but not painted, by Raphael. Studies for Entombment in Louvre, Uffizi, Palazzo Borghese, etc. Engraved by Seelberg, Collin, Piroli, Volpato, Amsler, Scheich, and Masqueher. Predella, engraved by Desmoyers (1811), Landon, Koch—C. & C., Raphael, i. 315; Passavant, i. 95, ii. 57; Rumohr, Italienische Forschungen, ii. 69; Vasari,

By Titoretto, Parma Gallery. Christ borne to the tomb in a desert place, with a melancholy sky, against which the three crosses are seen in the distance, together with the ruins of the cattle shed of the nativity. In this picture sublimity of conception and grandeur of colour are seen in the highest perfection.—Ruskin, Mod. Painters, ii. 168; iii. 324.

By Titoretto, S. Francesco della Vigna, Venice; canvas, arched at the top. In foreground, the Virgin swooning, attended by two women; in mid-ground, Christ borne to the tomb by the disciples, above them an angel with a wreath; in background, to right, the three crosses on a hill, with Roman soldiers. Engraved by L. Kilian.—Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

By Titian, Louvre; canvas, H. 4 ft. 10 in. × 6 ft. 8 in. The body of Christ suspended in a cloth, borne by Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea, the latter with one knee on a stone; St. John Evangelist, behind, holds up one arm; the Virgin and Magdalen at left. Painted in Mantua in 1523 for Duke Federigo Gonzaga; in inventory of the Mantuan Palace in 1627; passed thence to collection of Charles I., after whose death it was sold for £120 to Jabach, who disposed of it to Louis XIV. One of the great pictures of the world, in which the grandest drawing, composition, and expression are combined with the most effective chiaroscuro, the most splendid colour, and the deepest sentiment. An inferior copy, probably by a disciple of Titian's, was sold lately from the Palazzo Manfrini, Venice. Original study in the Venice Academy. Engraved by G. Rousselet; Chaperon; Masson; Joh. de Marc.—C. & C., Titian, i. 283; Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 458; Filhol, ix. Pl. 619; Mündler, 208; Landon, Musée, vii. Pl. 57; Van der Doort's Cat.; Scharf's Old London, 330.

By Titian, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 4 ft. 6 in. × 5 ft. 9 in.; signed. Theme somewhat different from the Louvre example, and less rich in tints and less engaging in form. Painted in 1559 for Philip II. and sent to Madrid, with the Diana and Actæon and the Diana and Callisto, to take the place of one despatched in 1557, but lost on the way. Placed in Royal Chapel at Aranjuez, and after Philip's death in the Escorial. Original sketch at Oxford University. Copies, with variations, of picture in Madrid Museum, the Escorial, Ambrosiana in Milan, Torrigiani Collection, Florence, and Vienna Museum.—C. & C., Titian, ii. 289.

ESSELENS, JACOB, flourished at Amsterdam, 17th century. Dutch school; landscape and figure painter, supposed pupil of Rembrandt; painted villages on the banks of rivers, buildings with fountains, stag-hunts, and shipping-pieces. Works: Figures by a River, Rotterdam Museum; Fishing Piece, Copenhagen Gallery; Rendezvous of a Hunting Party, Corporation Galleries, Glasgow.—Immerzeel, i. 224; Kramm, ii. 443.

ESTE, ALFONSO D', Duke of Ferrara, portrait, Titian, Madrid Museum; wood, H. 4 ft. 1 in. × 3 ft. 3 in. Painted about 1518; acquired in 1533, by Emperor Charles V. Replica, lately in Kaunitz Collection, by some later painter. Second portrait of Alfonso, painted by Titian in 1536, lost.—C. & C., Titian, i. 189, 363, 410.

ESTE GONZAGA, ISABELLA D', Marchioness of Mantua, portrait, Titian, Vienna Museum; canvas, H. 3 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. Painted in 1534, from an older portrait by some unknown painter. Bought by Archduke Leopold Wilhelm for his gallery in Brussels, and thence passed to Vienna. Engraved by Vorsterman from copy by Rubens; also engraved by Van der Steen, Krepp, and others. Replica, with variations, at Hermitage, attributed to Paris Bordone; others at Verona and Padua.—C. & C., Titian, i. 385.

ESTENSE, BALDASSARE, Lombard school, last half of 15th century. Probably of Reggio, as he is sometimes called Baldassare da Reggio. Supposed illegitimate son of House of Este, as he received unusual promotion from the Dukes of Ferrara. Painted a likeness of Borso I. in 1469, and was sent to Milan to present it in person to the Duke. His frescoes in the Rufini Chapel, S. Domenico, Ferrara, have perished, but his portrait of Tito Strozzi, a tempera on canvas, of good outline and finish, dated 1483, is in the Costabili Collection, Ferrara. He seems to have followed in the footsteps of Tura and of Cossa. Baldassare's will was made in 1500.—

ETTY, WILLIAM, born in York, March 10, 1787, died there, Nov. 13, 1849. History painter, son of a miller; apprenticed for seven years with Peck, a letter-press printer at Hull; went to London in 1806, in 1807 became a student at the Royal Academy, and in 1808 of Sir Thomas Lawrence. He was long unsuccessful, but by persevering drudgery at last won his reward; in 1811 his Telemachus rescuing Antiope was hung in the Royal Academy, and in 1820 his Coral Finders, and in 1821 his Cleopatra on the Cydnus, brought him fame. In 1822 he visited Italy and became an honorary member of the Venetian Academy; and in 1824 he was elected an A.R.A., and in 1828 R.A. Etty delighted in painting the nude, especially the female form, and as a colourist had few equals in the English school. Works: Sappho (1814); The Deluge (1815), Cupid sheltering Psyche (1823), Head of a Cardinal (1844), South Kensington Museum; Imprudence of Candaulus (1830), Window in Venice during a Festa (1831), Youth on the Prow and Pleasure at the Helm (1832), Lute-Player (1833), Dangerous Playmate (1833), Christ appearing to Magdalen (1834), Il Duetto (1838), Female Bathers surprised by a Swan (1841), Magdalen (1842), Bather (1844), National Gallery, London; Deliverance of Bethulia by Judith (3 pictures, 1827–31), Benaiah (1829), The Combat (1825), EUCHEIR, of Athens, mythic painter, spoken of as the discoverer of painting in Greece, and as related to Dædalus.—Pliny, vii. 57 [205].

EUDORUS, scene-painter and statuary, place and date unknown.—Pliny, xxxv. 40 [141].

EUMARUS, monochrome painter, of Athens, latter part of 6th century B.C. Said to have been the first to distinguish men from women in his pictures by colour, by which is meant, probably, that he painted the flesh of the former of a reddish brown and that of the latter white. Also said to have first marked the differences in age between the persons whom he painted. Painting in Greece, up to his time on a level with that in Assyria and Egypt, took with him the first steps in the path of progress.—Pliny, xxxv. 34 [55].

EUMELUS, painter, of Caria, probably about A.D. 190. His picture of Helen was in the Roman Forum.—Philost. Vita Sophist., ii. 5.

EUPHRANOR, one of the greatest of Greek artists, of Corinth, Theban-Attic school, pupil of Aristides of Thebes or of his son and pupil Ariston, about 370–336 B.C. Master of all arts—painter, sculptor, chaser of metals, and writer on symmetry and colour (Pliny, xxxiv. 19; Quin, xii. 10, 6). He united the traditions of his Theban master with those of the Sicyonic school, and painted many famous works, both at Corinth and at Athens. Upon one wall in the Stoa Basileus at Athens he painted Theseus with personifications of Democracy and the Demos, and upon the opposite one the twelve great gods. There also he represented a fight between the Athenian and Bœotian cavalry at the battle of Mantinea, with portraits of Epaminondas and of Gryllus, son of Xenophon (Paus. i. 3. 2, 3). With reference to the first-named picture Euphranor remarked that the Theseus of Parrhasius had been fed on roses, but his own on beef (Pliny, xxxv. 40). Some famous pictures of his at Ephesus are also mentioned: Ulysses in his feigned Madness, yoking together an Ox and a Horse; and a Warrior sheathing his Sword.

EUPOMPUS, a noted Greek painter, of Sicyon, founder of the Sicyonic school, contemporary and rival of Parrhasius and Timanthes, about 400 B.C. (Pliny, xxv. 36 [61, 64, 75]). Before his time only two schools of painting were recognized in Greece, the Ionic (Asiatic) and the Attic (Hellenic). We know the subject of but one of his works, a winner in the Olympic games carrying a palm of victory in his hand. This picture was so marked in its individuality that the painter was conceded to have founded a third school, the Sicyonic, at the head of which stands his scholar Pamphilus, the master of Apelles.

EURIPIDES, painter and poet (485–406 B.C.). The great tragic poet was a painter in his youth, and several of his works were preserved in Megara.—Suidas, v. and Vita Eurip. in Vitæ scriptores Græci minores (ed. Westerm. 134, 15).

By Titian, Cobham Hall, England; canvas, H. 5 ft. 10 in. × 6 ft. 8 in.; signed. Jupiter, in the form of a bull, with Europa on his back, rushes through the brine, while Eros, with expanded wings, clings to a dolphin following, and two Cupids fly overhead; in the distance Europa's companions on the shore bewail her loss. Painted in 1562 for Philip II. of Spain; given by Philip V. in 1704 to Marquis de Grammont, through on his back; above, two Cupids bring wreaths of flowers, and a third holds the bull by a cord attached to a wreath around his horns; at right, the bull is seen entering the water with Europa on his back, with attendants, and Cupid bearing a torch; in distance, the bull swimming, with attendants on shore taking leave of Europa. Left to the Republic by Bertucci Contarini in 1715. Taken to Paris in 1798; returned in 1817. Ruskin says: One of the very few pictures which both possess and deserve a high reputation.

EVERDINGEN, ALLART (Aldert) VAN, born at Alkmaar in 1621 (?), died in Amsterdam, Nov., 1675. Dutch school; landscape painter, pupil at Utrecht of Roelandt Savery, and the master of Backhuysen and Ruysdael. From 1645 to 1651 lived at Haarlem, and from 1654 to 1675 in Amsterdam. Everdingen's landscapes are poetic and spirited. His treatment of rocks and waterfalls, forests and sea-views, is truthful and vigorous, both in his pictures and his numerous etchings. Many of his studies from nature were made in Norway, which he visited in 1640–44. Works: Norwegian Landscapes (2), National Museum, Amsterdam; Two Waterfalls, Rotterdam Museum; Rocky Landscape, Vienna Museum; Landscapes (2), Louvre; River Landscape (1648), Norwegian Waterfall, Norwegian Landscapes (2), Wooded Slope, Castle by River, Berlin Museum; Waterfall with Alpine Hut, Norwegian Landscape (1647), Brunswick Museum; Ravine with Torrent, Cologne Museum; Landscape with Waterfall (1650), Storm at Sea, 2 Landscapes, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Stag-Hunt (1643), 4 Landscapes, Dresden Gallery; Mountain Torrent in Norway, Breslau Museum; Stormy Sea, Landscape with Mill, Norwegian Landscape, EVERDINGEN, CESAR VAN, born at Alkmaar in 1606, died there in 1679. Dutch school, history, genre, and portrait painter; brother of Allart van E.; pupil of Jan van Bronkhorst, entered the Alkmaar guild in 1632; went in 1648 to Haarlem, where he entered the guild in 1651, but returned to Alkmaar, where most of his pictures are to be found in St. Lawrence's Church and in the Town Hall. He painted with vivid conception and powerful colouring. Works: Diogenes in Search of a Man (1652, figures portraits of the Steijn family), National Museum, Amsterdam; Flora, Pomona, Bacchus, and Cupid, Dresden Gallery. His younger brother, Jan (1625-1656), painted still life. — Immerzeel, i. 225; Kramm, ii. 445; Quellenschriften, xiv. 200; Van der Willigen, 126.

EVERS, ANTON CLEMENS, born on the Moritzberg, near Hildesheim, in 1802. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of the Dresden Academy until 1829, after which he painted portraits in his native town. In 1832 he went to Munich, where he established himself as a painter of Bavarian life and sports. Works: Peter Vischer in Nuremberg working on Sebaldus' Monument; Gutenberg showing first Trials of Printing;

Luther as Squire George at the Wartburg; Hans Sachs composing Poetry in a Bower.

EWALD, ERNST (DEODAT PAUL FERDINAND), born in Berlin, March 17, 1836. History painter, pupil in Berlin in 1855 of Steffek, then studied in Paris in 1856-63, including one year under Couture. After visiting Italy, in 1863-64, he returned to Berlin, and there decorated the new city hall, and a hall in the National Gallery, with wall paintings. In 1868 he became instructor, and in 1874 director, of the German Industrial School, in 1880 also of the Royal Art School, at Berlin. Works: The Seven Deadly Sins (1863), Scenes from Niebelungen Saga (1869), National Gallery, Berlin.—Brockhaus, vi. 463; Rosenberg, Berl. Malersch., 230.

EWALD, CHARLES, born at Nantes about 1608, died in Rome May 25, 1689. French school; history and architecture painter and engraver. Formed himself in Italy, where he was member of the Academy of St. Luke, 1635, and after his return to France decorated churches and palaces with second-rate pictures of sacred and profane history. He was one of the founders and first director of the French Academy at Paris and (1665) at Rome.—Ch. Blanc, École française.

EXECUTION IN GRANADA, Henri Regnault, formerly in Luxembourg Museum; canvas, H. 9 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. 10 in. A marble stairway with two or three steps leads to a Moorish court in the style of the Alhambra; in foreground, two figures, the executioner and his victim, the former standing wiping his cimeter on his tunic, the latter a mangled trunk, the head lying in a pool of blood on the marble pavement. Salon, 1870.—Benjamin, 102.

EXILES OF TIBERIUS, Félix Joseph Barrias, Luxembourg Museum; canvas, H. 8 ft. 3 in. × 13 ft. The Emperor Tiberius, having retired to Caprea (Capri) to pursue his pleasures, punished all who stood in his way, including even the wives and children of the accused, by banishing them to islands where they could get neither fire nor water (Suetonius). The picture represents a boat

EYBL, FRANZ, born in Vienna, April 1, 1806, died there April 29, 1880. Portrait and genre painter, pupil of the Vienna Academy; member in 1843. Works: Smithy at Gosau (1835); Strawberry Seller, Return of Husbandman (1844); Dressing the Bride (1845); Old Woman asleep in Arm Chair; Old Woman leaving Church; Old Woman Praying (1846); Austrian Peasant Woman (1847), Old Beggar (1856), Vienna Museum.—Wurzbach, iv. 119.

EYCK, HUBERT or HUYBRECHT

VAN, born at Maaseyck after 1366, died in Ghent Sept. 18, 1426. Flemish school. There are no authentic records of his life until 1424, when he was living in high repute as a painter in Ghent. The honour of perfecting oil painting, long known but hitherto undeveloped, belongs to Hubert and his brother Jan. They invented a colourless varnish which could be applied with safety to oil colours, and thus obviated the only impediment to their use, namely, their excessive slowness in drying, which had been before met by the use of a varnish which darkened many colours and was therefore objectionable. Their new method was that of painting with wet upon wet colour. The tints were mixed with the drying medium upon the palette, and then applied. Hubert's one certainly authentic work is that part of the great altarpiece in the Church of St. Bavon (now St. John), Ghent—the Adoration of the Lamb, which he painted for Jodocus Vydt, a rich patrician of Ghent. The following portions, as differing in drawing, colouring, cast of drapery, and treatment from the style of Jan, as recognized in his other works, may be safely assigned to Hubert, namely: the Almighty, the Virgin, St. John the Baptist, from the upper inner series, and the great picture of the Adoration of the Lamb, being the central portion of the lower series, in the Church of St. Bavon, Ghent; St. Cecilia and Angels playing on musical instruments, Berlin Museum; both the upper outside wings, with Adam and Eve, Brussels Museum. The side of the centre picture with the Apostles and Saints, and the wings with the hermits and pilgrims, with the exception of the landscapes, are also attributed to Hubert Van Eyck. The altarpiece in its entirety is one of the most wonderful works of art in the world.—Biog. nat. de Belgique, vi. 775; Carton, Les trois Frères Van Eyck (Brussels, 1848); Eastlake, Materials; Eisenman, The Brothers Van Eyck, 209; Dohme, li.; Ch. EYCK, JAN VAN, born at Maaseyck about 1381, died in Bruges July 9, 1440. Flemish school. Jan and his elder brother Hubert are supposed to have been court-painters to Philip de Charolois, afterwards Philip the Good, Duke of Burgundy, who, with his wife, Michelle de France, resided at Ghent between 1418 and 1421. In October, 1422, Jan entered the service of Duke John of Bavaria as "painter and varlet," at The Hague, and after his death (May 19, 1425) re-entered that of Duke Philip in the same capacities. During the next three years he lived at Lille, whence he was sent by the Duke, Oct. 19, 1428, to Portugal, to paint the portrait of his affianced bride, the Princess Isabel. At Christmas, 1429, Jan returned to Flanders with the Princess, and settled at Ghent to complete the great altarpiece of the Adoration of the Lamb, left unfinished by his brother Hubert. Having accomplished this work in 1432, he established himself at Bruges, where, in consideration of his great merit, the Duke exempted him from taxes, and in 1434 honoured him by becoming godfather to his daughter Lyemie. Authorities differ as to what part of the great altarpiece in the Cathedral of St. Bavon at Ghent was painted by Jan after his brother's death. The question is the more difficult to decide, as it is Hubert's one authentic work. Many pictures by Jan exist, and these when compared with the altarpiece have led Woltmann to conclude that only the paintings on the outer shutters, Berlin Gallery, are by him. They consist of the Annunciation and the Prophets and Sibyls who foretold the event, and of four figures in niches, two of which in monochrome represent Gothic statues of SS. John the Baptist and the Evangelist, and two in colour, the kneeling donors, Jodocus Vydt and his wife, Fran Lisbet Barlut. To these as Jan's work are added in Kugler's Handbook (Crowe) the wing picture with the singing angels of the upper series on the inner side, the side of the centre picture of the Adoration of the Lamb containing the Patriarchs and Prophets, etc., and the entire landscape, the wing with the soldiers of Christ and the Righteous Judges, and the landscapes to the wing with the hermits and pilgrims. Other works by Jan are the Consecration of Thomas à Becket van Eyck; existence only lately established. Only work attributed to him, an altarpiece, consisting of a centre and two wings (1445), in the Van der Schriek Collection, Louvain. —C. & C., Flemish Painters, 133; Kramm, ii. 465.

EYCK, MARGARET VAN, born (?), died not later than 1430. Flemish school; sister of Hubert, Jan, and Lambert Van Eyck. She is said to have been a skilful painter, but none of the works assigned to her are certainly authentic. She died before Jan, and was buried, like Hubert, in the Cathedral at Ghent. A Madonna, National Gallery, London, is attributed to her. Biog. nat. de Belgique, vi. 800; C. & C., Flemish Painters, 129; Kramm, ii. 464.

EYCK, NICOLAAS VAN, born at Antwerp, baptized Feb. 9, 1617, died there in 1679. Flemish school; military, genre, and battle painter, brother of Kaspar van Eyck, pupil of Theodor Rombouts. Probably several of his works, which were greatly esteemed in the 18th century, are attributed to other masters. Works: Review of Militia by Mayor of Antwerp (1673), City Hall, Antwerp; Two Episodes in Taking of Mechlin in 1580 (about 1650), Mechlin Museum; Equestrian Portrait, Lille Museum; Halt of Soldiers in a Village, Vienna Museum; Soldiers wading through River, Turin Gallery. —Van den Branden, 1013.

EYCKEN, JEAN BAPTISTE VAN, born in Brussels, Sept. 16, 1809, died at Schaerbeek-les-Bruxelles Dec. 19, 1853. History and genre painter, pupil at the Brussels Academy of Navez; obtained the great prize in 1835, visited France and Italy in 1837-39, and soon after his return took rank with the foremost artists of his native country. His works in the chapel of Notre Dame in Brussels were the first examples of monumental decoration on a grand scale painted in Belgium. Professor at Brussels Academy in 1839, member in 1848. Gold medals: Brussels, 1839; Paris, 1840; Order of Leopold, 1847. Works: Holy Women at Christ's Tomb (1835); Young Mother with her Dead

FABIUS, CAIUS PICTOR, of the noble Roman house of the Fabii, lived about 300 B.C. One of the few Roman painters known to us. He decorated the Temple of Salus (dedicated 302 B.C.) with a mural painting representing a battle won by the Dictator C. Junius Brutus Bubulcus over the Samnites (Valer. Maximus, viii. 14, 6). This is the earliest recorded Roman painting. Fabius's style was marked by simplicity and absence of mannerism. An excellent draughtsman, he combined in his work the clear outlines of the Old Attic with the rich colouring of the Theban Attic school. On account of his eminence in his art his surname, Pictor (Painter), was given to a family of the Fabia gens, and borne by his descendants.—Pliny, xxxv. 19.

FABRE, FRANÇOIS XAVIER, Baron, born at Montpellier, April 1, 1766, died there March 16, 1837. History painter, pupil of J. Coustou and of David, won grand prix de Rome in 1787; was at Rome in 1793, and afterwards in Naples and Florence, where he became a professor in the Academy and is said to have secretly married the Countess of Albany, after the death of Alfieri. He returned in 1826 to Montpellier, and founded there the École des Beaux Arts, of which he became director. Medal, 1808; L. of Honour, 1827; officer, 1829; created baron, 1830. At his death he be-

FABRIANO, GENTILE DA, born at Fabriano in 1370 (?), died in Rome in 1450 (?). Umbrian school. Real name Gentile di Niccolò di Giovanni Massi. Pupil probably of Allegretto Nuzi, who died when Gentile was fifteen years old; has been called both master and pupil of Fra Angelico, but rather on account of a certain superficial resemblance between them than from any real affinity. He left Fabriano some time before 1521 to become court-painter to Pandolfo Malatesta, for whom he decorated a chapel at Brescia. Thence Gentile probably went to Venice to paint a fresco of the battle between Doge Ziani and Otho, son of Barbarossa, in the Hall of the Grand Council, Palazzo Ducale, destroyed by fire in 1574. Jacopo Bellini was his pupil there and accompanied him in 1422 to Florence, where Gentile painted, the next year, his most famous picture, the Adoration of the Magi, now in the Academy, a work which entitles him to be called the Umbrian Fra Angelico. Like him, Gentile paints in the spirit of the old school, with the gay colouring of the early Umbrian masters, the profuse use of gilt relief ornament, and the somewhat formal system of composition peculiar to the Florentines before Masaccio; but pleasing and poetical as the result is, Gentile shows in it none of the deep mystical fervour of Angelico, and in this more nearly resembles Benozzo Gozzoli than his master. Among his other works Gentile painted a charming fresco of the Madonna at Orvieto (1426), being on his way to Rome. He remained in the latter city until his death, and executed many masterpieces for Popes Martin V. and Eugenius

IV., which have all perished. Among his other works are: Coronation of the Virgin with Saints, and a predella with five subjects, Brera, Milan; Virgin adoring the Infant Jesus, hall of the Pia Casa, and Adoration of the Magi, S. Domenico, Pisa; Virgin enthroned with Saints and a Donor, Berlin Museum.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 95, N. Italy, i. 106; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 5, 15; Bernasconi, Studii, 51; Burekhardt, 555, 588; Ch. FALCO, JUAN CONCHILLOS, born at Valencia in 1641, died there May 14, 1711. Spanish school; history painter, pupil of Estéban March, after whose death he studied in Madrid. On his return to his native city he maintained a school of design in his own house, and executed many altarpieces for churches in Valencia and Murcia. In his later years he was paralyzed and blind. Works: Two Pictures of Life of St. Eloy, S. Salvador, Madrid; Two Pictures of Miraculous Image of Christ of Beyrout, S. Salvador, Valencia; Conception, Franciscan Nuns, Valencia; Two Altarpieces of Life of St. Benedict, Cistercian Monastery, Valdiguna; Pictures of Life of San Louis Beltram, Dominicans, Murcia.—Stirling, 1071.

FALCONE, ANIELLO, called l'Oracolo delle Bataglie, born in Naples in 1600, died there in 1665. Neapolitan school, pupil of Spagnoletto; became famous as a painter of battle scenes, whose subjects were taken from sacred and profane history, and from the poets. During the insurrection of Masaniello, he, with his pupils and partisans, formed the Compagnia della Morte (Band of Death), and massacred many Spaniards in revenge for the death of a relative and scholar killed by their soldiery. On the death of Masaniello, Falcone fled to France and painted in Paris until about 1656, when he was permitted to return to Italy. In the Naples Museum are interesting pictures by him relating to the revolt of Masaniello, and to the plague of 1656. Other works in the Madrid Museum, and a Fight between Turks and Cavalry, in the Louvre. Falcone was the master of Salvator Rosa.—Lanzi, ii. 50; Ch. Blanc, École napolitaine.

FARINATI

One End of a Table (1872); Flowers and other objects (1874); Flowers, Birthday of Berlioz (1876); Reading (1877); Last Scene of Rheingold (1880); Woman Embroidering (1881); Spring Night, The Study (1884); Around the Piano (1885).

FARINATI, BATTISTA, born at Verona in 1532, died in 1592. Venetian school; history painter, nephew and probably pupil of Paolo; was the fellow-student and friend of Paolo Veronese, whom he assisted in his works in the Palazzo della Soranza at Castelfranco, and in public buildings in Venice. Works: Conversion of St. Paul, Miraculous Draught of Fishes, Vicenza Cathedral; The Virtues, The Studies, Palazzo Ducale, Venice; Frescos in Villa Obizzo at Catajo; Holy Family, Loelis-Carrara Gallery, Bergamo.

FARINATI, PAOLO, born in Verona in 1524, died in 1606. Venetian school. He belonged to a famous Florentine family, the Farinati degli Uberti, who in the 13th century were at the head of the Ghibellines of Florence. Dispersed by the Guelphs, a branch of the family settled in Verona, where Paolo became its most distinguished member. His first master was Niccolò Giolfino, on leaving whom he is said to have gone to Venice to study Giorgione and Titian; but his style resembles rather that of Giulio Romano than that of either of those masters, and it is certain that he spent some time in Mantua, where he painted a St. Martin for the chapel of the Sacrament in the Duomo. Ten of his pictures are in the Museum at Verona. In S. Maria in Organo are four, of which the Massacre of the Innocents is dated 1566, and in S. Anastasia two, one of which, a Christ between SS. Peter and Paul, is dated 1589. In S. Giorgio Maggiore is the Multiplication of the Loaves, painted in 1603, when Paolo was seventy-nine years old. Other examples of his work are in the Duomo, in S. Giovanni in Fonte, in S. Pietro in Monasterio, in S. Tommaso, in S. Nazzaro e Celso, and in the Palazzi Carlotti, Serego, and Marari. Farinati painted much in fresco. His son and pupil, Orazio, was also a history painter; works in S. Paolo, S.

M. del Paradiso, and S. Stefano, Verona.—Vasari, ed. Le

FASOLO, GHANANTONIO, born at Vicenza in 1528, died in 1572. Venetian school; history painter, pupil of B. Zelotti and of Paolo Veronese, whose manner he followed. Works: Pool of Bethesda, S. Rocco, Vicenza; Mutius Scævola before Porsenna, Horatius defending the Bridge, Marcus Curtius leaping into the Gulf, Prefect's Residence, Vicenza.—Nagler, iv. 251.

FASOLO, LORENZO, called Lorenzo da Pavia and Fasolo da Pavia, born at Pavia (?), died at Genoa before 1520. Lombard school, master unknown; employed by Lodovico Sforza in 1490 in the decoration of the Porta Giovia Palace at Milan. Works: Deposition from Cross (1508), Church of S. Chiara, Chiavari; Family of the Virgin (1513), Louvre. By his son and pupil, Bernardino Fasolo, also called Fasola da Pavia, are pictures in the Berlin and Dresden Galleries and in the Louvre.

FASSETT, C. ADÈLE, born at Owaseo, N. Y., in 1831. Portrait painter, pupil of J. B. Wandesforde, English painter in New York, and of Castiglione, La Tour, and Matthieu in Paris. Studied in Paris and Rome two years, has since lived and painted in Chicago and Washington. Member of the Chicago Academy, and of the Washington Art Club. She has painted the portraits of many distinguished people. Among them are: Chief Justice Waite; the sculptor Vela, Corcoran Gallery, Washington; Mrs. Lamb (1878); and Clara Barton the Philanthropist. Her historical painting of The Electoral Commission in Open Session contains two hundred portraits.

FATA MORGANA, George Frederick Watts, London. Subject from Boiardo's "Orlando Inamorato." Nude female figure, representing Opportunity, flitting through the woodland, preceded by the figure of a boy, is caught by her floating hair by a helmeted and gauntleted knight, seen in background. Royal Academy, 1870.—Art Journal (1881), 2.

FATTORE, IL, born in Florence 1488 (?), died in Naples 1528 (?). Umbrian school. Real name Giovanni Francesco Penni, but commonly called as above because he was Raphael's journeyman (fattore). Next to Giulio Romano he was Raphael's favourite pupil, and they were joint heirs and executors of his art property.

FATTORI

Penni assisted his master in the Vatican and in the Farnesina frescos, and he painted the greater part of the celebrated Cartoons from Raphael's designs. He made copies of Raphael's Transfiguration and Entombment, the former of which is in the Sciarra Colonna Gallery, Rome. Raphael's Visitation, Madrid Museum, and Madonna del Passaggio, Bridgewater Gallery, are attributed to Penni, after Raphael's designs. His St. George and the Dragon and St. Michael are in the Dresden Museum. After Raphael's death Penni and Giulio Romano worked together for a while, but they finally separated and the former settled at Naples.—Vasari, ed. Le Mon., viii. 241; ed. Mil., iv. 643; Burekhardt, 660, 671, 678, 683; Siret, 690; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 360.

FAUST WITH THE CUP, Ary Scheffer, Count Kucheleff; canvas, H. 5 ft. 3 in. × 3 ft. 4 in. Faust, hearing the sound of the church bells, sets upon the table the cup of poison which he was about to swallow; in background, the shadow of Mephistopheles dimly seen in the smoke of the lamp. Salon, 1858.

FAUST AND MARGUERITE IN THE GARDEN, Ary Scheffer, Samuel Ashton, England. The couple, young and handsome, stand in a natural attitude, expressive of their newly awakened love.—Salon, 1846.

FAUST AND MEPHISTOPHELES, Alfred Louis Jacomin, James H. Stebbins, New York, canvas. Faust seated behind a table in his study; Mephistopheles, standing, at left, a study of the singer Faure as he appeared in Gounod's Faust at the Grand Opera, Paris. Painted in 1869.—Art Treas. of Amer., i. 101.

FAUST IN HIS STUDY, Ary Scheffer, Rothschild Collection, Paris; canvas, H. 3 ft. 8 in. × 2 ft. 10 in. Instead of the old alchemist of Goethe, the artist has painted a young and handsome man seated in his study before a volume at which he looks with a melancholy air; behind him, Mephistopheles, smiling sardonically at the torments of his pupil. Salon, 1831.

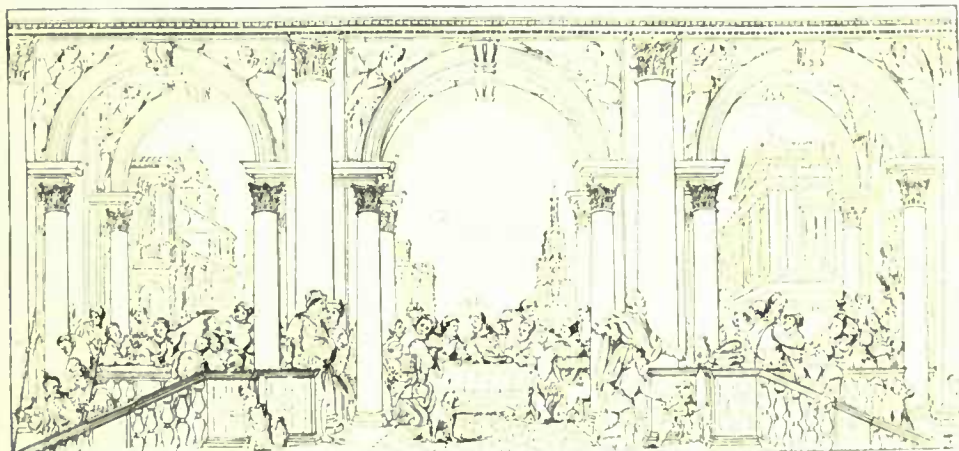

Ary Scheffer painted a series of subjects illustrating the Faust legend. For others, see Marguerite. Subject also treated by Eugène Delacroix, Hans Makart, Gabriel Max, Alexander Liezen-Mayer, and others.

FAUST, HEINRICH, born at Reinsdorf, Oct. 6, 1843. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of George Koch, of Professor Müller, and of the Cassel Academy. Studied under van Lerius in Antwerp; visited Italy, where he was especially attracted by the old Venetian masters, and then settled in Cassel. Paints in the style of Makart. Works: Portrait of a Lady (1868); German Legends; Children's Figures; The Flowers' Revenge; Egyptian Princess; Titania; Mediæval German Lady.—Müller, 169.

FAUSTNER

FAUSTNER, LEONHARD, born in Munich, Feb. 16, 1815, died there, April 1, 1884. Architecture and landscape painter, pupil of Munich Academy, and of the animal painter Moritz Losche; then studied glass painting under Aimmiller, who employed him in the royal manufactory of stained glass, and after whose death he was made its director. His highly esteemed oil paintings are mostly in private collections. His son Luitpold, born in Munich, July 10, 1845, is a good landscape painter, pupil of Munich Academy under Piloty.—Kunst-Chronik, xix. 484.

History and genre painter, pupil of the Düsseldorf Academy in 1833-41, then studied three years in Munich, and two years in Paris under Paul Delaroche. After his return to Düsseldorf he painted Italian subjects exclusively, though he did not visit Italy until the latter part of his life. Works: St. Gangolf's Well (1837); Genovefa (1838); Samson and Delilah (1839), Cologne Museum; Cleopatra (1841); Scene from Faust; Romeo and Juliet (1846); Christmas, Kunsthalle, Hamburg.—*Allgem. d. 14 ft. 11 in. × 32 ft. Christ, seated at the corner of a table, points out to Simon, seated opposite to him, Mary Magdalen, who, kneeling, is wiping his feet with her hair, after having anointed them; Judas, at another table, is rising and speaking to Christ; the two tables, spread in a circular portico adorned with columns, are filled with the disciples and others; spectators in balconies; above, two angels in the air, bearing a scroll. Painted about 1570-75 for refectory of Convent of the Servites, Venice; presented by Republic of Venice in 1665 to Louis XIV. It was the first picture allowed by the government to go out of Venetian territory. Engraved by V. Lefebvre.—Felibien, i. 723, 730; Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 29; Landon, Musée, 2d Col., iii. Pl. 59; Burchardt, 748.

By Paolo Veronese, Turin Gallery; canvas, H. 10 ft. 4 in. × 14 ft. 9 in. The table spread in the portico of a house of classic architecture, from the balcony of which above three women and a man look down; at the right end of the table sits Christ, partly in shadow, conversing with a female standing beside him, while Mary Magdalen anoints his feet; the disciples and other guests are grouped around the table, Judas occupying a central place in front next to a column. Painted about 1566; carried to Paris in 1797, but returned in 1815. Formerly in Palazzo Durazzo, Genoa; sold for 100,000 francs by the Marquis Durazzo to King Charles Albert, who placed it in the gallery in 1838. Sketch at Stourhead House, England. Engraved by Mitelli.—Reale Gall. di Torino, iv. Pl. 121; Felibien, i. 723; Ridolfi, Marav., ii. 28.

FEAST OF ROSE-GARLANDS, Albrecht Dürer, Prague Gallery; signed, dated 1506.

In centre of a landscape, in front of a dark-green curtain, the Virgin, enthroned with the Child, is about to be crowned by two angels; on her right, Pope Julius II., with priests, kneeling; on her left, Emperor Maximilian I., with knights; various members of the German Company are also kneeling, and all are being crowned with garlands of roses by the Virgin, the Child, St. Dominic—who stands behind the Virgin—and by angels. In background, at right, are Dürer and his friend Pirckheimer, standing, the former holding an inscribed Walker; Peaks of Illoniza (1882); River and Peak of Orizaba—Mexico, Franconia Valley (1884); Interior of St. Mark's—Venice, Mosque of Mohammed Ali—Cairo (1885).

FERNANDEZ, VASCO, commonly known as Gran or Grao Vasco (Vasco the Great), born at Vizeu, Portugal, in 1552. History painter, son of Francisco F.; flourished during the reign of Dom Sebastian, and, according to Portuguese testimony, was one of the greatest painters that ever lived. Said to have followed the school of Perugino, but seems rather to have formed himself under the influence of Albrecht Dürer. He has been variously cited as Ferdinand de Vizen, Fernandez Vasco do Casal, Gran Vasco de Vizeu, and Vasco Pereira. Works: Calvary, Pentecost, St. Peter, Baptism of Christ, Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, Thirteen Half-figures of Saints, Vizeu Cathedral.—The Christ on the Cross in the Misericordia at Oporto, attributed to Holbein, is also probably by him.—Raczynski, Les Arts en Portugal, 117-190, 297-308, 365-374, 399, 487, 505.

FERNANDO, DON, brother of Philip IV., portrait, Velasquez, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 6 ft. 3 in. × 3 ft. 6 in. About nineteen years old, full-length, standing, in hunting costume, holding a gun with both hands; a dog seated before him; landscape background. Painted about 1635; second manner. Etched by F. Goya; B. Maura; J. J. Martinez; C. Alabern; Guérard; J. Burnet.—Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Gal. Esp.; Curtis, 60; Madrazo, 615.

FERNANDO, SAN, Murillo, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 1 ft. 11 in. × 1 ft. 3 in. About thirty-five years old, three quarters left, wearing armour and an ermine mantle, kneels with hands joined in prayer; above, two cherubs draw aside a red curtain; a crown and sceptre on a red cushion beside him. Probably painted about the time of the canonization of King Ferdinand in 1671. Engraved by M. S. Carmona, L. F. Noseret; lithographed by A. G. Vilamil.—Curtis, 232; Madrazo, 480.

FERNBACH, FRANZ XAVER, born at Waldkirch, near Freiburg, Breisgau, in 1793, died in Munich in 1851. History painter, pupil of the Munich Academy; inventor of a process of encaustic painting, used by Julius Schnorr, in decorating the great hall of the royal palace at Munich.—Allgem. d. Biogr., vi. 713; Meyer, Conv. Lex., vi. 703.

FÉRON, FIRMIN ELOI, born in Paris, Dec. 1, 1802, died at Conflans-Sainte-Honorine (Seine-et-Oise) in 1876. History painter, pupil of Gros and of École des Beaux Arts, where in 1823 he obtained the second and in 1825 the grand prix de Rome; returned to Paris in 1833. Medal, 1st class, 1835; L. of Honour, 1841. Works: Damon and Pythias (1825); Hannibal crossing the Alps (1833), Marseilles Museum; The King's Promenade at Pierrefonds (1833); Raising of Lazarus (1835); Entry of Charles VIII. into Naples in 1495, Skirmish near Güntersdorf, 1805 (1837), Battle at Fornoue in 1495 (1838), Conquest of Rhodes in 1310 (1840), Battle of Arsur in 1191 (1844), Battle of Putaha, 1159, Battle of Hanau, 1813, Portraits of Bertrand du Guesclin (1835), of Marshals Raiz, Lohéac, Praslin, Noailles, of Counts Montgomery and d'Olivarez, of Henri de Lorraine II., Duc de Guise, Versailles Museum; Funeral of General Kleber (1843), Strassburg Museum; Victorious Gladiator dying in the Arena, Soldier of Pompey, Arras Museum.—Bellier de la Chavignerie, i. 544.

FERRAMOLA, FLORIANO (Fioravante), born latter half 15th century, died in Breseia, July 3, 1528. Venetian school. While Breseia was being sacked by Gaston de Foix (1512) he worked on regardless of the assault until he was surprised by the plunderers at his easel. Gaston compensated him for his losses and ordered a portrait of himself. Among Ferramola's few extant pictures, frescos, dated 1514, and parts of an organ screen (1518) in S. M. di Lovere, frescos in Casa Borgondio, Breseia, and a Christ carrying his Cross in the Tosi Collec-

FERRARA, LODOVICO DA. See Maczolino, Lodovico.

FERRARI, DEFENDENTE DE, flourished at Chivasso first half 16th century. Lombard school; history painter, perhaps pupil of Maerino d'Alba. Works: Altarpieces (1519–21), Cathedral of Ivrea; Christ in the Temple (1526), Stuttgart Gallery; Altarpiece (1530), Marriage of St. Catherine, Altarpiece in several compartments, Turin Gallery; Nativity with Saints (1531), Church of Ranverso; Pietà, Cathedral of Chivasso; Adoration of Shepherds, Bergamo Gallery; St. Catherine, Princess Charles of Darmstadt.—Morelli (Richter), 413; Turin Gal. Cat.; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 505.

FERRARI, FRANCESCO BIANCHI, called Il Frari, born at Modena (?) in 1447, died there, Feb. 8, 1510. Modenese school; history painter, enjoyed great reputation in Modena, where some excellent works of his are still to be found. Supposed to have been Correggio's first master. Works: Madonna enthroned with Angels and Saints, Louvre; Annunciation (1510, finished by Scaccieri in 1512), Modena Gallery.—Ch. Blanc, École lombarde; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 373; Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 346.

FERRARI, GAUDENZIO, born at Valduggia in 1481, died in Milan in 1546 or 1547. Lombard-Milanese school. Called by Vasari Gaudenzio Milanese; asserted pupil of Stefano Scotto, Girolamo Giovnone, and Perugino, whose influence is unmistakable in Gaudenzio's fine altarpiece (1514–15) in S. Gaudenzio, Novara. Affected also by Raphael, whose fellow-student he had been, and by Leonardo da Vinci, his later style acquired life and energy. He had considerable power of expression, and used colour harmoniously, especially in his frescos, but he was at times capricious and extravagant, and his compositions are often overcrowded and wanting in beauty of arrangement. He painted many works at Varallo, in 1504, 1513, 1524, and 1531, the earliest of which are in S. M. di Loreto, and S. Marco, the best in S. M. delle Grazie, where he decorated the choir with scenes from the Passion, and painted the Presentation in the Temple, Christ among the Doctors, and other subjects in chapels at the Sacro Monte. In 1516 he went to Rome and is said to have worked in the Farnesina with Raphael, after whose death he was associated with Giulio Romano and Perino del Vaga. Other frescos by Ferrari may be seen in the Brera, Milan, and in the Pilgrims' Church at Saronno, where he painted in 1534, as also a Flagellation in S. M. delle Grazie, Milan. His last fresco (1542) is in S. Giuliano, on an island in the Lago d'Orta. Among his pictures are the Baptism of Christ, S. Celso, Milan; Martyrdom of S. Catherine, Brera, Milan; Christ bearing the Cross, Cannobbio; Last Supper (1543, unfinished), S. M. della Passione, Milan; S. Peter and Donor, Entombment, Turin Gallery, Madonna, Oldenburg Gallery; St. George, and St. Anthony of Padua, Historical Society, New York.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 652; vi. 518; ed. painter, professor at Bologna Academy, won several medals. Works: Tasso reading his Poem to Leonora; Daughter of Jephtha; The brazen Serpent.

FERRARI, GREGORIO DE', born at Porto Maurizio in 1644, died at Genoa in 1726. Genoese school; history painter, pupil of Il Sarzana; studied in Parma works of Correggio, whom he imitated successfully; was much employed in Genoa, Turin, and Marseilles. Works: Apollo and the Muses, Plato and Aristotle with their Scholars, Genoa University; St. Michael, in Madonna delle Vigne, Genoa; others in Palazzo Balbi, Genoa. His son, Lorenzo (1680-1744), was a still better imitator of Correggio, and excelled in fresco; works in Palazzo Doria, Palazzo Carega, and in churches, Genoa.—Ch. Blanc, École gènoise; Lanzi (Roscoe), iii. 258, 281; Nagler, iv. 291.

FERRARI, LUCA, called Luca da Reggìo, born at Reggìo, in 1603, died at Padua in 1652. Venetian school; history painter, pupil of Guido Reni; lived and taught in Padua, among his pupils being Minorello and Cirillo. Works: Pietà, S. Antonio, Padua; The Plague (1630), The Dominicans, Padua; Magdalen, Death of Cleopatra, Tomyris with the Head of Cyrus, Estense Gallery, Modena; Painting crowned by Fame, Bordeaux Museum.—Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 267, 363.

FERRETTI, GIOVANNI DOMENICO, called da Imola, born at Florence in 1692. Florentine school; history painter, pupil of Giovanni Gioseffo del Sole; painted mostly for the churches and palaces of Florence, Pisa, Leghorn, Siena, Pistoja, and Imola. Among his best works are a Martyrdom of St. Bartholomew in S. Bartolommeo, Pisa, and the cupola painting in S. Filippo Neri, Pistoja.

FERRI, CIRO, born in Rome in 1634, died there, Sept. 13, 1689. Roman school; history painter, pupil of Pietro da Cortona, whose style he imitated so closely that it is difficult to distinguish his work from that of his master. He finished Cortona's frescos in the Palazzo Pitti, Florence, and other uncompleted works in Rome. His best original works are the ceiling of the Annunziata, baroque style, and the cupola of S. Agnese in the Piazza Navona, Rome, which he left unfinished at his death. Works: Repose in Egypt, Madonna with St. Martina, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Christ appearing to Magdalen, Vienna Museum; Marriage of the Virgin, Amsterdam Museum; Rape of Helen, Darmstadt Museum; St. Theresa, Oldenburg Gallery; David and Saul, Copenhagen Gallery; Christ on the Cross, Alexander reading Homer, Artist's portrait, Uffizi, Florence; Coriolanus and his Family, Roman Warrior, Estense Gallery, Modena; Vision of St. Catherine of Siena, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Triumph of Bacchus, Hampton Court.—Lanzi, i. 498; Ch. FICHERELLI, FELICE, born at San Gemignano in 1605, died in 1660. Florentine school; history painter, pupil of Jacopo da Empoli; called Felice Riposo from his indolence, but his few pictures are remarkable for elegance of design and harmony of colour. His copies of Perugino, Andrea del Sarto, and others have been mistaken for originals. Works: St. Anthony, S. Maria Nuova; Adam and Eve driven from Paradise, Palazzo Rinuccini, Florence; Tarquin and Lucretia, Dresden Gallery.—Lanzi (Roscoe), i. 219; Nagler, iv. 316.

FIEDLER, BERNHARD, born in Berlin, Nov. 23, 1816. Landscape and architecture painter, pupil of Berlin Academy, then of Gerst and of Krause. FINCHLEY, MARCH TO, William Hogarth, Foundling Hospital, London. The march of the Guards to Scotland in 1745. While the straggling vanguard are winding away to the horizon, the foreground is filled with the confusion incident to departure. The most prominent figure is a young and handsome Guardsman hopelessly embarrassed by the rival adieux of two ladies; a drummer is drowning his grief by a vigorous attack on his drum; an officer kisses a milkmaid, while a soldier pours her milk into his hat, and another steals the pie-man's wares while directing his attention to the episode. Painted in 1750; engraved by L. Sullivan. The picture was dedicated to the King of Prussia, who made a handsome acknowledgment of the honour.—Dobson, Hogarth, 70.

FINISTÈRE, EVENING AT, Jules Breton, John A. Mitchell, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; canvas, H. about 3 ft. × 4 ft. A party of white-hooded Brittany women near a hamlet at sunset. Painted in 1882; Seiney sale, New York, 1885.

FIORE, COLANTONIO DEL. See Colantonio del Fiore.

FIORE (Flore), JACOBELLO DEL, flourished 1400–1439. Venetian school.

FIORENZO DI LORENZO, born at Perugia about 1440–50, died after 1521. Umbrian school, probably a pupil of Benedetto Bonfigli. In 1472 he contracted to paint an Assumption of the Virgin, the principal parts of which are now in the Perugia Academy. Though the figures are of common type and the action is broken and exaggerated, the drawing is good and the execution careful. The influence of Perugino upon Fiorenzo shows itself in a fresco (1475)

March to Finchley, William Hogarth, Foundling Hospital, London.

Son of Francesco del Fiore, president in 1376 of the guild of painters in Venice, a position held also by Jacobello 1415–36. Painted in the method of the earlier Venetians; work marked by incorrectness of drawing, harshness of colour, and tawdriness of ornament and of drapery. His Lion of St. Mark (1415) in the Ducal Palace, Venice, his Madonna (1436) in the Venice Academy, and a large picture in the Sacristy of the Duomo at Ceneda, are fair specimens of his manner.—*C. & C., N. FLIGHT INTO EGYPT (Fr., Fuite en Egypte; It., Fuga in Egitto; Sp., Huida   Egipto; Ger., Flucht nach Egypten). The flight of Jesus, Mary, and Joseph into Egypt to escape the pursuit of Herod.

By Claude Lorrain, Dresden Museum; canvas, H. 3 ft. 3 in.  $\times$  4 ft. 4 in. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, is mounted upon an ass, which is preceded by an angel; behind, Joseph, leaning on his staff. The landscape, one of the most beautiful by the painter, has a cascade in the middleground, which forms a rivulet crossed by a bridge; in background, a city and mountains. Other figures, besides the Holy Family, are two travellers in antique costume, and a shepherd and shepherdess. From the Mazarin Collection. Another Flight into Egypt by Claude, engraved by Morel, is in the Ashburton Collection, London.

By Alexandre Decamps, private gallery,

Paris; canvas, H. 9 in.  $\times$  1 ft. 1 in. The Holy Family about to cross a torrent at evening; an angel leads by the bridle the ass upon which the Virgin and Child are sitting. Salon, 1850; Pereire sale (1872), 15,150 francs.

By Edwin Long, London; canvas, H. 8 ft.  $\times$  16 ft. Called by the painter Anno Domini. The Holy Family in foreground, the Virgin and Child seated upon an ass, beside which walks Joseph; beyond, issuing from the gate of an Egyptian temple in background, at the left of which the Pyramids are seen, marches a procession—minstrels followed by bearers of the golden image of Isis, by priests, by a Roman officer in a chariot, and by the sacred bull Apis. In the foreground, near the Holy Family, are a young lover fastening an amulet around the neck of his betrothed, a negro carrying for sale a tray of Egyptian gods, and a mother holding in her arms a sick child, before whose unconscious face three girls and a negro girl-slave hold up images of the gods.

By Holman Hunt. See Triumph of the Innocents.

By Murillo, Duchesse de Galliera, Paris; canvas, H. 7 ft.  $\times$  5 ft. 6 in. The Virgin, mounted on an ass walking to right, tenderly regards the Child, who lies with his head on her right arm; St. Joseph, in broad-brimmed hat and mantle, walks leading the animal: night scene—landscape of arid country with tree on left. First manner. Painted about 1648 for convent of La Merced Calzada, now the Seville Museum; carried off by Soult; sold at his sale for 51,500 fr.—C. Bermudez, ii. 59, Carta, 55; Ponz, Viage, ix. 107; Curtis, 167.

By Rubens, Louvre; wood, H. 2 ft. 6 in.  $\times$  3 ft. 3 in. Night scene, the stars and the moon reflected in the water of a river which the Holy Family are about to cross. Mary, holding Jesus in her arms, is seated upon an ass led by an angel, while a second angel flies at her right; Joseph, walking with his staff, turns and looks with anxiety at two Flight into Egypt, Murillo, Duchesse de Galliera.

Lowry. Same composition with changes, Cassel Gallery, to which it was returned in 1815 from Paris.

By Tintoretto, Scuola di S. Rocco, Venice; canvas. A lovely landscape, with the Madonna and St. Joseph pacing along a shady path on the banks of a river. The Virgin's head is very beautiful; the head of the ass is wonderfully painted.—Ruskin, Stones of Venice, iii. 328.

By Adrian van der Werff, Hague Museum; wood, H. 1 ft. 6 in. × 1 ft. 3 in.; signed, dated 1710. The Virgin, with Jesus in her arms, is seated upon an ass led by Joseph beside a stream, near which are trees and the ruins of a portico. Painted by the artist for his daughter, who sold it for 4,000 florins to J. van Schuylenburg, at The Hague, from whom it passed through several other hands to the Hague Museum. Carried to Paris under the empire; returned in 1815. Engraved by Avril in Musée français.—Filhol.

FOPPA, VINCENZO, the elder, born at Foppa, province of Pavia, died in Brescia in 1492. Lombard school; a disciple probably of Squarcione, but nothing known of him before his engagement in Milan in 1456, when he called himself a citizen of Brescia. In 1461 he was in Pavia, where he painted in 1462 frescos in the Carmine, and in 1465 a chapel in the Certosa. At a later date he worked in Savona and in Brescia. His earlier pictures show the prominent characteristics of the Paduan school, but in the course of years he shook off Mantegnesque peculiarities and gained the mastery which comes from long practice. Among his best extant works are the St. Sebastian, Brera, Milan, and the altarpiece in six panels in S.

shoulders; she holds in her left hand a kind of purse from which gold pieces drop, and in her right a sceptre and palms. Under her feet is the world, and from behind a winged boy grasps her hair, which floats in the wind. In some copies Fortune bears instead of a purse a crown. Carried to Paris in 1796; returned in 1815, and in Vatican until 1826.—Fillhol, vi. Pl. 397, Musée français, i.; Landon, viii. Pl. 32.

FORTUNE CHASE (Jagd nach dem Glück), Rudolf Friedrich Henneberg, National Gallery, Berlin; canvas, H. 6 ft. 3 in. × 12 ft. 6 in. A youth, in the costume of a German nobleman of the 16th century, chases on horseback the phantom of Fortune, who flees before him strewing gold in the path and holding up a crown; the Devil, who accompanies him, changes into Death, and with a scornful grin unfolds his flag; at a bridge leading over a ravine lies the youth's guardian angel, over whom he has ridden, hiding her face on the ground; in background, beyond the ravine, the battlements of a mediæval town.

By Michelangelo da Caravaggio, Louvre; canvas, H. 3 ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. 3 in. A gypsy holding the right hand of a young man elegantly clad, who appears to listen attentively. Bellori says that Caravaggio painted this picture to prove that one can be a good painter without having studied the antique and Raphael, his theory being that the exact imitation of nature should be the sole aim of art. Collection of Louis XIV. Engraved by E. Andran.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Fillhol, viii. Pl. 537; Cab. Crozat, ii. Pl. 93.

By Sir Joshua Reynolds, Duke of Marlborough, Blenheim; canvas. Lady Charlotte Spencer, as a little gypsy girl, telling the fortune of her brother, Lord Henry Spencer.

By Sir Joshua Reynolds, Earl Amherst, Knowle Park, near Sevenoaks, Kent. FORTUNE, WHEEL OF, Burne-Jones, Arthur Balfour, Esq., M.P., London; large upright picture. The goddess Fortune, a tall, sad figure, clad in grayish-blue, stands at left, turning round in a listless way the terrible wheel, on which are bound three nude figures, the laurel-crowned poet, the sceptred king, and the slave, alike cowed and wretched, the victims of a cruel and all-powerful chance. Grosvenor Gallery, 1883.

FORTUNY Y CARBO, MARIANO, born at Reus in Catalonia, June 11, 1838, died in Rome, Nov. 21, 1874. Genre painter, pupil of Palau, of Claudio Lorenzalez, and of the Barcelona Academy, where he won the prix de Rome in 1856. At Rome, which became thenceforth his principal residence, he studied Raphael and made sketches of Roman life. In 1859 he was sent to Morocco by the government to paint the incidents of General Prim's campaign, and during this and a second visit painted a large picture of the Battle of Tefuan, besides making many sketches of Moorish life. In 1866 he went to Paris, where through Zamacois he entered into business relations with Goupil; and then to Madrid, where (1867) he married the daughter of Madrazo, director of the Madrid Museum, and studied the works of Velasquez, Ribera, and Goya. With the exception of a year in Paris (1869-70) and three years in Spain, he spent the rest of his life in Rome. His vigorous and original style, correct drawing, and fine colour gained him a great reputation, and the auction sale of the contents of his studio after his death brought 800,000 fr. ($160,000). FOUQUIÈRES (Foequier), JACQUES, born in Antwerp about 1600, died in Paris in 1659. Flemish school; landscape painter, pupil of Joost de Momper and of Velvet Brueghel, and perhaps also of Rubens, for whom he painted backgrounds; master of the guild at Antwerp in 1614. Invited by the Elector Palatine Frederick V., he went about 1616 or 1618 to Heidelberg to decorate the castle, and in 1621 to Paris, where his art found much favour in the eyes of Louis XIII., who employed him to paint views of the chief French cities. Jealous of the favour shown to this painter, Poussin left France. Afterwards Fouquières fell into disgrace, and died in great misery. He was the master of Philippe de Champaigne. Works: Stag Hunt, Horseman, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; A Hunt, Copenhagen Gallery; Landscape (1620), Valenciennes Museum; do. in Bordeaux, Grenoble, Nantes, Darmstadt Museums, and Historical Society, New York.—Ch. FRANCESCA DA RIMINI, Alexandre Cabanel. See Paolo and Francesca.

By Dominique Ingres, Angers Museum ; canvas. Illustration of the mediæval story of Francesca da Rimini, as related by Dante and Boccaccio. Francesca, the wife of Giovanni Malatesta, called from his lameness from birth Gianciotto (commonly made into Lancelotto), fell in love with her handsome brother-in-law, Paolo Malatesta, a liaison which ended in the death of the two at the hands of the enraged Gianciotto. In the picture the couple are represented as just having finished reading the story of Lancelot and Guinevere. The book has fallen from Francesca's hands ; Paolo, bending forward, gives her the fatal kiss, and Lancelotto, lifting the drapery, advances with drawn sword to take his revenge. Painted in Rome in 1819 ; bought by M. Turpin de Crissé, who bequeathed it to Angers Museum. Original sketch, Mme. Montett-Gilibert. Lithographed by A. Lecomte, 1834. Replica Painted by Ingres for Prince Salerno, Naples. —Larousse, xiii. 1218.

By Ary Scheffer, Sir Richard Wallace, Manchester House ; canvas (Dante, Inferno). Salon of 1835, under title : Dante and Virgil encountering in Hell the Spirits of Francesca da Rimini and Paolo. Francesca, her eyes closed, her hair dishevelled, hangs tenderly on the neck of Paolo as they float through the air, while the two poets contemplate the touching scene in silence. Painted for Duc d'Orléans ; bought in 1853 by Prince Demidoff for 43,000 fr. ; Demidoff sale (1870) to Lord Hertford for 100,000 fr. Engraved by Calamatta ; etched by Veyrasset. Replica, painted 1855, exhibited 1859, owned by Mme. Marjolin, the artist's daughter.—Larousse, xiii. 1218.

By George Frederick Watts, London ; canvas, H. 5 ft. 4 ft. 1 in. Francesca and Paolo, phantoms pale and death-like, clasped in a loving embrace, are swept onward before the wind against a background of clouds and fiery rain. Painted in 1879. Exhibited in New York in 1884.

FRANCESCA, PIERO DELLA, born at Borgo San Sepolero in 1416 (?), died there, Oct. 12, 1492. Umbrian school. Real name Pietro di Benedetto degli Franceschi ; first master unknown. In 1439 he assisted Domenico Veneziano in painting the frescos in S. M. Nuova, Florence, where he was brought into contact with many eminent painters, and laid the foundation of his great scientific knowledge of linear and aerial perspective. In the projection of shadows, the perfecting of mediums for oil painting, the delineation of architecture in backgrounds, and the correct balance of light and shade, he had few rivals. So perfect was his rendering of nature, that had he been guided by a principle of selection in form, he would have ranked with the greatest Italian painters. Between 1447 and 1452 Piero worked at Loreto, and at Rimini for Sigismund Pandolfo Malatesta, for whom he painted, in the Chapel of the Relics, S. Francesco kneeling before his patron saint, with two couchant greyhounds at his heels. The fresco, dated 1451, is an admirable piece of quattrocento work. We next find Piero at Arezzo painting the Legend of the Cross around the choir of S. Francesco, between 1453 and 1454, and then at Borgo San Sepolero, employed upon an altarpiece on panel for the Confraternity of the Misericordia, which still exists in the Church of the Hospital, formerly occupied by the Brothers. Other works by this painter in his native town are a fresco of the Resurrection, in the Monte Pio, and another of St. Louis (1460), in the Municipal Palace. His Baptism of Christ, National Gallery, London, is pure in outline, and, like all his works, most carefully elaborated in every detail. In same gallery are a Nativity, portrait of Isotta da Rimini, and portrait of a Lady. In 1469 Piero went to Urbino, where he painted a Flagellation, now in the Cathedral, and an Apotheosis, with portraits of the Duke and his wife, Battista Sforza. The well-known profile portraits of this same ducal pair, in the Uffizi Gallery, are masterpieces of their kind, painted about 1472. Piero was the author of a highly esteemed Treatise on Perspective, the MS. of which belongs to the Saibanti Library, Verona.—Vasari, ed. FRANCESCHI, PAOLO (Paul Francheoys, Francesco Paolo de' Freschi, Paolo Fiammingo), born at Antwerp in 1540, died in Venice in 1596. Flemish-Venetian school; landscape, animal, history, and portrait painter, pupil and assistant of Tintoretto in Venice, whither he went when very young, and where he acquired reputation as one of the best landscape painters of the time. By order of the Venetian Senate he painted the large picture in the Ducal Palace, and for the Emperor Rudolph II. two Allegories. Works: Pope Alexander III. blessing the Doge Ziani, Ducal Palace, Venice; Descent from the Cross, St. John preaching, Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel, S. Maria dei Frari, ib.; Landscape with Prodigal Son, Academy, ib.; Pietà, Old Pinakothek, Munich.—Pétis, Les Artistes belges à l'étranger, i. 377.

FRANCESCHINI, MARCANTONIO, Cavaliere, born at Bologna in 1648, died there in 1729. Bolognese school; history painter, pupil of Gio. Maria Galli, and of Cignani, whose assistant he became. Called to Genoa, in 1702, to decorate the Hall of Public Counsel with pictures on the history of the Republic (destroyed by fire in 1777); invited to Rome by Pope Clement XI., in 1711, to Genoa in 1714, and to Crema in 1716, to execute fresco paintings. He was the head of a school in Northern Italy similar to that of Cortona in Lower Italy; adhered at first to manner of Cignani, but later developed a remarkable style of his own. Works: Magdalen, Birth of Adonis, Dresden Gallery; Charity, Magdalen, St. Borromeo during the Plague in Milan, Museum, Vienna; Venus and Cupid, Czernin Gallery, ib.; Jacob and Rachel, and others, Liechtenstein Gallery, ib.; Joseph and Potiphar's Wife, Brunswick Museum; Diana at the Chase, Copenhagen Gallery; S. FRANCHOYS (François), LUCAS, the elder, born at Mechlin, Jan. 23, 1574, died there, Sept. 16, 1643. Flemish school; history and portrait painter, master of the guild in 1599, and elected dean six times; went to Paris and Madrid, in both of which places he was made painter to the king, and returned to Mechlin in 1605. Works: Descent of the Holy Ghost, St. John's, Mechlin; Male Portrait (1619), Museum, ib.; Dead Christ on his Mother's Lap, St. Bavon's, Ghent.—Biog. nat. de Belgique, vii. 235; Michiels, viii. 223.

FRANCHOYS, LUCAS, the younger, born at Mechlin, June 28, 1616, died there, April 3, 1681. Flemish school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Lucas Franchoys, the elder; then pupil of Rubens at Antwerp, where he remained some years after his master's death; spent several years in France, in favour at court, before returning to Mechlin, where he became master of the guild in 1655, and dean in 1663. Works: Pope Honorius sanctioning the Rule of the Carmelites, St. Onophrius fed by Angels in the Desert, Prophet Elijah, St. Paul the Hermit, St. Andrew healing the Blind, The Virgin followed by Carmelites, Christ in his Mother's Lap, Museum, Mechlin; St. Roch healing the Plague stricken, St. John's, ib.; Martyrdom of St. Lawrence and of St. John, Holy Family, St. Catharine's, ib.; Decapitation of St. John (1650), St. Quentin's, Tournay; Resurrection (1657), Cathedral, ib.; Education of the Virgin, The Virgin appearing to St. Simon Stock (both attributed to Lucas the elder), Antwerp Museum.—Biog. nat. de Belgique, vii. 236; Kramm, ii. 510; Michiels, viii. 227; ix. 239; Neefs, Hist. de la peint. à Malines, i. 347; Van den Branden, 809.

Works: On the Meuse; Strand of Scheveningen; Riva dei Schiavoni; Lake of Killarney; Harbour of Calais; Wreck of the Amphitrite.

FRANCIA

FRANCIA, FRANCESCO, born in Bologna in 1450, died there, Jan. 5, 1517.

Bolognese school. Real name Francesco di Marco di Giacomo Raibolini; son of poor parents, apprenticed to a goldsmith, matriculated in 1482, became steward of the guild in 1483, and afterwards Master of the Mint under Bentivoglio. He was painter, engraver, and medallist, as well as goldsmith. His master was Lorenzo Costa, but he may have studied under Marco Zoppo. His Madonna, Berlin Museum, and his St. Stephen, Palazzo Borghese, Rome, are examples of his pre-Peruginesque manner, which show the hand of the goldsmith trained to careful finish and precision. In 1490 Francia had become the ablest draughtsman and master of composition in North Italy. An Umbrian character, derived from the study of Perugino's works, shows itself from this time; as in his fine Madonna with Saints, Nativity (1499), Madonna of St. George, Annunciation (1500), Bologna Gallery; Madonna with Angels and Saints (1499), S. Jacopo Maggiore, Bologna; Madonna with St. Joseph, Dudley Gallery, London; The Deposition, Parma Gallery; Madonna with Angels (doubtful), Madonna in Adoration, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Madonna with Saints (1502), Holy Family, Berlin Museum; Madonna, do. with Saints and Angels, Hermitage, St. Petersburg. Francia's third manner, uniting Umbrian softness with Florentine energy and power, was influenced by Raphael, whom he may have seen in 1505 or 1506 at Bologna, with whom he corresponded, and for whom he had a deep admiration. His portraits show a gradual change from the style of Perugino to that of Raphael, and the frescos by Fran-cia (1509) in S. Cecilia, Bologna, are Raphaellesque. Other works are: Coronation of the Virgin, Duomo, Ferrara; Annunciation, Brera, Milan; do., Gallery Estense, Modena; Assumption, S. Frediano, Lucca; Pietà, Virgin enthroned with Saints, and Madonna with Saints, National Gallery, London; Baptism of FRANCIA, GIACOMO DI FRANCESCO, born before 1486, died in 1557. Bolognese school. Was the most noted, as a painter, of Francesco Francia's sons. In the fresco of the Baptism of St. Valerian, Oratory of S. Cecilia, Bologna, by Giacomo, the figures are lifeless, coarse in outline, and of short proportions. His Martyrdom of St. Cecilia, ib., was probably painted after his father's design. Other works by Giacomo are: Christ on the Cross adored by Saints, Madonna with Saints (1526), Saints and the Painter, Bologna Gallery; Angels, S. Petronius, Bologna; Virgin and Saints (1544), Brera, Milan.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 574; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 558; Lavice, 12, 150.

FRANCIA, GIOVAMBATTISTA, born June 13, 1533, died May 13, 1575. Bolognese school. Son of Giulio and grandson of Francesco Francia; a poor painter, though a rich man, none of whose works can be authenticated. Many inferior pictures which pass under the name of his grandfather, Francesco Francia, may safely be attributed to him.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 574; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 558.

Bolognese school, son of Francesco Francia. The St. Margaret and the Dragon, signed and dated July 10, 1518, in the church of the Almo Collegio di Spagna, Bologna, is a joint work of Giulio and Giacomo. The only picture by Giulio alone is a Descent of the Holy Ghost, Bologna Gallery.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 574; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 558; Gualandi, 64.

FRANCIS I., portrait, Titian, Louvre; canvas, H. 3 ft. 6½ in. × 2 ft. 11 in. Painted in 1533 from a medal, for Titian probably never saw the king. Original in Palazzo Giustiniani, Padua. Titian painted a third, which Vasari saw in the palace of Urbino. Engraved by G. E. Petit; J. B. Massard; M. Leroux.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 437; C. & C., Titian, i. 383; Ridolfi, Maraviglio, i. 262; Cab. Crozat, ii. Pl. 142; Filhol, vi. Pl. 431; Musée français, ii; Mündler, 209; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

FRANCIS OF ASSISI, ST., Murillo, Seville Museum; canvas, H. 9 ft. × 6 ft. The Saint, standing with his right foot on a globe, embraces the crucified Saviour, who has released his right hand from the cross to place it on the shoulders of the Saint; at right, two cherubs in clouds hold an open folio. In his vaporoso (vaporous) or lust manner. Painted about 1676 for Capuchin Convent, Seville. Engraved by M. Gutierrez, Mme. Soyer (outline); lithographed by Jacott; etched by L. Flameng. Repetition, George Salting, London; sketch, Henry G. Bohm, Twickenham, Middlesex.—Curtis, 234.

FRANCIS OF ASSISI, ST., or LA PORCIÚNCULA, Murillo, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 6 ft. 9 in. × 4 ft. 9 in.; figures a little less than life-size. The Saint, kneeling on right before an altar placed on left, looks up to the Saviour who is seated on clouds, one hand in benediction, the other supporting a cross; the Virgin is seated on the right, with the left hand extended; above, heads and cherubs; beneath the Saviour, three cherubs; all showering roses on St. Francis. In the painter's second or calido (warm) manner. Appraised in 1834 at 70,000 reals.—Curtis, 234; Madrazo, 471.

By Murillo, Heirs of the Infant Don Sebastian, Pau, France; canvas, H. 14 ft. 1 in. × 9 ft. 8 in. The Saint, kneeling at left at an altar placed in centre, with outstretched arms, looks up to the Saviour, seated on clouds above the altar, who supports with his left hand a cross and extends his right in benediction; on the left, the Virgin, kneeling on clouds, intercedes with her Son for the grace of Jubilee of the Porciúncula, whence called also La Porciúncula; above the altar, a group of cherubs scatter on the Saint roses which have sprung from the thorns he has used as a scourge; a lay-brother faintly seen on the left of the altar; above, many angels and cherubs. Painted about 1676 for Capuchin Convent, Seville. Given to D. Joaquín Bejarano for restoring church and its pictures after French occupation; sold for 18,000 reals to D. José de Madrazo, from whom Infant Don Sebastian bought it for 90,000 reals. Lithographed by V. Camaron.—Palomino, iii. 422; G. de Leon, ii. 260; Ford, Handbook, 708; Curtis, 233.

FRANCIS BORGIA, ST., Velasquez, Stafford House, London; about 5 ft. 10 in. × 4 ft. 2 in.; eight figures, life-size. St. Francis, in white dress, with plumed hat in hand, presents himself to St. Ignatius Loyola, who, in black dress, advances to receive him; behind former, two attendants and head of a black horse; behind latter, three priests in a doorway. Captured in Spain by Soult, who sold it (1835), with Murillo's Abraham and Angels and Prodigal Son, to Duke of Sutherland for 500,000 francs. Copy in Chapel of S. Francisco Borgia, Church of Logroño.—Stirling, ii. 678; Curtis, 11.

FRANCIS XAVIER, ST., Murillo, John S. W. Erle-Drax, Olantigh Towers, Kent, England; canvas, figures full-length, life-size. The Saint kneeling with eyes upraised; a stream of light falls on his breast, from which issues a flame; in background, group of Indians in a landscape. Belonged to D. Francisco Artier, from whom purchased about 1809 by Mr. Campbell, Buchanan's rious positions around; behind the multitude rises a splendid temple with idols, one of which is falling upon its affrighted worshippers; above, in clouds, the Virgin with a chalice, surrounded by angels bearing a cross, in a stream of celestial light. Painted for Jesuits' Church, Antwerp; bought in 1774 by Empress Maria Theresa for 18,000 florins. Original sketch also in Vienna Museum. Engraved by Marinus; J. Blaschke.—Smith, ii. 18; Gal. de Vienne, iii. Pl. 136.

FRANCKEN, CONSTANTYN, born at Antwerp, baptized April 5, 1661, died there, Jan. 12, 1717. Battle painter, grandson of Frans Francken, the younger; went to France at an early age, worked for years in Paris and Versailles, and after his return to Antwerp entered the guild in 1695. Works: Battle of Eekeren, Retreat of General Marten van Rossum, City Hall, Antwerp.—Van den Branden, 978.

FRANCKEN, FRANS, the elder, born at Hérentals about 1540, died in Antwerp, Oct. 6, 1616. Flemish school; history painter, brother of Ambrosius the elder; pupil of Frans Floris; obtained the citizenship of Antwerp in 1567, and in the same year was admitted as free master to the guild of St. Luke, of which in 1588–89 he was the dean.

Works: Eteocles and Polynices, Museum, Antwerp; Triptych, with Jesus among Doctors (1587), Cathedral, ib.; Burial of Christ, Jesus appearing to Mary Magdalen, St. Jacob's Church, ib.; Destruction of Pharaoh's Army, Blenheim, England; History of Esther, Louvre; Flight into Egypt, Christ led to Golgotha (1597), An Allegory, Creation of Eve, Creation of Animals (landscape of last two by J. FRANCKEN, FRANS, the younger, called Don Francisco, born in Antwerp, May 6, 1581, died there, May 6, 1642. Flemish school; history, landscape, and interior painter, son and pupil of Frans Francken, the elder; went at an early age to Italy, and studied after the old masters in Venice, where he is said to have acquired his surname. Master of the guild at Antwerp in 1605, dean in 1615. Painted the foreground figures in pictures of Velvet Brueghel, Neefs the elder, and Josse de Momper. His various modes of signature have caused the greatest difficulties in attributing certain works to him or to his father, but it seems now sufficiently certain that in his father's lifetime he signed "den jon. F. F.," after the death of the elder Frans (1616) signed his name without addition, occasionally prefixed "Do. Ds." (Don, Dominus?), but also still "Den jon.," and after 1630, "D., Do.," or "D'ouden" (the elder), as then his son, Frans III., may have begun to work independently. He is the most famous of this numerous family of ar-himself after Rubens and Van Dyck; master of the guild in 1611. His portrait by Van Dyck is in the Amsterdam Museum. Works: Christ among the Doctors, Descent of the Holy Ghost, Bruges Museum. Copies after Rubens: Visitation of Mary, Assumption, Adoration of the Shepherds, ib.; Decapitation of St. John, Brussels Museum; Christ and Magdalen (in Landscape by Velvet Brueghel), Rotterdam Museum; Heads of Seven Apostles (attributed), Dresden Museum.—Van den Branden, 339, 622; Kramm, ii. 508; Fétis, Cat. du Mus. Royal, 322.

FRANCKEN, HIERONYMUS (Jerome), the elder, born at Hérentals in 1542, died in Paris (?), May 1, 1610. Flemish school; history and portrait painter, brother of Frans and Ambrosius the elder; pupil of Frans Floris, went to France, became portrait painter to Henry III., and, continuing in favour at court under Henry IV. and Louis XIII., was called the painter of kings. Visited Italy either before or after having first settled in Paris. In 1590 he retired to Antwerp, where he attracted all the pupils of his old master, Floris, lately deceased, but soon returned to Paris. Works: Abdication of Charles V., National Museum, Amsterdam; Charles V. taking Orders, Lille Museum; Decapitation of St. John the Baptist (1600), Dresden Gallery; Assembly of the Sea-Gods, Stockholm Museum.—Biog. nat. de Belgique, vii. 244; Jal., 612; Michiels, v. 317; vi. 312; Van den Branden, 340.

FRANCKEN, HIERONYMUS, the younger, born in Antwerp, baptized Sept. 12, 1578, died there, March 17, 1623. Flemish school, son of Frans the elder; historical figure painter, pupil of Ambrosius Francken; master of the guild in 1607. Works: Horatius Cocles at the Sublician Bridge (1620), Antwerp Museum; Esther before Ahasuerus.

FRANCKEN, JOHANNES, born in Antwerp about 1500 (?). Flemish school; history and landscape painter, supposed pupil of Jacob van Utrecht; seems to have left Antwerp at an early period, and in 1550 settled in Naples, where he was called Franco, and where Wenceslaus Cobergher lived with him, and married his daughter. Work: Adoration of the Magi (1556), Franciscan Church, Naples.—Biog. nat. de Belgique, vii. 253; Immerzeel, i. 247.

FRANCKEN, P. H. (H. P.?), flourished about the middle of 17th century. Flemish school; history painter, recalling in his works the school of Rubens. Works: St. Francis of Assisi, The Poisoned Cup, St. Louis as a Crusader, St. Anthony of Padua (1652), Antwerp Museum.—Cat. du Musée d'Anvers (1874), 171.

FRANCKEN, SEBASTIAAN. See Francx.

FRANCO, BOLOGNESE, end of 13th and early part of 14th century. Bolognese school; mentioned by Dante as a miniaturist in connection with Oderisio (Purgatory, cx. 79). Malvasia says that he founded in Bologna the school out of which arose Vitale, Lorenzo, Simone, Jacopo, and Cristofano, but there are no authentic records of him. Perhaps a pupil of Oderigi d'Agobbio, when that painter was working at Bologna in 1268. A Madonna Enthroned, in the collection of Prince Ercolani, Bologna, bears his name and the date 1312. It has been repainted, but it seems a picture of the 14th century with some of the affected grace of movement peculiar to the artists of Gubbio and Fabriano.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 206; Siret, 333; Cibo, Scuola Umbra, 12; Malvasia, Felsina Pittrice, i. 25.

FRANCO, GIOVANNI BATTISTA, born at Udine in 1510, died in Venice in 1580. Umbrian school; family name Semolei, according to Zanetti. Went early to Rome and studied works of Michelangelo; became a very able designer, but was less successful as a colourist. He executed frescos in Rome, Urbino, Venice (1556), and other places, and made many designs for architectural decorations. Was also an engraver, and Bartsch enumerates ninety-three of his etchings. Works: Battle of Montemurlo, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Baptism of Christ, S. Francesco della Vigna, Venice, Madonna, S. Giobbo, ib.—Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 317; Bartsch, xvi. 111.

FRANÇOIS, PIERRE JOSEPH CÉLESTIN, born at Namur, March 19, 1759, died in 1851. Flemish school; history painter, pupil of Andreas Lens; visited Italy in 1778–81 and 1789–92, and France and Germany repeatedly. Among his pupils were Navez, Decaisne, and Madou. Order of Leopold in 1845. Works: St. Germain blessing St. Geneviève (Church du Sablon), and Four Evangelists (Church des Minimes), Brussels; Marius amid the Ruins of Carthage, National Gallery, ib.; Sylla Tiburinus, Portrait of Mme. Du Barry, Arenberg Gallery, ib.; Assumption, Ghent Academy; Physician consulted by two old Women, Haarlem Museum.—Immerzeel, i. 251; Kramm, ii. 511.

FRANK, JULIUS, born in Munich in 1826. History painter; son of the glass painter, Michael Sigismund Frank (died 1847), pupil of Schraudolph. Works: St. George, Dünkelsbühl; The Good Shepherd, The Guardian Angel, Saalfelden; Mater Dolorosa, St. Sebastian, Cycle of wall paintings from sacred and profane history of Bavaria, National Museum, Munich; do. from New Testament, Philippine Congregation in Gostyn, Posen. Many easel pictures, chiefly Madonnas.—Müller, 182.

FRANQUE, JEAN PIERRE and JOSEPH, twin brothers, born at Buis (Drôme) in 1774. French school; history painters, pupils of David, enjoyed reputation under the empire, and often worked conjointly. Pierre painted pictures of large dimensions in the style of his master, and was employed at the Louvre and in making copies and restorations in Versailles Museum. Medal, 2d class, 1812; L. of Honour, 1836. Joseph went to Naples in 1813, where he became professor at the Academy. Works by Pierre: Battle of Zürich (1812, with Joseph, gold medal); Josabeth saving Joash from Fury of Athaliah (1817), Nimes Museum; Conversion of St. Paul (1819), Dijon Museum; Angelica and Medor (1822), Besançon Museum; Jupiter and Juno on Mount Ida (1822), Montauban Museum; Crossing the Rhine (1835); Siege of Lille (1836), Battle of Lens (1841, with Alaux), Versailles Museum. Works by Joseph: France in Anarchy appearing to Bonaparte on Banks of Nile (formerly in Luxembourg Museum).—Larousse, viii. 787.

FRANQUELIN, JEAN AUGUSTIN, born in Paris, Sept. 1, 1798, died there, Jan. 4, 1839. French school; history and genre painter, pupil of Regnault. Medal, 2d class, 1827. Works: Christ leaving the Temple (1819), Tours Cathedral; Death of Malvina (1819), Fontainebleau Palace; Daughter of Jairus (1822), Amiens Museum; Baptism of Christ (1824), Préfecture de la Seine, Paris; Conquest of Brisach, 1703, Versailles Museum; Young Woman with her Child and a Dog, Grenoble Museum; Mother at Cradle of sick Child, Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Braggella, the Sailor's Wife (after Byron), Italian Wilkie's influence. Some of his pictures have been engraved. Works: Deoch-andornis (1830); Village Sign-Painter (1837); Sir Walter Scott dining with a Blue-Gown Beggar (1844); The Glass of Ale; Robinson Crusoe reading the Bible to Friday; Last Moments of Mary Queen of Scots.—Redgrave; Art Journal (1865), 125.

FRASER, ALEXANDER, born in Linlithgowshire, Scotland; contemporary. Landscape painter, member of R.S.A. Studio in Edinburgh. Paints Scottish scenery attractively. Works: At Barmleuth, National Gallery, Edinburgh; Glen Arnan, Trout Stream in Highlands, Springtime at Dingleton (1878).

FRASER, CHARLES, born in Charleston, S. C., in 1782, died there in 1860. After practising law several years, devoted himself in 1818 to art, and became a successful painter, especially of miniatures, though he also painted historical and genre pictures and landscapes. In 1857 a collection of his works was exhibited in Charleston, including 313 miniatures and 139 other pieces. He numbered among his sitters many prominent people.

FRAUSTADT, F. A., born at Lauchstädt, near Halle, April 9, 1821. History painter, pupil in Dresden of Bendemann, Rietschel, and Schnorr; has lived since 1857 in Antwerp. His large compositions glorify the Nibelung Saga and form a kind of cycle. Formerly painted many portraits. Works: Krimhilde's Dream; How Siegfried was betrayed; Siegfried's Farewell; How Hagen did not rise before Krimhilde; Tetzels Indulgence Sermon; Rope Dancers; Interior in Time of the Merovingians; Goths in Rome; Portrait of Composer Grétry (1880).

FREDERICK BARBAROSSA, DEAD, Karl Wilhelm Kolbe, National Gallery, Berlin; canvas, H. 7 ft. 4 in. × 10 ft. 5 in. Upon a high bier, formed of lances and carried by four knights, the dead king lies in state, crown on head and sword in hand, surrounded by banners and escorted by Crusaders mounted and on foot; preceding him a bishop with crosier, accompanied by monks and ministrants with censers; in background, the battle has begun around the city of Antioch, from which smoke is rising. Bought in 1869 from the artist's bequest.

Works: Minnesinger (1821); Family of Old Knight (1827); Politicians at Coffee-House, Girl Resting, Württemberg Costumes (1830); Village Fair (1827); Kirmess (1833); Laughing Peasant, Suabian Girl braiding her Hair (1834); Summer and Winter (1835); nine portraits of distinguished Nurembergers, City Hall, Nuremberg.—Andresen, iv. 280.

FUESSL, WILHELM, born at Zürich in 1830. Portrait painter, pupil of Städel

Institute, Frankfort, then in Munich of Berdellé and in Paris of Couture; also studied in Rome. Copied several pictures by old masters for the Schack Gallery in Munich, where he lives. Gold medal, Munich, 1869.—Müller, 189.

FÜGER, FRIEDRICH HEINRICH, born in Heilbronn, Württemberg, Dec. 8, 1751, died in Vienna, Nov. 5, 1818. German school; history and portrait painter, pupil in Stuttgart of Guibal and in Leipsic of Oeser. In 1774 he went to Vienna and in 1776 to Rome, where he studied the Carracci and Domenichino, as well as Raphael Mengs and Battoni. In 1782 he was patronized by Count Lamberg, the Austrian ambassador at Naples, and executed paintings for the King. The next year he was appointed vice-director of the Vienna Academy, and in 1795 director, which post he held until 1806, when he became director of the Belyedere Gallery. Works: Death of Caesar; Farewell of Coriolanus, Czernin Gallery, Vienna; Death of Germanicus (1789), Vienna Academy; Prometheus, Count Zinzendorf, Vienna; Ariadne at Naxos, Joseph II. as Ally of Catherine of Russia, Field-Marshal Laudon as Conqueror of Belgrade, Mrs. de Witt in Greek Costume, Philip at Bed of Alexander, Erasistratus at Bed of Antiochus (1788-90); portraits of Joseph II. FUGITIVES, Léon Gloize; private gallery. People are escaping from Athens during a siege by being let down from the walls at night by means of ropes. Several groups are represented suspended in mid-air, with a shadowy abyss below, and the city walls, lighted by the moon-beams, behind them. Salon, 1877.

FÜHRICH, JOSEF, Ritter VON, born at Kratzau, Bohemia, Feb. 9, 1800, died in Vienna, March 13, 1876. German school; history painter, pupil of Prague Academy under Bergler, went in 1826 to Rome, where he joined the German Pre-Raphaelites, and assisted Overbeck in painting the frescos in the Villa Massimi. Called to Vienna in 1834 as custodian of the Academy Gallery, he was appointed professor at the Academy in 1841. In 1854-61 he was occupied in painting frescos in the Altlerchenfeld Church, a monumental work, for which he was knighted and decorated with the order of the Iron Crown. Gold medal in 1841, member of Munich and Berlin Academies; Commander of Order of Francis Joseph in 1872. Works: Death of Otto von Wittelsbach (1817); St. Ivan found by Duke Borivoj (1817); Christ on his Way to Mount of Olives; Joshua before Jericho; The Jews Mourning; St. Adelheid and Francis of Assisi; Incarnation; Boaz and Ruth; St. Guldula; St. Filomena; Mary and Joseph on Journey to Bethlehem; Christ in Glory; Christ asleep in the Ship during Storm; Moses receiving Commandments from God, Apparition of Fighting Horsemen frighten-

Lauriat, Boston.—Harper's Mag., Sept., 1884.

FUNGAI, BERNARDINO, born about 1460, died in 1516. Sienese school; pupil of Benvenuto di Giovanni or of Matteo da Siena; was associated with Giacomo Pacchiarotti and influenced by Pinturicchio. He was one of the last representatives of the old school. In his Coronation of the Virgin (1500?) in S. M. de' Servi, the figures are rigid, awkward in movement, and stiffly draped. His Madonna and Saints (1512) in the Carmine, Siena, is better proportioned, though less characteristic than the Coronation in Church of the Madonna di Fontegiusta, Siena, and the Assumption in the Siena Academy. His best and perhaps his latest work is a Christ between SS. Francis and Jerome in the same gallery, a weak, rosy-coloured picture, carefully and flatly treated.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 372; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 173; Burekhardt, 685; Rio, i. 144.

FUNK, HEINRICH, born at Herford, Westphalia, Dec. 12, 1807, died in Stuttgart, Nov. 22, 1877. Landscape painter, pupil of his father and, from 1829, of Düsseldorf Academy; moved in 1836 to Frankfurt, and was from 1854-76 professor at the Stuttgart art-school. Gold medal in Rouen. Order of Frederic in 1870, order of the Crown in 1873. Works: Ruin of Castle (1834), National Gallery, Berlin; Lower Inn Valley,

Ruin on Lake, Stadel Gallery, Frankfort; Landscape in Storm (1869), Cologne Museum; View in the Eifel, Stuttgart Gallery; Summer Day on the Rhine; Autumn Landscape after Storm; Urach Waterfall; Wood Landscape in Brühl Valley; Outlook on Chiem Lake; Chestnut Wood near Meran; Chillon Castle in Approaching Storm.—*Allgem. d. FURINI, FRANCESCO, born in Florence about 1600, died there in 1649. Florentine school; pupil of his father, Filippo Furini, and successively of Passignano, Bilevelt, and Matteo Rosselli. Afterwards studied works of Guido in Rome. On return to Florence won considerable reputation for painting the nude, generally choosing subjects in which he could introduce the forms of women and children. His flesh tints are very mellow and tender. Among his works are, Magdalen in the Desert, Siena Academy; do. (2), Vienna Museum; Daughters of Lot, Madrid Museum; Venus and Adonis, Budapesth Gallery; Creation of Eve, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Birth of Cyrus, New York Museum.—Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Burekhardt, 140, 383, 392, 395.

FÜRSTENBERG, SIEGFRIED, born in Berlin in 1810. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Wach in 1829-32, and then of the Düsseldorf Academy. In 1846 he was appointed teacher of drawing in the Realschule at Treves. His genre pieces and portraits are remarkable for truth to nature and finish. Works: Fortune-Teller; Return from the Kirmess; Father's Friend; The Widow.

FURTMAYER, PERCHTOLD, flourished in Ratisbon, 1470-1501, died about 1502. German school; miniature painter, famous for his illuminations of a chronicle, a bible (1470-72), and a missal (1481, for Archbishop Bernhard of Salzburg), Court Library, Munich.—Förster, Denkmale, iii. 1; do.,

FUSELI (Fuessli), HENRY (Heinrich),

born in Zürich, Feb. 7, 1741, died in London, April 16, 1825. History painter and writer on art, son of Johann Caspar Fuessli (1707-81), portrait and landscape

painter of Zürich ; took holy orders after graduating from Zürich University (1761), left on account of some theological dispute in 1763, and after wandering through Germany, where he supported himself by making translations, went to England in 1765, and in 1767 adopted painting as his profession, by the advice of Sir Joshua Reynolds.
Three years later he went to Italy, and resided there from 1770 to 1779, studying Michelangelo especially, and forming a fantastic style which also betrays the influence of Goltzius and Spranger. After his return to London he attracted attention by a picture called The Nightmare (1782). From the year 1774 to 1825 he exhibited sixty-nine pictures and drawings at the Royal Academy. In 1788 he was elected an A.R.A. and in 1790 R.A.; was made professor in 1799, and keeper in 1805. A fantastic and prolific designer rather than a painter, he had neither the judgment to control, nor the technical knowledge to adequately represent, the fancies of his powerful but ill-regulated imagination. His literary abilities were of no mean order, and the lectures which he delivered at the Royal Academy give evidence of thought, study, and critical acumen, and are remarkable as specimens of English writing by a foreigner. Works:
Ugolino and his Sons ; Celadon and Amelia ;
Romeo and Juliet ; Lady Macbeth ; Francesca and Paolo ; An Incantation ; Hercules

and Theseus.—Redgrave ; Sandby, i. 205 ;

FÜTERER, ULRICH, flourished at Landshut about 1480. German school ; history painter and poet. He painted, conjointly with Gabriel Maechelkirehner, from 1467
for Kloster Tegernsee, and Duke Albrecht IV. of Bavaria. Work : Crucifixion, Schleiss-heim Gallery.—Allgem. d. Biogr., viii. 271 ; Schnaase, viii. 464.

FUX, JOSEF, born at Steinhof, Nether Austria, in 1842. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Ruben ; talented colourist. Works :
Scene in a Deer Park ; On a Perilous Road ;
The Roman Dove-Seller ; Children's portraits ; Lute-Player ; Cardinal Praying ; Savoyard with Monkeys.—Müller, 189 ; N.
illustr. Zeitg. (1883), i. 167.

FYOLL, KONRAD, flourished in Frankfort in 1466-98. German school ; son and probably pupil of Sebald Fyoll, whose name appears in Frankfort documents in 1439-62 as having executed wall-paintings. The pictures in the Städel Gallery under the name of Konrad are not authenticated.—Schnaase, viii. 377 ; W. & W., ii.
98.

FYT, JAN, born at Antwerp, baptized
March 15, 1611, died there, Sept. 11, 1661.
Flemish school ; animal and still-life painter, pupil of Jan van den Berch and of Frans Snyders, next to whom he was the greatest animal painter of the Flemish school ; master of the guild in 1629, visited France (1633-34 in Paris) and Italy, and often worked conjointly with Jordaens and Van Dyck. Works : Dead Birds, National Gallery, London ; Dogs with Dead Game,
Hawk striking a Duck, Grosvenor Gallery,
ib. ; Poultry Yard, Cock Fight, Fancy Birds
(1661), nine others, Madrid Museum ; *Dead

GABBIANI, ANTONIO DOMENICO, born at Florence in 1652, died there in 1726. Florentine school; history and portrait painter, pupil of Justus Sustermans and Vincenzo Dandini, then, through the patronage of Grand Duke Cosmo III., for three years in Rome, of Ciro Ferri. Visited Venice, where he improved his colouring; was invited to the court of Vienna, and painted there the portrait of the Emperor and some historical subjects for the Imperial Gallery. On his return to Florence he executed several altarpieces, notably a St. Philip, in the Church of the Padri dell' Oratorio. He was killed by a fall from a scaffold. Works: Rape of Ganymede, Madonna, portrait of himself (1686), Uffizi, Florence; Christ at the House of Simon, Dresden Gallery; St. Francis of Assisi receiving the Stigmata, St. Peter of Alcántara, formerly in Old Pinakothek, Munich.—Lanzi (Roscoe), i. 249.

GABRIELLO, ONOFRIO, born at Messina in 1617, died in 1706. Neapolitan school; portrait painter, pupil of Antonio Rucei; afterward, in Rome, of Pietro da Cortona, and for nine years in Venice of Maroli; returned to Messina, where he remained till the revolution in 1674 compelled him to leave Sicily, when he went to Padua.

GABRON

His best works are in the Church of San Francesco di Paola, Messina, and in the Palazzo Borromeo, Padua.

GABRON, GUTLIAM (Willem), born at Antwerp, Oct. 28, 1619, died there, Aug. 2, 1678. Flemish school; still-life painter, instructed probably by his father; master of the guild in 1641; visited Italy, spending several years in Rome, whence he returned before 1660. Works: Table with Turkish Cover, Parrot, etc. (1652), Brunswick Museum; Table spread (? attributed by Bode to Heda), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Similar subjects in Darmstadt Museum (2) and Aschaffenburg Gallery.—Bode, Studien, 616; Rooses (Reber), 427; Van den Branden, 1116.

GADDI, AGNOLO, died in Florence, Oct., 1396. Florentine school; son and pupil of Taddeo Gaddi, and like him a follower of Giotto. His early labours were in the church of S. Jacopo tra' Fossi, Florence, where the Raising of Lazarus was treated, according to Vasari, in an exceedingly realistic manner; but he must have changed his style, as there are no traces of such realism in his later frescos. Those in the parish church of Prato (1365), a double series, at the ends of a central aisle, representing the legends of the Virgin and the sacred girdle, are the best and probably the earliest of his works. In them he was evidently guided by Giotto's maxims in regard to the composition, and they are more perfect in balance and therefore more pleasing than any of Taddeo's. The figures also have more repose and dignity, and more nature and individuality. The drawing is free and bold, though not always correct, and the colouring bright, clear, light, and transparent in its tones. But, though superior to Taddeo, Agnolo was inferior to Orcagna, and art in his hands had somewhat degenerated and become decorative. Other examples of Ag-nolo's work are eight frescos of the legend of the Cross, in the choir of S. Croce, Florence; and a Madonna, Angels, and Saints, Florence Academy; Annunciation, Uffizi, Florence; do., Louvre.—C. & C., Italy, i. 463; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 148; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 150; Seguer, 79; Baldinucci, i. 225; W. & W., i. 455.

GADDI, GADDO, born in 1239, died in 1312. Florentine school. An intimate friend of Cimabue, whom he survived twelve years. He laid the foundation of a fortune which raised his family to the highest social distinction. According to Vasari, he executed mosaics in the Baptistery, and in S. Maria del Fiore, Florence. In 1308 he was invited by Clement V. to Rome, and certain mosaics in S. Maria Maggiore are assigned to him. They are more modern in style than Rusutti's mosaic in the same church, and mark the transition between Cimabue and Giotto. Vasari says that he painted many easel pictures, and he probably took part in the decoration of the upper church of Assisi.—C. & C., Italy, i. 229; Vasari, ed. Mil., i. 345; Baldinucci, i. 89.

GADDI, TADDEO, born about 1300, died after 1366. Florentine school; son and pupil of Gaddo Gaddi, and godson and disciple of Giotto, with whom he worked twenty-four years. After the death of his master he was considered the first in his art, which, however, but dimly reflected that of Giotto. His artistic career began when Giotto went to Naples, at which time (1352-56) he painted the frescos of the legend of the Virgin assigned to him in the Baroncelli chapel in S. Croce, Florence. These show that he had little fancy, and that his execution was rapid, decorative, and conventional. Remains of other frescos by him are in S. Francesco, Pisa. A Madonna with Donors and Saints,

GÆL

Berlin Museum, is signed and dated 1334; and a Virgin Enthroned with six Angels, Siena Gallery, is dated 1355. Two small panels, Berlin Museum, part of a series of which twelve more are in the Florence Academy, though ascribed to Giotto and designed by him, are evidently painted by Taddeo. The Baptism of Christ, and Sixteen Saints, National Gallery, London, belong to this painter's school, and the predella of an altarpiece, three subjects, Louvre, is attributable to him. Taddeo was also an architect, and designed the Ponte Vecchio and the Pon-

te a S. Trinità.—C. & C., J. G. G. feir

confounded. Lived long in Düsseldorf at the court of the Elector of Cologne, for whom he painted battles, hunts, and animals. Went afterwards to London. Works: Queen Anne driving to Parliament; Royalist Battles; Battle of the Boyne.—Immerzeel, i. 259.

GAESBEECK, ADRIAAN VAN, born at Leyden, died there in January or February, 1650. Dutch school; genre and portrait painter in the manner of Gerard Dou; master of the guild at Leyden in 1649. His works are very rare. Works: Portrait of Young Man, Amsterdam Museum; The Seamstress, Berlin Museum.

GAGLIARDINI, JULIEN GUSTAVE, born at Mühlhausen, Alsace. Genre and portrait painter, pupil of Léon Cogniet and of Soulay. Medal, 3d class, 1884. Works: Archbishop's Palace at Salzburg (1877); Sea-shore at Grandchamp (1878); Shrimp-Fishers at Grandchamp (1879); After Damage at Sea (1882); Women picking Stranded Goods (1883); Père Bustel's Farm, La Toussaint (1884); Fish Market, Farm Yard (1885).

GAGNEREAUX, BÉNIGNE, born at Bourg-Près-Dijon (Côte d'Or), Sept. 24, 1756, died at Florence, Aug. 18, 1795. History and battle painter, pupil of Devosges, then studied in Rome; was awarded the first prize for his Soranus and Servilia, four years after his death. Court-painter to King of Sweden in 1789. Works: Soranus and Servilia, Dijon Museum; Cavalry Attack, Landscape, Montpellier Museum; Genius of Peace checking the Horses of Mars, Musée Rath, Geneva; Interview of Gustavus III. of Sweden with Pope Pius VI., Royal Palace, Stockholm.

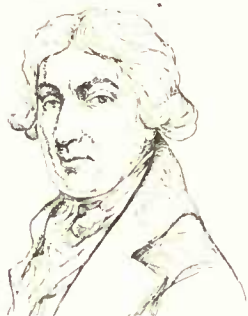

GAIL, WILHELM, born in Munich, March 7, 1804. Landscape and architecture painter, pupil of Munich Academy under Peter Hess, visited Italy in 1825, France in 1830, and Spain in 1832. GAINSBOROUGH, THOMAS, born at Sudbury, Suffolk, baptised May 14, 1727, died in London, Aug. 2, 1788, British school; went to London in 1741, and became a pupil of Gravelot, the French engraver; then of Francis Hayman, with whom he studied drawing. After an unsuccessful struggle as a portrait and landscape painter in London, he returned home in 1744 or 1745, and in 1760 settled in Bath, where he devoted himself chiefly to portraiture; in 1774 he went again to London, and won such a reputation that he was considered the rival of Reynolds in portrait, and of Wilson in landscape, painting. In 1766 he became a member of the Society of Artists, and he was one of the foundation members (1768) of the Royal Academy. Sir Joshua Reynolds observes of him: "Whether he most excelled in portraits, landscapes, or fancy pictures, it is difficult to determine," and Ruskin calls him "the purest colourist of the English school." His pictures command high prices. Works: Market Cart,

GALASSI, GALASSO, born in first half of 15th century, dead in 1473. Lombard school; son of a tailor and master-painter of Ferrara. Name appears in 1450-53 in account books of house of Este, where he is called Maestro Galasso de Matheo Calegario, in connection with the decoration of the palace of Belriguardo. In 1455 he composed the Assumption and finished a portrait of Cardinal Bessarion in Santa Maria in Monte, Bologna. Vasari says he went to Venice and acquired there the use of oils, but it is doubtful if he ever used them. Much more has been made of him than he deserves. His pictures show bad drawing, affected or spasmodic action, and skinny flesh. Examples: Trinity, Ferrara Museum; Entombment, and Virgin with Saint and Donor, Costabili Collection, Ferrara.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 514;

Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 213; Cittadella, Notizie di Ferrara, 26, 558 et seq.; Ch. Blanc, École ferraraise.

GALATEA, TRIUMPH OF, Raphael, Palazzo Farnesina, Rome; fresco, figures life-size. Galatea, half nude, standing in a shell, attended by tritons and sea-nymphs, is drawn over the waves by two dolphins, which she guides by reins, aided by a Cupid; above, three Cupids are discharging arrows, and a GALLEGOS, FERNANDO, born at Salamanca about 1475, died there in 1550. Spanish school; pupil of Pedro Berruguete, but painted in the manner of Roger van der Weyden. One of his best works, a Madonna with SS. Andrew and Christopher, was executed for the chapel of S. Clementi in the Cathedral of Salamanca. Works: Altarpiece in Cathedral at Zamora; Two Bishops and Two Saints, Academy, Valladolid; Visitation, Life of St. John the Baptist (5), Madrid Museum.—Stirling, i. 120.

GALLERANI, CECILIA, portrait, Leonardo da Vinci, lost (?). Painted in Milan about 1485-89, for Lodovico Sforza (il Moro), Duke of Milan, whose mistress she was. She afterwards married Count Lodovico Pergamino. In last century this picture was in possession of Marquis Bonasua, Milan. A replica, or copy, belonging to Professor Franchi, Milan, passed for a St. Cecilia. Another portrait of her by Leonardo belonged to the Pallavicini family of San Calocero. He also painted her as a Madonna, called the M. della Rosa. In this picture, which Amoretti saw in Milan, the Virgin is urging Jesus to bless a rose.—Vasari, ed. GAMBARA, LATTANZIO, of Brescia, born 1541, died 1574. Lombard school ; studied under Antonio Campi of Cremona, but afterwards became the disciple of Romanino, whose daughter he married. Vasari, however, calls him the son-in-law of Moretto da Brescia. His style is a combination of Campi's and Romanino's. Among his most spirited compositions are the damaged frescos in the Castello of Brescia. Another important work is an altarpiece of the Nativity in S. Faustino, Brescia. The twelve large frescos illustrative of the history of Christ, in the cathedral at Parma, were executed by him, with the aid of Sojaro, between 1568 and 1572.—*C. & C., N. GANYMEDE, RAPE OF, Correggio, Vienna Museum ; canvas, H. 5 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. 3 in. Jupiter, struck with the charms of Ganymede, Rape of, Eustache Lesueur, Louvre.

Ganymede, son of Tros, King of Troy, and one of the most beautiful of mortals, took the form of an eagle and bore him off to heaven, where he served as cupbearer to the gods (Ovid, Metamorphoses). In the picture, Ganymede is borne by the eagle in the air ; below, the plains of Lyeia, where Ganymede had tended his flocks ; in foreground, his dog, howling at the loss of his master. Painted about 1530 (?). In possession of Antonio Perez, favourite of Philip II. ; sold in 1603 to Rodolph II., and sent from Spain to Prague with the Leda, but probably taken early to Vienna. Assigned in Spain to Parmigiano. Ancient copy in Madrid Museum. Another Ganymede, with changes, a fresco

GAROFALO, IL, born in Ferrara in 1481, died there, Sept. 6, 1559. Lombard-Ferrarese school. Real name Benvenuto di Piero Tisi, but called Garofalo (Gilliflower) from his use of that flower as a device. Pupil of Domenico Panetti, of Niccolò Soriani, and of Boccacini, from whose studio he ran away to Rome (1499) and studied about a year under Giovanni Barrini. In 1502 he was in Mantua, where he must have remained four years if, as Vasari says, he studied with Lorenzo Costa, who entered the service of the Gonzagas in 1506. In 1508 he went again to Rome and became intimate with Raphael. Later he worked at Ferrara for Duke Alfonso, in whose palace (Serofa Calcagnini) he decorated a hall with mythological subjects. Other pictures in Ferrara: Old and New Testament, Adoration of the Magi (1537), Christ in the Garden, Massacre of the Innocents, Madonna del Pilastro, Ma*donna* with Saints, Madonna del Riposo, Raising of Lazarus, St. Peter Martyr, Discovery of the Cross, Municipal Gallery; and several in the Duomo. Works in other cities: Tiburtine Sibyl, La Zingarella (?), Holy Family, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Annunciation, Uffizi, ib.; Madonna with Saints (1518), Venice Academy; Deposition from Cross, Crucifixion, Brera, Milan; Madonna with Saints, Modena Gallery; Entombment, Deposition, Palazzo Borghese, Rome; Adoration of Magi, Deposition, Naples Museum; Triumph of Bacchus, Mars and Venus, Neptune and Pallas, Madonna in Adoration, Dresden Gallery; Holy Family, Vatican, Rome. The pictures of Garofalo are almost always pleasing. He was a good draughtsman and colourist, though sometimes a little too vivid in his reds and greens for perfect harmony of effect. According to Vasari he was totally blind during the last nine years of his life.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi.

GARRICK AS RICHARD III., William Hogarth, Earl of Feversham. Painted in 1746. Hogarth was paid for it by Mr. Duncombe, of Duncombe Park, Yorkshire, £200; "more," he says, "than any English artist ever received for a single portrait."—Dobson, 63.

GARRICK BETWEEN TRAGEDY AND COMEDY, Sir Joshua Reynolds; canvas. Garrick, seen to knees, standing, looks with an appealing, half-ashamed expression at Tragedy, while turning towards Comedy, unable to resist her allurements. Painted in 1761; sold to Lord Halifax for 300 guineas; at his sale to Mr. Angerstein for 250 guineas. Engraved by E. Fisher.

GÄRTNER, EDUARD (JOHANN PHIL-

IPP), born in Berlin, June 2, 1801, died there, Feb. 22, 1877. Architecture painter, pupil in Cassel of Maler Müller; returned to Berlin in 1813 and for six years was apprenticed in the porcelain factory, made a tour to the North Sea in 1821, studied in Paris in 1824-27, and painted for the Czar in St. Petersburg and Moscow in 1837-39. Member of Berlin Academy in 1833. Works: The former Reetzen Street in Berlin (1831), National Gallery, Berlin; others in the Royal Palaces, ib.—Jordan (1885), ii. 68.

GÄRTNER, FRIEDRICH, born in Munich, Jan. 11, 1824. Architecture painter, pupil of Munich Academy and of Simonsen, studied then in Paris under Jacquand; travelled extensively, and settled in Munich in 1857. Works: From the Alhambra; Interior of House in Tetuan; Street in Algiers; Mosque El Kebir in Algiers; Convent Yard in Moonlight, Interior of Moorish Building, New Pinakothek, Munich.—Müller, 193; Brockhaus, vii. 564.

GÄRTNER, HEINRICH, born at Neu-Strelitz, Mecklenburg, in 1828. Landscape painter, pupil in Berlin of Schirmer, and in Dresden of L. Richter. He was much influenced by Genelli at Munich and by Cornelius at Rome (1856). Works: Landscape with Return of Prodigal Son (1859), Leipzig Museum; Scenes from Life of Psyche (1865-66), Villa Dürr, near Leipzig; Cycle of landscapes (14) representing Development of Sculpture (in fresco, 1878).—Müller, 194; Brockhaus, vii. 564; Zeitschr. f. b. K., ii. 81.

GASCAR, HENRI, born in Paris in 1635, died in Rome, Jan. 18, 1701. French school; portrait painter. Long lived in England, where he became Lely's competitor, and was patronized by the Duchess of Portsmouth. Left England about 1680, having made, it is said, £10,000 in a few years. Member of the Academy in 1680. Work, The Duchess of Portsmouth as Flora, Hampton Court.—Redgrave, Jameson, Hand-Book to Public Galleries, 592; Taylor, The Fine Arts, ii. 366.

GASSEL

GASSEL, LUCAS, born at Helmont, Brabant, about 1500, died at Brussels about 1550. Flemish school; practised landscape painting in Brussels, where he was an intimate friend of the painter-poet Lampsonius. He painted in the fantastic manner of Patenier, and enlivened his landscapes with Old and New Testament subjects. His pictures are rare, as he painted but little. Works: St. George, Louvre, Paris; Landscape, Lille Museum; Landscape with Judah and Tamar (1548), Vienna Museum. The Landscape in the Contest between Apollo and Pan, by Goltzius, Dresden Gallery, is ascribed to Gassel.—Allgem. d. Biogr., viii. 369; Biog. nat. de Belgique, vii. 497; Jour. des B. Arts (1864), 88; (1878), 118; Kramm, ii. 534.

GASSEN, GOTTLIEB, born in Coblenz in 1805 or 1807. History painter, pupil and follower of Cornelius, among the first to paint in fresco at Munich for King Louis I. Works: Storming of the Godesberg near Bonn by Duke William V. of Bavaria, Arcades, Royal Garden, Munich; eleven scenes from Poems of Walther von der Vogelweide, Royal Palace, Munich; ceiling paintings in Loggia of Pinakothek; paintings in Trinity Church, Weissenthurm, near Coblenz.

GASSIES, JEAN BRUNO, born in Bordeaux, Oct. 25, 1786, died in Paris, Oct. 12, 1832. French school; history, genre, and landscape painter, pupil of Vincent and Lacour in Paris. Painted many biblical, as well as French mediæval and modern subjects. Works: Labourer holding Skull and Rusty Sword (1810), Douai Museum; Hagar and Ishmael (1811), Brussels Museum; Virgil reading the Æneid to Augustus (1814); Horace at Virgil's Tomb (1817); Portrait of Louis XVIII. (1819), Bordeaux Museum; Christ and Peter walking on the Sea, Homer reciting to the Shepherds (1819); St. Louis visiting the Plague-Stricken Soldiers, Fight of the Thirty (1822); Clemency of Louis XII. (1824), Versailles Museum; Shipwreck of a Fisherman and his Child (1827); Bivouac of the National GASTINEAU, HENRY, born in 1797, died at Camberwell, Surrey, in 1876. Landscape painter in water-colours, pupil of the Royal Academy; commenced as an engraver, then took up oil-painting, and in 1818 became an associate and in 1824 a member of the Water-Colour Society; was intimately connected with Turner, David Cox, and Copley Fielding. Works: Penrlyn Castle, Netley Abbey, South Kensington Museum, London; Klamme Pass in Styria (1855); Glenarm—Antrim, Hospice and Pass of St. Gothard (1862); Pass of Killiecrankie (1867).

GASTON DE FOIX (?), Girolamo Saroldo, Louvre; canvas, H. 3 ft. × 4 ft.; signed. A knight in armour, half recumbent, in a gloomy chamber, his form reflected in mirrors. Long called a portrait of Gaston de Foix, by Giorgione; but probably a picture painted to show that painting is preferable to sculpture, because a given form can be reproduced on canvas by the judicious use of reflecting surfaces. Replica, formerly belonging to Charles I., at Hampton Court.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 419; Law, Hist. Cat. Hampton Court, 43.

GATTA, Don BARTOLOMMEO DELLA, born about 1408, died in Arezzo in 1491. Florentine school. Learned miniature painting in the Camaldolensian Convent of the Angeli, Florence, where he was a friar; became abbot of the Convent of S. Clemente, Arezzo, and decorated its walls with frescos, now destroyed. Some panels by him in the public gallery, Arezzo, one dated 1479, show careful and patient execution, but little sense of colour. In 1479–86 he was in Rome, where he worked in the Sistine, according to Vasari, with Signorelli and Perugino. His later pictures, as, for instance, a Madonna with Saints and Angels, in the Collegiate church at Castiglione Fiorentino, display little power, though they show that he had learned to imitate Signorelli.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 36; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., v. 44; Marchesi, 2d ed., i. 203.

GATTI, BERNARDO (Bernardino), born at Cremona about 1490 (?), died in 1575. Lombard school; called Il Sojaro or Sogliaro (the cooper) from his father's trade. Went early to Parma to study under Correggio, and became his ablest pupil. He left numerous works in Parma, Piacenza, and Cremona. In S. M. di Campagna, Piacenza, he painted a fresco, St. George and the Dragon, in competition with Pordenone's St. Augustine, and on the death of that painter was selected to finish his frescoes of the Life of the Madonna, in the tribune of the church. Lanzi praises his Miracle of the Loaves and Fishes, in the refectory of the Padri Lateranensi, Cremona; it is dated 1552. He afterwards (about 1560) painted the cupola in the Madonna della Steccata, Parma. His Assumption of the Virgin, in the Cathedral of Cremona, his last work, is said to have been painted with his left hand, his right having been paralyzed. An Eccc Homo, and a Crucifixion, are in the Naples Museum.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 493; Lanzi, ii. 400; Ch. Blanc, École lombarde; Vidoni, Pittura Cremonese; Burekhardt, 701, 738; Laviee, 206; Lanzi (Roscoe), ii. 400, 430.

GATTI, GERVASIO, Lombard school (1578-1631). Nephew and pupil of Bernardo Gatti, from whom he inherited his surname of Il Sojaro. Studied also works of Correggio, and painted some pictures with much success; but he had a deplorable facility of execution, and his works are very unequal. Lanzi conjectures that Uriel Gatti, also called Il Sojaro, was his brother.—Lanzi, ii. 431; Ch. Blanc, École lombarde.

GAUCHEREL, LÉON, born in Paris, May 20, 1816. Landscape and architecture painter, more noted as an engraver and etcher; pupil of Viollet-le-Duc, with whom he visited Italy and Sicily. Medals: 3d class, 1853; 2d class, 1855, 1859, 1861, 1863; L. of Honour, 1864. Works: Tintoretto's House in Venice (1874); View of Saintes; Evening at Arromanches; Banks of the Adour at Sunset (1875); St. Peter's, Rome; Torcello, near Venice (1876); Cliffs of Saint-Jouin (1877, 1879); The Little Mount at Port Navado (1879); Gorge of Arnochat (1871).—Bellier de la Chavignerie, i. 618; Meyer, Conv. Lex., xvii. 367; Müller, 195.

GAUDENZIO MILANESE. See Ferrari, Gaudenzio.

GAUDIN, Fray LUIS PASCUAL, born at Villafranca, Catalonia, in 1566, died at the Chartreuse of Scala Dei in 1621. Spanish school. Became a Carthusian monk in 1595; adorned many chambers in his monastery, also painted for the Grand Chartreuse in Lorraine, for the Chartreuse of Seville, and a Last Supper and other works for that of Portaceli (Scala Dei), near Valencia.—Stirling, i. 293.

GAUERMANN, FRIEDRICH, born at Miesenbach, Nether Austria, Sept. 20, 1807, died in Vienna, July 7, 1862. Animal painter, son and pupil of Jakob G., but formed himself chiefly by copying old masters in the Vienna galleries and studying nature during his travels in 1825-44. Member of Munich Academy in 1836. He left 1,034 oil-paintings, 569 drawings, and 15 unfinished pictures. Works: Resting from Labour in the Fields (1829); Husbandman ploughing (1831), Vienna Museum; Wolves and Bears, Rocky View with Bears (1831); Vultures and Stag, Bears with their Prey (1832); Chase, Rural Smithy, Boar attacked by Wolves (1831); Stormy Lake, Wolves and Stags (1835); Harvest Scene, Wild Boars (1836); Dying Stag and Eagle (1837); Cattle Market (1838); Wolves on High Rock, Harvest Wagon in Storm, Embarking of the Herd (1839); Hunting Scene, The Passeur

GEERTZ

Lived with the knights of St. John at Haarlem, and hence was called Geertgen tot Sint Jans, although not of their order and probably a native of Leyden. He painted for the church of the order an altarpiece, two wings of which are preserved in the Vienna Museum, one a Pietà, the other representing the Legend of the bones of St. John the Baptist. Other works attributed to him are: Scene from the Legend of St. Lucy, in the Lippmann Collection at Vienna; View of Haarlem Cathedral, in that edifice; Crucifixion, in the Galleria Estense at Modena. Dr. Bode is inclined to assign to this master also an Adoration of the Magi in the Prague Gallery, the Expiatory Offering in the Amsterdam Museum, and Christ in the Tomb surrounded by the Instruments of the Passion in the Archiepiscopal Museum at Utrecht.—*Allgem. d. GEORGE, ST., AND THE DRAGON. St. George of Cappadocia, the patron saint of England, was, according to the legend, a tribune in the army in the time of Diocletian. When on the way to join his legion, he overcame a terrible dragon, near Selene, in Libya (or Berytus, Syria, according to another account), and rescued the king's daughter, Cleodolinda, who was about to be sacrificed to appease the beast. St. George suffered martyrdom in the persecution of Diocletian. The combat with the dragon has been illustrated by nearly all the great painters.

By Marco Basaiti, S. Pietro di Castello, Venice; canvas, figures half life-size; signed, dated 1520. St. George on horseback, fighting dragon; Princess Cleodolinda in background holding on to a tree. Close imitation of Carpaecio. Painted by order of Patriarch Antonio II., Contarini (1508-24).—Zanotto, Pinac. Ven., Pl. 17; C. & C., N. Italy, i. 270.

By Andrea Mantegna, Venice Academy; wood, tempera, H. 2 ft. × 1 ft. St. George, in armour, holding the stump of his lance, with the dragon at his feet. Painted about 1464. Formerly in Palazzo Manfrini.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 387; Burekhardt, 578.

By G. A. Pordenone, Quirinal, Rome; wood, arched, H. 9 ft. × 6 ft. 2 in.; signed. The saint, on horseback, tilts at dragon with his lance; background, a landscape with Cleodolinda kneeling. Formerly in church at Noale, near Treviso.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 287.

By Raphael, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; wood, transferred to canvas, H. 10 $\frac{3}{4}$  × 8 $\frac{3}{8}$  in. St. George in armour, on a white horse, charges out of the foreground and transfixes the dragon with his lance; background, a wilderness with a cave to the right, and Cleodolinda kneeling in prayer; behind her a landscape with two towers in distance. Painted in Florence in 1506; presented by Guidobaldo I, Duke of Urbino, to Henry VII. of England, in return for the insignia of the Garter; registered in inventories of Henry VIII. and Charles I., after whose death sold for £150; afterwards in Paris in possession of Marquis de Sourdis, and of M. de la Noue, who paid 500 pistoles for it. In Musée Napoléon in 1802. Engraved by L. Vorsterman; Des Granges; N. de Larmessin. Tapestry made at Mortlake in time of Charles I. and at Irnham, Lincolnshire. Sketch in the Uffizi, Florence; engraved by Vorsterman from a copy.—C. & C., Raphael, i. 278; Archæologia, 298; Felibien, Entretiens, i. 228; Landon, Musée, iii. Pl. 15.

By Raphael, Louvre; wood, H. 12 in. × 10 in. St. George in armour, on a gray horse, gallops into the foreground, and having broken his lance upon the dragon, is about to despatch him with his sword; in the distance, Cleodolinda starts in flight, with discovering Himself to his Brethren, now in the Angers Museum. In 1792, after a short stay in Rome, he settled in Paris, and was assigned a studio in the Louvre, but his reputation was not established until 1800, when Napoleon appointed him his official portrait painter. He executed many important works under the Empire, and was patronized by Louis XVIII., Charles X., and Louis Philippe. Member of the Institute, 1812; L. of Honour, Order of St. Michael; first painter to the king, 1817; and in 1819 was created a baron. Works: Betisarius; Entry of Henri IV. into Paris (replica), Psyche and Cupid (1798), Daphnis and Chloë (1824), Victory and Fame, History and Poetry, portrait of Isabey (1796), do. of Canova, do. of Charles X., Louvre, Paris; The Three Ages (1808); Battle of Austerlitz (1810), Entry of Henri IV. into Paris (1817), Philippe V. of France called to the Throne of Spain (1824), Coronation of Charles X. (1827), Proclamation at the Hôtel de Ville in Paris (1836), Signing the Concordat, portraits of Joachim Murat, Madame Bonaparte, Empress Josephine, Empress Marie Louise and the King of Rome, Charles X., Duc de Berri, Duchesse de Berri and Children, Versailles Museum; The Three Ages (1806), Naples Museum; Sappho (1810), Städels Gallery, Frankfurt; Corinne at Cape Misenum (1819), Lyons Museum; Napoleon in Coronation Robes, Dresden Museum; Plague at Marseilles, Sanitary Department of Marseilles; portrait of La Reveillère Lepeaux, Angers Museum; do. of Louis XVIII., Toulouse, Marseilles, and Ajaccio Museums; do., Hatfield House, London; Christ descending upon Earth and scattering Darkness (1837, last work), Orléans Museum; portraits of Napoleon (1808), Josephine, Queen of Naples (1810), King of Two Sicilies, Duke of Montebello (1812), Empress Marie Louise (1814), King of Rome (1814), Comte d'Artois, Duc d'Orléans (1819), Duchesse d'Orléans (1819), Duc de Chartres (1822), Duchesse de Berri (1824), Duc de Bordeaux (1824), Duc de Dalmatie (1826), Madame Pasta (1826).—Bellier de GERHARDT, EDUARD, born at Erfurt, April 29, 1813. Landscape and architecture painter, studied from 1837 in Munich, where he settled in 1851 after ten years spent in Italy, Spain, and England. Works: Views of Cologne Cathedral (1838); Views in Venice; Views in the Alhambra; San Ildefonso; Gardens of Generalife; Carmo Church in Lisbon; Cintra; S. Marco and S. Maria della Salute in Venice; North View of Alhambra; Moonlight in Spanish Town; Palace of Inquisition at Cordova (1863), Lion's Court of Alhambra, Interior of St. Mark's in Venice, New Pinakothek, Munich; Lion Court in the Alhambra, Palazzo Moro, and Palazzo Vendramin, at Venice, The Generalife at Granada, Comares Tower of the Alhambra, Schack Gallery, ib.—Brockhaus, vii. 829; Müller, 201.

GÉRICAULT, JEAN LOUIS ANDRÉ THÉODORE,

born at Rouen, Sept. 26, 1791, died in Paris, Jan. 18, 1824.

History and animal painter, pupil of Carle Vernet and of Guérin. In 1817, after serving in the army three years, he went to Italy and studied in Rome and Florence. His Raft of the Medusa (1819, Louvre) was loudly denounced by the critics on account of its bold realism; but its exhibition in London brought the painter 20,000 francs and on his return to Paris a gold medal. He executed afterwards many studies in crayon and water-colour, and many lithographs; also modelled for sculpture. Works: Raft of the Medusa (1819), Officer of the Imperial Guard Charging (1812), Wounded Cuirassier Retreating (1814), The Derby at Epsom (1821), A Carbineer, The Plaster Kiln, Turkish Horse in a Stable, Spanish Horse in a Stable, Five Horses in a Stable, Louvre; Portrait of Lord Byron, Two Horses in a Stable, Montpellier Museum; Others in Grenoble, Rouen, Nantes, Chalons-sur-Saone, Aix, and Avignon Museums; Wreck of the Medusa, Historical Society, New York; Village Smithy, Child feeding a Horse (exhibited in 1824, after his death); Cavalry Charge, Still Life, B.

GERINI, LORENZO, Florentine school, beginning of 15th century. Son of Niccolò Gerini and equally mediocre. A fair painter among the third-rates, and of considerable practice. His most important work is the Coronation of the Virgin, an altarpiece with predella, painted in 1440, in S. Domenico, Cortona.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 23.

GERINI, NICCOLÒ DI PIETRO, Florentine school, 14th century, died after 1401. He was a careful and diligent painter, but in colour wanting force and fusion. In his frescos he continued the school of Taddeo Gaddi, but, as compared with Agnolo Gaddi and Spinello, his painting is lifeless and third-rate. His earliest and most important work is a series of frescos in the Convent of S. Francesco, Pisa, dated 1392.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 19; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 151; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 197, N. 1.

GERINO DA PISTOJA, Umbrian school (1502-29). Vasari says he was a friend of Pinturicchio, a diligent colourist, and a follower of Perugino. His Virgin of Succour (1502) in S. Agostino, Borgo S. Sepolero, shows that he was a fair copyist of his master when he painted it. His Madonna and Saints (1509), S. Pietro Maggiore, Pistoja, is a mixture of Perugino, Pinturicchio, and Raphael. He grew feeble later; his Madonna and Saints (1529), Uffizi, Florence, is gray and dull, with none of his early richness of tint.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 349; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., v. 276.

GERMANICUS, TRIUMPH OF, Karl von Piloty, Munich Gallery; canvas, H. 17 ft. 8 in. × 24 ft. 6 in. Triumphant entry into Rome accorded by Tiberius to Germanicus, A.D. 17, after his victory over the Germans on the Elbe, in which he recovered the eagles lost by Varus (Tac. An., ii. 41). Thusnelda, wife of Arminius, leading by the hand her little boy Thumelicus, walks in the procession, while Segestes, her father, through whose treachery she had fallen into the hands of the Romans, sits near Germanicus as an ally. Painted in 1873; sold for 35,000 florins. Replica, Mrs. A. T. Stewart, New York.—Art Treas. of Amer., i. 26.

GÉRÔME, JEAN LÉON, born in Vesoul, May 11, 1824. History and genre painter, pupil of Paul Delaroche, whom he accompanied to Rome, and of Gleyre after his return from Italy. Failed to obtain the prix de Rome, but obtained a 3d class medal for his Cock Fight in 1847, and increased his reputation by his Anacreon in the following year. Then visited Russia, where he painted a successful picture of Russian Musicians, and Egypt, whence he brought back valuable material afterwards treated (1857). Since this period he has

painted a variety of subjects ancient and modern, which have gained him a place as one of the best-known modern French painters. Gérôme has also exhibited several sculptured groups, and has executed mural paintings for the city of Paris, among them the Plague at Marseilles in St. Séverin. Medals: 3d class, 1847; 2d class, 1848, 1855; of honour, 1867, 1874, 1878; for sculpture, 1878; L. of Honour, 1855; Officer, 1867; Commander, 1878; Member of Institute, 1865. Professor in École des Beaux Arts, 1863. Works: Cock Fight (1847), Luxembourg Museum; Madonna and St. John (1848); Anacreon with Bacchus and Cupid (1848), Toulouse Museum; Bacchus and Cupid Intoxicated (1850), Bordeaux Museum; Greek Interior, Souvenir of Italy (1851); View of Paestum (1852); An Idyl (1853); Russian Concert, Age of Augustus (1855), Amiens Museum; Egyptian Recruits crossing the Desert, Mennon and Sesostris, Camels at Watering-Place (1857); Gladiators saluting Caesar, King Candaulus (1859); Phryne before the Tribunal, Alcibiades in House of Aspasia, Rembrandt Etching (1861); Prisoner (1863), Nantes Museum; Reception of Siamese Ambassadors at Fontainebleau, Prayer (1865); Cleopatra and Caesar, Door of Mosque of El Hacamyn (1866); Slave Market, Clothing Merchant, Death of Caesar (1867); Seventh of December, 1815 (1868); Jerusalem, Cairo Pedlar, Promenade of the Harem (1869); Rex Tibicen, Santon at the Door of a Mosque, Women at the Bath (1876); St. Jerome, Turkish Bath, Bashi-Bazouks Dancing, Return from the Chase (1878); Slave Market in Rome, Night in the Desert, Danse du Baton (1884); Great Bath at Brusa (1885). together with Sementi, in his great works in Ravenna, Naples, and Mantua. Some of his earlier pictures nearly approach the excellence of his master, but his facility of execution led him to abuse his talents, and his later works show the coldness of a mannerist. He had a well-attended school at Bologna. Many of his pictures are in Bologna, e.g., St. Francis receiving the Stigmata, Madonna, Christ praying to the East, Holy Family and Angels, St. Bonaventura, Madonna with Angels, in the Pinacoteca; Martyrdom of St. Catharine, in S. Caterina; Madonna and Saints, in S. M. della Carità; St. Francis at the Nunziata. Landscape painter, self-taught; began to paint in Berlin, where he was sent in 1749 to learn the book trade. Later in Hamburg, and on his return home, he devoted himself alternately to poetry and painting, and to the latter art exclusively after 1765. Works: Well in the Woods, Dreamer, Arcadian Well, Fisherman, Zürich Gallery. His son, Konrad, painted with some reputation in England and Scotland. Works: Cavalry Skirmish (2), View in Park (2), Driving up Hill, Horses Grazing, Zürich Gallery.—Allgem. d. Biogr., ix. 122; Kugler (Crowe), ii. 566.

GHIRLANDAJO, BENEDETTO BIGORDI called, born in Florence in 1458, died there, July 17, 1497. Florentine school. Brother of Domenico Ghirlandajo, for whom he chiefly worked during the great painter's lifetime. To this mediocre painter, who lived several years in France, and was richly recompensed by the king, are ascribed a Resurrection, Berlin Museum; St. Lucy, in S. M. Novella, Florence; and a Christ on the way to Golgotha, Louvre.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 518; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 284.

GHIRLANDAJO, DAVID BIGORDI called, born in Florence, March 14, 1452, died there in 1525. Florentine school. Brother of Domenico and Benedetto; master in guild of Florence when Domenico died. He was a mere mechanical workman, with little talent, but superior to Benedetto. Employed himself chiefly with mosaics. David assisted his nephew Ridolfo in painting the Madonna della Misericordia, S. Felice, Florence.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 520; Burchhardt, 639.

GHIRLANDAJO, DOMENICO, born in Florence in 1449, died there, Jan. 11, 1494. Florentine school. Real name Domenico di Tommaso Curradi di Dosso Bigordi; took his surname from his father, a goldsmith, who was called Ghirlandajo (garland-maker) from the wreaths of gold and silver, worn as head-ornaments, which he made. Domenico's earliest recorded works were painted about

1480, before which he had perhaps received instruction from Alesso Baldovinetti, and had learned much by studying the masterpieces of Masaccio at the Carmine. He began his career by decorating the Vespucci chapel in the Ogni Santi, Florence, with a series of frescos, now destroyed, of whose quality a St. Jerome in the church and a Last Supper in the refectory give no very high idea. In those representing the Apotheosis of St. Zanobius, the Madonna, and several Roman heroes afterwards executed in 1481 in the Sala dell' Orologio, Palazzo Vecchio, the style is still unformed, though advance in technique is manifest. Called to Rome by Sixtus IV. in 1482, Ghirlandajo painted the Calling of Peter and Andrew upon the walls of the Sistine Chapel (finished before 1484), in which he showed himself a follower of Masaccio in composition. The dignity of the Saviour, the somewhat formal though varied grouping of the attendant figures, and the vast landscape which fills the background combine to form an impressive and effective picture. In his next work, the frescos in the Chapel of S. Fina, San Gimignano (before 1485), Ghirlandajo manifested a hitherto unrevealed grace and tenderness, especially in that which represents the body of the Saint lying on a bier. After painting a Last Supper in the Convent of S. Marco, Florence, which is little varied from his first in the Ogni Santi, Ghirlandajo executed the frescos of the Life of St. Francis (1485) in the Sassetti Chapel, S. Trinità, Florence, in which he gave the whole measure of his admirable powers. Here landscape and architectural backgrounds with local features are used to set off groups of figures conceived in a spirit of noble realism; the compositions are formed in the spirit of Masaccio; the heads, many of them portraits, are drawn with the accurate and faithful pencil of a Holbein. In the portraits of the donors, Francesco Sassetti and his wife Nava, Ghirlandajo equalled the great German master in truth, in character, and in modelling. The altarpiece of this chapel, an Adoration of the Shepherds (1485), is now in the Florence Academy. Even more important than the frescos at S. Trinità are those of the Life of the Virgin (1490) in the choir of S. M. Novella. Among them, the Birth of the Virgin is a typical example of Ghirlandajo's style. Of the former altarpiece of this chapel, the Munich Gallery possesses the Madonna appearing to St. Dominic and other Saints, together with side-panels of Saints Catherine and Laurence; and the Berlin Museum the Resurrection of Christ and Saints. Other works by Ghirlandajo are, a Madonna with Saints, and a predella, sacristy of S. Martino, Lucca; Madonna with Saints and Adoration of the Magi (1487), Adoration of Shepherds (1485, Uffizi), Florence; Madonna with Saints, Academy, ib.; Adoration of the Magi (1488), Chapel of the Hospital of the Innocenti, ib.; Christ in Glory, Palazzo Publico, Volterra; Visitation (1491), Louvre; St. Anthony, New York Museum.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 459; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 253, 279; Dohme, 2i.

GHIRLANDAJO, RIDOLFO BIGORDI called, born in Florence, Feb. 14, 1483, died there in 1561. Florentine school; son of Domenico; brought up under guardianship of his uncle, David. Vasari says he studied under Fra Bartolommeo, but he was probably most indebted for guidance in art to Granacci, Piero di Cosimo, and perhaps Rosselli. His Procession of Christ and the Marys to Calvary, in Palazzo Antinori a S. Gaetano, Florence, and his Coronation of the Virgin (1504), Louvre, are among his earliest works. Later works show the influence of Fra Bartolommeo and of Raphael, as the Nativity, Berlin Museum; Nativity, Eszterhazy Collection, Vienna; and a predella in the Oratory of Bigallo, Florence. Raphael had great esteem for his talent, and vainly tried to persuade him to join him in Rome in 1508, as Ridolfo was satisfied with his success in Florence. His skill reached its highest point in his richly-coloured, well-composed, and expressive St. Zanobius raising a Dead Child, and the Burial of St. Zanobius, Uffizi, Florence. His Madonna dropping her Girdle to St. Thomas is in the church at Prato, and M. della Misericordia in S. Felice, Florence. Ridolfo became the most noted painter of his time in Florence, where he executed many commissions for the Medici.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 518; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., xi. 284; Marchesi, ii. 141; Ch. Blanc, École florentine.

GHISSOLETTI (Grisolli), GIOVANNI, born in Milan in 1632, died there in 1683. Roman school; architecture, landscape, and history painter, pupil in Rome of Salvator Rosa; esteemed as a painter of architecture, he devoted himself after his return to Milan to large histories and altarpieces, and executed frescos for the Certosa of Pavia and the Santuario of Varese. Works: Ruins of Carthage, Ruins of Splendid Buildings, Ships in a Seaport, Dresden Museum; Ruins (2), National Gallery, Edinburgh.

GIORDANO, LUCA, called Fa-Presto, born in Naples in 1632, died there, Jan. 12, 1705. Neapolitan school ; son of Antonio Giordano, a poor painter, who taught him design ; studied nine years with Spagnoletto, then went to Rome and became pupil and assistant of Pietro da Cortona for three years. Visited Bologna, Parma, Venice, and other cities, making many copies of the pictures of the great masters, which his father sold. He acquired at this time the surname of Fa-Presto, because he painted with such extreme rapidity.

In 1679 Luca was called to Florence by the Grand Duke, who gave him large commissions, through which he acquired a great reputation. In 1692 he was invited to Spain by Charles

II., who gave him titles, honour, and wealth. Giordano painted many frescos in the Escorial, in the palace of Buen Retiro, the Cathedral of Toledo, and other churches, and numerous portraits. He returned to Italy in 1702, was splendidly received by Clement XI., and settled in his native city. Giordano was the last of the great Italian painters. Some of his works show marks of genius, and with more conscientious labour he might have equalled the greatest masters, but owing to his fatal facility of execution he violated all the rules of good taste. Works: Christ driving out the Money-Changers, S. Filippo, Naples ; Ceiling frescos, S. GIORGIONE, IL, born at Castelfranco about 1477, died at Venice in 1511. Venetian school. Real name Giorgio Barbarelli; pupil of Giovanni Bellini and fellow-pupil of Titian, who afterwards became his (Giorgione's) pupil. Of his life nothing is known, save that it was passed at Venice and Castelfranco, in which latter place the house where he was born, now called Casa Pellizzari, contains remains of his decorative frescos. Giorgione decorated the exterior of many houses and palaces at Venice with frescos now effaced; his oil paintings, owing to the shortness of his life, are comparatively few. He treated subjects of the class introduced by Bellini, such as allegories, legendary episodes, and bacchanals, in which figures are set off by landscape with the happiest effect, and painted many splendid portraits. His works are conspicuous for rich and brilliant colour, for breadth and nobility of style, and for a poetical, sensuous charm which fascinates and delights the beholder. Works: Ordeal of Moses, Judgment of Solomon, Uffizi, Florence; Concert, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Family of Giorgione, Prince Giovanelli, ib.; Madonna with Saints (before 1504), Parish Church, Castelfranco; Christ bearing Cross,

Casa Loschi, Vicenza; Judgment of Solomon, Kingston-Lacey, near Wimborne, England; Adoration of Magi, Leigh Court, near Bristol, England; Nativity, Beaumont Collection, London; Knight in Armour, Story of Myrrha (Hamilton Palace sale, £1,350), National Gallery, ib.; Chaldean Sages, Vienna Museum. Among works ascribed to him are: Rustic Concert, Holy Family, Louvre; Assumption, Madrid Museum; Entombment, Monte di Pietà, Treviso; Knight of Malta, Uffizi, Florence; Nymph and Satyr, Finding of Moses, St. John Baptist, Portrait of a Lady, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Youth attacked by a Soldier, Vienna Museum; Jacob and Rachel, Adoration of Shepherds, Horoscope, Dresden Gallery; Finding of Moses, Brera, Milan; Apollo and Daphne, Archiepiscopal

GIORGIONE, FAMILY OF, Giorgione, Palazzo Giovannelli, Florence; canvas, H. 2 ft. 9 in. × 2 ft. 5 in. A man in tights and slashed doublet, said to be Giorgione, standing leaning on a staff to the left; a mother seated on the bank, giving the breast to her child, to the right; background, a beautiful landscape. Formerly in Palazzo Manfrini, Venice.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 136; Zeitschr. f. b. K. (1866), No. 11.

GIORNO, IL (The Day), or Madonna of St. Jerome, Correggio, Parma Gallery; wood, H. 6 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 8 in. The Virgin, with Jesus on her arm, sitting; Jesus is playing with the hair of the Magdalen, who is half kneeling beside him; behind her is a boy with a vase of ointment; on the other side, St. Jerome, with the lion behind him, is standing, carrying a book which an angel aids him in supporting. Called Il Giorno because represented in full daylight, and to distinguish it from La Notte. Ordered in 1523 by Donna Briseide Colla Bergonzi, of Parma, and placed in 1528 in S. Antonio Ab-

GIOTTINO, born (?), died after 1369. Florentine school. Probably identical with Giotto di Maestro Stefano, whose name appears in the register of Florentine painters in 1368. Vasari calls him Tommaso di Stefano, and says he was born in 1324, thus confounding him with Maso di Banco (died after 1351), whom Ghiberti makes the pupil of Giotto, and who was admitted to the guild of Speciali in 1343, and to the Company of St. Luke in 1350. To Maso, Ghiberti ascribes the series of frescoes in the chapel of S. Silvestro in S. Croce, Florence, representing the legend of Constantine, while Vasari, who made one painter out of two, gives them to Giottino. The fresco of the Last Judgment in the Bardi Chapel, S. Croce, belonging to the monument of Ubertino de' Bardi, is probably by the artist who painted two frescoes, the Birth and Crucifixion of Christ, in the mortuary chapel of the Strozzi, Florence, and in a panel in the Uffizi, the Be-wailing of Christ. The last is given in the catalogue to Giotto, but whether it and other works mentioned belong to him or to Maso remains to be proved.—C. & C., Italy, i. 410; *Lübke, Gesch. ital. GIOTTO, born at Colle in the district of Vespignano in 1266; died in Florence, Jan. 8, 1337. Florentine school. Son of a shepherd named Bondone; found drawing sheep upon flat stones, by Cimabue, who, struck with his talent, took him to Florence and taught him to paint. Dante tells in the Divina Commedia (Purgatorio, xi. 93) how the master was outdone by the pupil, who is called the reviver of painting, because he broke loose from Byzantinism and took nature for his guide. In simple and unaffected, although necessarily imperfect, language, he represented scenes from holy writ, legends and allegories, according to the dogmas of the Church; and, though living at a time when art was wholly in her service, worked in a comparatively independent spirit. In his pictures there is no striving after ideal beauty, no attempt at deceptive imitation of natural objects, no difference of handling in the treatment of flesh, drapery, or architecture, and but a scant supply of that technical knowledge which in later times enabled men of infinitely less genius to surpass them in execution, in chiaroscuro, perspective, drawing, and colour. In all these things the apprentices of the next century were Giotto's superiors; though in earnestness, in the power of telling a story with dramatic effect, and in truth of expression, but few of their masters equalled, and still fewer surpassed, him. He worked in many parts of

Italy: in Assisi before 1296; in Rome from 1298 to 1300; in Florence from 1300 to 1304; in Padua from 1304 to 1306; later in Rimini, and in Naples, where he painted the Miracle of the Loaves and Fishes in the old convent church of S. Chiara (but not the Incoronata frescoes), from 1330 to 1333. In the following year he was appointed master of the works at the Duomo, Florence, for which he designed the façade, commenced but afterwards destroyed, and built its exquisite campanile. Giotto's twenty-eight frescoes representing scenes from the lives of the Saviour and of St. Francis, in the aisle of the upper church of S. Francesco, Assisi, were probably painted before the ceilings of the lower church (1296), in which he allegorized the virtues of the Franciscans, Poverty, the spouse chosen by St. Francis, Obedience and Chastity, the rules of his Order. In Rome Giotto next decorated the tribune of the church of S. Giorgio in Velabro with frescoes, designed the so-called Navicella represented by a mosaic in the portico of St. Peter's, and painted the three panels of a predella now in the sacristy of the canons of St. Peter, representing the Redeemer and Angels, the donor Cardinal Stefaneschi, and the Martyrdoms of St. Peter and St. Paul. The same Apostles, with the Madonna and Saints, appear upon other predella panels in the sacristy. In the Lateran Basilica is a fragment of a fresco by Giotto representing Pope Boniface VIII. proclaiming the opening of the Jubilee in 1300, when Giotto and Dante were in Rome. The frescoes of the Palazzo del Podesta or Bargello, Florence, portions of which have been recovered, were painted about 1302 or 1303. As containing the well-known portraits of Dante, and some of his contemporaries, that which represents an incident in the feud of the Bianchi and the Neri factions has a peculiar interest. About 1305, Giotto went to Padua to paint the thirty-eight frescoes of the Cappella dell' Arena of Enrico degli Scrovegni. They represent scenes from the lives of Christ and the Virgin, the Last Judgment, and the Virtues and Vices, and are the most important works of the master. Several Crucifixes by Giotto exist; one is in the Sanctuary of this chapel, others in S. Marco, S. Felicità, and the Gondi Doni chapel of the Ogni Santi, Florence. Other mural paintings by the master are: Incidents from the lives of SS. Anthony and Francis, in the chapter house of S. Antonio, Padua; a ceiling with the four Doctors of the Church and the four Evangelists, in S. Giovanni Evangelista, Ravenna; the frescos of the Peruzzi, Giugni, and Bardi chapels, S. Croce, Florence; and the remnants of frescos in the Carmine. Among the works of Giotto in public galleries are: a Madonna with Angels, and many small panels of incidents in the lives of Christ and St. Francis, Florence Academy; two of the same series in the Berlin Museum, and two at Munich; Madonna, Brera, Milan; St. Francis receiving the Stigmata, Louvre, Paris; Two Apostles, National Gallery, London.—W. & W., i. 435; C. & C., Italy, i. 234; Lübke, *Gesch. ital. GIOVANNI D'ASCIANO, of Siena, born in Asciano, flourished latter part of 14th century. Siennese school; pupil of Barna, and a weak imitator of his style. He finished the frescos in the church at S. Gimignano, begun by his master. Vasari says he executed paintings in the hospital of Siena, and in the ancient palace of the Medici, Florence, which gave him reputation, but they are all lost.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 110; iii. 62; Vasari, ed. born latter half 15th century, died at Udine, Aug. 30, 1535. Venetian school. Son of Martino da Tolmezzo, a carver of Udine, and called Martini to distinguish him from his cousin, Giovanni Mione. Pupil of Luigi Vivarini, but how long he was in Venice is not known. Had returned to Udine in 1497, where he resided until his decease, his later days being principally devoted to carving. As a painter he imitated Luigi Vivarini's early style, and in many respects he recalls Jacopo da Valentia. Works: Madonna (1498), Museo Civico, Venice; St. Mark Enthroned (1501), Cathedral, Udine; others in the Spilimberg Cathedral, and in the Brera, Milan.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 182; Lübke, *Gesch. ital. GIOVANNI DA MILANO, born in Milan in 14th century. Florentine school. Real name Giovanni Jacobi; long an assistant to Taddeo Gaddi; settled at Florence in 1366. He made no advancement in composition beyond Taddeo, but he was less conventional than his master, and more finished and elaborate in execution. His earliest extant picture, a Bewailing of Christ, in the Florence Academy, dated 1365, shows excessive conscientiousness, but lacks elevation. A larger and more important picture is the Virgin Enthroned, Municipal Gallery, Prato. An altarpiece in five compartments, in the Uffizi, Florence, and the frescos of scenes from the story of the Virgin and Mary Magdalen, in the Rinuccini Chapel, S. Croce, are also by this painter.—C. & C., Italy, i. 402; Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., i. 113; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 115, 179; ed. Mil., i. 572; W. & W., i. 455.

GIOVANNI DI PAOLO, died about 1481. Siennese school. Commonly called del Poggio. On the roll of Siennese artists in 1428; in the service of Sano di Pietro in 1447. According to Ricci, he attended the school of Gentile da Fabriano. His strange fancy in composition and awkwardness in representing action are shown in a Last Judgment

Umbrian school. Real name Giovanni de' Recamatori, son of Francesco de' Recamatori (of the Embroiderers). Pupil of Giorgione, but afterwards of Raphael, under whom he superintended the ornamental decorations in the Vatican Loggia, such as animals, birds, fruit, flowers, and grotesques. His arabesques have ever since been considered models of their type. In 1527, when Rome was sacked by the Constable de Bourbon, he went to Florence and painted for the Medici; worked also in Udine, Venice, and in other cities, but finally returned to Rome about 1550. Most of his works are mural decorations. Among the easel pictures attributed to him are: Christ among the Doctors, Holy Family, Venice Academy; Madonna and Saints, Palazzo Manfrini, Venice; do., Museo Civico, ib. The only authenticated work of this kind is a Madonna Enthroned (1517), belonging to Signor Frizzoni, Bergamo.—Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne; Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 549; ed. Pupil of Benvenuto Garofalo; afterwards painted at Bologna, and later studied works of Correggio and Parmigianino in Modena and Parma. Though he imitated them, he was not a servile copyist, but had a style of his own. Painted in fresco and in oil, and was very successful in portraits; was also an architect. Among his works are: Adoration of the Magi, and Madonna, Bologna Academy; Christ in the House of Martha and Mary, Uffizi, Florence; Entombment, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Portrait of Archbishop Salimbeni, ib.; Christ on the Mount of Olives, ib.; Venus and Cupid, Dresden Gallery.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vi. 469; Lanzi, iii. 204; Ch. Blanc, École ferraraise; Cittadella, Memorie di . . . Garofalo (Ferrara, 1872); Lavice, 63.

GIROLAMO DA COTIGNOLA, born in Cotignola about 1481, died in 1550. Bolognese school. Real name Girolamo Marchesi, son of Antonio M.; pupil of Zaganelli (?) and of Francesco Francia, but in his later days an imitator of Raphael and Michelangelo. A Nativity of 1513, in his early style, is in Lord Ashburton's Collection. Examples of his later manner, dated 1516 and 1526, are in the Berlin Museum; Madonna and Saints, dated 1518, L'Annunziata, Parma; Marriage of the Virgin, and the Annunciation, Nativity, and Flight into Egypt, in a predella, Bologna Pinac. Vasari says he was chiefly known as a portrait painter.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 601; Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 182; Ch. Blanc, École bolonaise.

GIROLAMO DAI LIBRI, born in Verona in 1474, died July 22, 1555. Venetian school. Son of Francesco dai Libri, a miniaturist (or illuminator of books, whence he got his name), of whom no vestige has been preserved, and grandson of Stefano da Zevio. His first picture, Christ deposed from the Cross, in the Church of Malsesine, painted when sixteen years old, is an illustration of his education in the school of a miniaturist, but in his later works, inspired by a deep study of the Mantegnesques, he exhibits the form and the spirit of a greater art. His Madonna and Saints, lately in Hamilton Palace, near Glasgow, is a good example of this style. Later he shows the influence of Francesco Morone, as in the Madonna and Saints, Berlin Museum. Still later he acquires a more modern treatment in every branch of practice, as seen in the Conception, in S. Paolo, Verona. The culminating point in his career is reached in the Virgin in Glory and the Madonna and Saints (1530), Verona Museum; and in the Madonna and St. Anne, National Gallery, London. Beginning as a miniaturist, he rose to a high place amongst the painters of North Italy, being neither a plagiarist nor a servile copyist. His son, Francesco (born 1500), was a miniature and oil painter.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 493; Burekhardt, 606; Lübke, Gesch. d. ital. Mal., ii. 578.

GIROLAMO DA SANTA CROCE, born at Santa Croce (?), near Bergamo, flourished at Venice in 1520–49. Venetian school; history and landscape painter, perhaps pupil and assistant of Francesco da Santa Croce, of whom he may and may not have been a relative; further developed under influence of Giovanni Bellini and the great Venetian masters. Works: Nativity, Martyrdom of St. Sebastian, Coronation of the Virgin, Crucifixion, Berlin Museum; Nativity, Martyrdom of St. Lawrence, Dresden Gallery; St. Thomas Aquinas Enthroned (1520), S. Silvestro, Venice; Adoration of the Magi, Manfrini Gallery, ib.; Resurrection (early work), Last Supper (1549), S. Martino, ib.; Head of Christ, A Bishop, Academy, ib.; Crucifixion, Adoration of the Shepherds, Museo Civico, Verona; Coronation of the Virgin, God Father and Holy Family, Museo Civico, Padua; several in Bergamo Gallery; Nativity, Resurrection, Basle Museum.—Lübke, Gesch. ital. Mal., ii. 624.

GIROLAMO DA SERMONETA, born at Sermoneta about 1510 (?), died in Rome about 1580. Umbrian school. Real name Girolamo Siciokunte; pupil of Perino del Vaga, whom he assisted in his frescoes in Castello S. Angelo and in other works. Employed by Gregory XIII. in the decorations of the Sala Regia in the Vatican; also executed works in many churches in Rome. His best work is the Madonna and Saints, in S. Bartolommeo, Ancona. Said to have been a good portrait painter. His style is antiquated, more like that of the Peruginesque than of any of his contemporaries.—Vasari, ed. Le Mon., x. 170, 185; ed. Mil., vii. 571; Ch. Blanc, École ombrienne.

GIROLAMO DA TREVISO, the elder, of Padua, latter half of 15th century. Venetian school. Probable pupil of Squarcione, but painted chiefly at Treviso, where he is said to have finished an altarpiece and frescoes in S. Niccolò in 1470. His oldest known picture is the Death of the Virgin, at Lonigo, painted in 1478. Better than this is the Christ at the Column, in Casa Rinaldi, Treviso, in which there is an echo of Antonello da Messina. Virgin with Saints, Duomo, Treviso (1487).—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 355; Kugler (Eastlake), i. 294.

Grandfather's Birthday, Flute Player, In the Garden, Students' Household; Modern Paris and Three Graces (1882); Prestidigitator, William Astor, New York.—Müller, 209.

GISLER, ÉDOUARD; contemporary. History painter, pupil of Navez. Works: Jeremiah on Ruins of Jerusalem (1836), St. Gudule's, Brussels; The Virgin (1841).—Immerzeel, i. 280.

GIULIANO, BARTOLOMMEO, born at Susa, North Italy, in 1825. Genre and landscape painter, professor at Milan Academy. Works: Faust and Marguerite; Parisina; Difficult Passage; In Thoughts; Drinking Girl (1866).—Müller, 209.

GIULIO ROMANO, born in Rome in 1492, died in Mantua, Nov. 1, 1546. Real name Giulio Pippi de' Giannuzzi, but called Romano from his birthplace. Umbrian school; became the assistant of Raphael when quite young, and with Il Fattore and Pellegrino da Modena aided him in the decoration of the Vatican.

He was Raphael's favourite pupil and was, with Il Fattore, his heir and art executor. He painted frescos in Rome in the Villa Lanti, in the Villa Madama, which he built, and in Trinità de' Monti. Having fulfilled his duties towards Raphael by finishing his incomplete works in the Vatican, and in painting, with Il Fattore, the Assumption which Raphael had promised to the Convent of Monteluce, now in the Vatican, he went (1524) to Mantua and entered the service of Duke Federigo Gonzaga. There he directed works in architecture as well as in painting, having under him many scholars and assistants. While under Raphael's care he was a close imitator of his style; but when left to himself his taste soon became depraved, and he was largely responsible for the decay of Italian art. Among his works in Mantua are frescos in the Palazzo del Te, which he built. They represent the Defeat of the Giants, and the History of Cupid and Psyche, the latter with a licentious freedom of treatment which ill accords with the traditions of the school in which he was bred. He also painted other frescos in the Uffizio della Scacchiera and in several churches in Mantua. In 1546 he was chosen architect of St. Peter's, Rome, as successor to Sansovino, and was about to set out for that city when he died. Among the best of his few easel pictures are: Madonna del Bacino, Pan and the young Olympus, Dresden Gal.; Martyrdom of St. Stephen, S. Stefano, Genoa; Madonna, Sacristy of St. Peter's, Rome; Julius II. (copy of Raphael), Fornarina (copy of the GIUSTO D' ANDREA DI GIUSTO, Florentine school, flourished second half of 15th century. Son of Andrea di Giusto, Masaccio's assistant; worked under Neri di Bicci in 1458–59, with Fra Filippo in 1460, and assisted Benozzo Gozzoli in the Campo Santo, Pisa. His style is a mixture of that of Fra Filippo and of Gozzoli, but inferior to both. By him are, perhaps, a Madonna and Saints in S. Gimignano Gallery (attributed to Gozzoli); do. in S. Girolamo, Volterra; do. in Gallery Comunale, Prato; do.

in Florence Academy.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 516; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., ii. 258; iv. 191.

GLANTSCHNIGG, ULRICH, born at Hall, Tyrol, in 1661, died at Bozen in 1722. German school; history painter, pupil of Deutenhofer, then in Venice of Heinrich Frisch and Carlotto; travelled in Italy, Switzerland, visited Munich, and settled in Bozen in 1686. Painted also attractive genre pieces, with figures in Tyrolese costume, found in many private collections. Works: Legend of St. Francis of Assisi (1712), Franciscan Church, Bozen; The Three Magi, St. Catharine, Parish Church, ib.; Christ feeding the Five Thousand, City Hall, ib. His son and pupil, Josef Anton (1695–1750), was also an able and versatile artist, who worked for many years at Würzburg.—Wurzbach, v. 205.

GLASS, JAMES W., born about 1825, died in 1857. Historical genre painter, pupil of Huntington in New York in 1845. Lived and painted in London from 1847 to 1856. His Last Return from Duty, an equestrian portrait of the Duke of Wellington, painted in England, was bought by Lord Ellesmere, and repeated for the Queen. Works: Free Companion; Puritan and Cavalier; Edge Hill; Battle of Naseby, Wright Collection; Royal Standard.—Tuckerman, 421.

GLAUBER, JAN, called Polydor, born at Utrecht in 1646, died at Amsterdam or Schoonhoven in 1726. Dutch school; landscape painter, pupil of Berehem. After spending a year (1671) in Paris with the flower-painter, Picard, and two years in Lyons with Arij van der Kabel, he went to Rome, in company with his brother, Jan Godlieb, and his sister, Diana, also a skilful artist, and was received under the name of Polydor into the society of Dutch and German artists there, called the Schilderbent.

GLAUBER

Having spent two years in Rome, one year in Padua, and two years in Venice, he went in 1680 to Hamburg, and resided there and in Copenhagen until 1685, when he settled in Amsterdam, in the house of Gerard de Lairesse, who painted figures in his landscapes. His pictures show a conception kindred to Poussin, combining elevated composition with excellent drawing. In colouring, chiaroscuro, and individuality, he often surpassed his model. Works: Landscapes in the Louvre, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Brunswick, Cologne, Berlin, Vienna, and Madrid Museums, and Augsburg, Munich, Dresden, Copenhagen, Oldenburg, and Christiania Galleries, and Historical Society, New York.—Ch. Blanc, École hollandaise; Immerzeel, i. 280; Kraun, ii. 575; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 112.

GLAUBER, JAN GODLIEB, called Myrttil, born at Utrecht in 1656, died at Breslau in 1703. Dutch school; landscape painter, brother and pupil of Jan, whom he afterward accompanied to Italy, where his charming pastorals earned him the nickname Myrttil. After his return he sojourned in Vienna, Prague, and Breslau. His pictures, in the style of his brother Jan, are of poetic composition, warm in colouring, and careful in execution. Works: Landscapes, Augsburg Gallery, and Vienna Academy; Snake in the Grass, Glasgow Gallery.—Immerzeel, i. 280; Kraun, ii. 575.

GLAUCION, painter of Corinth, date unknown. Master of Athenion.—Pliny, xxxv. 40 [134].

GLEANERS, Jean François Millet, Bischoffsheim Collection, Paris. Three women gleaning in the foreground of a wheat-field; in background, two great stacks of grain, on one of which men are packing sheaves which another man is pitching up from a wagon drawn by oxen. Salon, 1857; Exposition universelle, 1867.

GLEANERS, RECALL OF THE (Rappel des Glaneuses), Jules Breton, Luxembourg Museum; canvas, H. 3 ft. × 5 ft. 9 in. The gleaners, a dozen or more women and girls, at work in a field on a sultry evening, are called from their labours by a "garde champêtre," who, leaning against a post at left, with his dog beside him, is shouting with both hands up to his mouth. Painted in 1859.—Gaz. des B. Arts (1859), ii. 288.

GLEICHAUF, RUDOLF, born at Hüfingen, Baden, July 29, 1826. History painter, pupil of Munich Academy under Julius Schnorr, whom he followed to Dresden, where he copied in the Gallery, then studied in the Städcl Institute in Frankfort, and devoted himself especially to monumental painting. Works: Decorations in New Theatre at Carlsruhe; Frieze in Castle Heiligenberg on Lake Constance; Frieze in Trinkhalle at Baden-Baden; Scenes from Schaffel's Aventure; several altarpieces; allegories in fresco in building of United Col. at Carlsruhe.—Müller, 210.

GLEICHEN-RUSSWURM, HEINRICH LUDWIG VON, Baron, born at Greifenstein-ob-Bonnland, Bavaria, Oct. 25, 1836. GLORIA, LA, Titian, Madrid Museum; canvas, H. 11 ft. 4 in. × 7 ft. 10 in.; signed. High in the heavens, in a halo of light, the Father and the Son are seated, with crystal orbs and sceptres in their hands; around them countless cherubim and seraphim fading away in a brilliant mist; lower down in the clouds the Virgin stands interceding for sinners, at whose head Charles V., to the right, with the crown at his feet, is kneeling; behind him is the Empress; lower down Mary of Hungary, Philip and his sister, all in winding-sheets, praying; still lower are Job (portrait of Vargas), Moses, Noah, and the Magdalen, and to the left in ascending lines the Evangelists and Prophets. Painted in 1554 for Charles V., who ordered it as a record of his intention to quit the throne. On his abdication (1555), he took it, with other pictures, to the Monastery of Yuste, where it was hung at the foot of his bed. Charles ordered the picture, which he called the Last Judgment, to be placed after his death on the high altar of the Monastery, but Philip removed it to the Escorial, from which it passed to the Museum. Sometimes called also the Trinity. Engraved by Cort; in reverse by Hondius.—Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 451; C. & C., Titian, ii. 232; Gachard, Retraite et Mort de Charles V. (Brussels, 1855), ii. 90; Revue Universelle des Arts, iii. 227.

GOD THE FATHER, WITH SAINTS, Fra Bartolommeo, Lucca Gallery; wood, figures under life-size; dated 1509. The Eternal, enthroned on the clouds, attended by cherubim and seraphim, with right hand raised in benediction; below, St. Catherine of Siena on the left, and Mary Magdalen on right, both kneeling in ecstasy and raised from the ground by a band of cherubim. Painted for Convent of S. Pietro Martire, Murano; but it remained in the hands of Fra Bartolommeo, who is supposed to have presented it to the Prior Santi Pagnini, of the Convent of S. Romano, Lucca; removed lately to the gallery.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 192; Marchese, ii. 52, 246, 363; C. & C., Italy, iii. 448.

GOD APPEARING TO NOAH, Raphael, Stanza d' Eliodoro, Vatican; fresco on ceiling. God the Father, accompanied by two angels, descending from heaven, and about to address Noah, who kneels in adoration; one of Noah's sons is near him, the two others with their mother, who, holding one in her arms, looks out from the door of her house. Vasari calls this the Covenant with Abraham. Painted in 1513-14. Engraved by Fr. Aquila; Michel Corneille; S. Rouillemont.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 346; Müntz, 370; Passavant, ii. 128.

GODDESS OF DISCORD, Joseph M. W. Turner, National Gallery, London; canvas, H. 4 ft. 11 in. × 7 ft. The Goddess of Discord choosing the apple of contention in the Garden of the Hesperides. The three daughters of Hesperus, Ægle, Hespere, and Erytheis, dwelt in the garden, where they had charge of the tree of the golden apples, the gift of Earth to Juno on her wedding-day. The Hesperides and the garden were guarded by the dragon Ladon, destroyed by Hercules in his eleventh labour. The Goddess of Discord, not having been invited to the marriage feast of Peleus and Thetis, procured one of these apples, and writing upon it, "For the most beautiful," threw it among the guests at the feast. It was claimed by Juno, Minerva, and Venus. Jupiter, to end the strife, ordered that the dispute should be settled by Paris, the shepherd of Mt. Ida. The Judgment of Paris, who awarded it to Venus, that goddess having promised him Helen of Sparta for his wife, led to the Trojan war. In Turner's picture, a glorious mountain landscape, with the River Lethon and nymphs in foreground, the Goddess of Discord is seen receiving the apple from the Hesperides; in the background, the fiery dragon is lying at length along the summit of a lofty crag. British Institution, 1806. Engraved by T. A. Prior in Turner Gallery.

GOES, HUGO VAN DER, born in Ghent about 1430, died in the Rooden Cloister, near Brussels, in 1482. Flemish school; history and portrait painter. In 1465 he was a member, and in 1473-75 dean, of the painters' guild at Ghent, where, in 1468, he assisted in preparing decorations for the marriage of Charles the Bold and Margaret of York. About 1475 he took refuge in the Rooden Cloister, of the Augustine Choir-Masters, whence, in 1479-80, he was called to Louvain, as one of the greatest painters in the country, to value an unfinished picture by Dieriek Bouts. About 1481 he became insane. The one authentic picture by Hugo van der Goes is the altarpiece in the Hospital of S. Maria Nuova, Florence, which was ordered at Bruges by Tommaso Portinari, and painted about 1470-75. The middle picture represents the Adoration of the Shepherds; on the wings are the portraits of Tommaso Portinari and his two sons, presented by SS. Matthew and Anthony, and of Folco Portinari, with his wife and daughter and their patron saints, Margaret and Mary Magdalen. Heads earnest and severe, draperies broken into stiff folds, colour wanting in harmony, cold, though clear in tone. Attributed to him is also an Annunciation in the Old Pinakothek at Munich.—Allgem. d. Biogr., ix. 322; Ch. Blanc, École flamande; Ed. GOLTZIUS, HENDRIK, born at Mühlbrecht, Duchy of Jülich, in Feb., 1558, died in Haarlem, Dec. 29, 1616, or Jan. 1, 1617. Dutch school; history, portrait, and landscape painter, although his great reputation rests upon his skill as an engraver, which was exceptional. He did not begin to paint until he was forty-two years old. Unhappily married to a rich widow much older than himself, he lost his health, and by the advice of his physicians travelled through Germany (1590), then went to Rome and (1592) to Naples. After his return to Haarlem he suffered from the harsh climate and gradually declined. He was a versatile, skilful, and extravagant mannerist, who, like Spranger, delighted in forced attitudes and unnaturally-developed muscles, and caricatured the style of Michelangelo, whom he endeavoured to emulate. Works: Female portrait, Brussels Museum; Adoration of the Magi, St. Maurice Chapel, Nuremberg; Adoration of the Shepherds, Stuttgart Gallery; Ecce Homo, Gotha Gallery; The Deluge (1592), Oldenburg Gallery; Titius attacked by the Vulture (1613), Haarlem Museum; Mercury presenting the Eyes of Argus to Juno (1615), Rotterdam Museum; Adam and Eve, Wiesbaden Gallery; Circumcision, Baptism of Christ, Adam and Eve, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; Family Group, Historical Society, New York.—Allgem. d. GOMEZ, SEBASTIAN, called El Mulato de Murillo, born about 1646 (?), died in Seville in 1682 (?) or 1690 (?). Spanish school, the mulatto slave of Murillo; learned his art by watching his master at work. According to the story, he once ventured to finish a Virgin's head which had been sketched by Murillo, who thereupon encouraged and aided him. His pictures, mostly religious subjects, are defective in drawing and in composition, but are much like Murillo's in colouring. Works: Holy Family, Seville Cathedral; Conception, Seville Museum; St. Francis of Assisi, Hermitage, St. Petersburg.—Stirling, ii. 928; Viardot, 226; Curtis, 340.

GONNE, (CHRISTIAN) FRIEDRICH, born in Dresden, May 30, 1813. Genre, history, and portrait painter, pupil of Dresden and Antwerp Academies; lived then in Berlin, Munich, and Rome, visited France, England, and Sweden, and became professor at the Dresden Academy in 1857. Honorary member of the Dresden Academy in 1854, and of Antwerp Academy in 1859. Works: Card-Players; Antiquary; Robber's Repentance; Ballad-Singer; Conventional Marriage; Kiss of Judas; Burning Memories (1869), Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Lady Macbeth (1872); Banquet in 16th Century (1874); Portrait of King John of Saxony, City Hall, Leipsic; Clown in State of Dejection, Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia.—Broekhaus, viii. 190; Müller, 212.

GOYA Y LUCIENTES, FRANCISCO

JOSÉ DE, born at Fuendetodos, Aragon, March 30, 1746, died at Bordeaux, April 15, 1828. Spanish school; history, genre, and portrait painter, pupil for five years of Lujan Martinez at Saragossa; spent several years in Rome, painting little, but making a careful study of the great pictures there. In 1772 he took the second prize at the Academy of Parma, and three years later returned to Madrid and painted many genre pictures which soon made him popular. In 1780 he became a member of the Academy of San Fernando, in 1795 director of the same, and painter in ordinary to Charles IV., an honour continued under Ferdinand VII. Goya painted also religious compositions and portraits, but he is best known as a satirist and caricaturist of very remarkable, though eccentric, genius, as his many etchings and sketches abundantly show. He has been called the Hogarth of Spain. Works: Equestrian Portrait of Charles IV., do. of Queen Maria Luisa, Charles IV. on foot, Queen Maria Luisa do., Charles IV. and his Family, Episode in French Invasion of 1808, Scenes of May 3, 1808, thirteen others, Madrid Museum; Equestrian Portrait of Ferdinand VII., do. of Prince of the Peace (Godoy), Madhouse, Bull-Fight, Gallant Dressed, Gallant Nude, and others, Academia San Fernando; Crucifixion, Museo de Fomento; St. Francis Preaching, S. ### GOYEN, JAN VAN, born at Leyden, Jan.

13, 1596, died at The Hague in 1656. Dutch school; became pupil of Esaias van de Velde in Haarlem about 1616, after having studied under various artists of no great repute, and made a tour through France. In 1618 settled in Leyden and married; in 1631 removed to The Hague, where in 1640 he was president of the guild. The date 1657, on a picture which he left unfinished at the time of his death, was added by his son-in-law, Jan Steen, who painted in the figures. Works: View of Nymwegen, Grosvenor Gallery, London; River Views (2), Marine, Winter Scene, two others, Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge; River Scene (1644), Marine View, Canal in Holland (1647), River in Holland (1653), Banks of Canal (1656), Louvre, Paris; Landscapes (8), Rothan Collection, ib.; River Scene, Lille Museum; View of Dordrecht (1644), Brussels Museum; River Scene (1645), The Valkenhof at Nymwegen, View on the Meuse, Amsterdam Museum; River in Holland, Rotterdam Museum; Halt of Travellers (Sal. GOZZOLI, BENOZZO, born in Florence in 1424, died there in 1498. Florentine school. Real name Benozzo di Lese di Sandro; pupil of Fra Angelico, whom he followed to Rome, and his assistant at Orvieto in 1447. He parted from him in 1449, and established himself at Montefalco, near Foligno, where he remained until 1456 and executed many important works in the manner of his master, though they are far from approaching him in spiritual power. Those in S. Fortunato consist of a Madonna with Saints and Angels, an Apotheosis of the titular Saint, an Annunciation, and St. Thomas receiving the Girdle, now in the Museum of St. John Lateran, Rome. In S. Francesco, Benozzo filled the choir with a triple course of episodes from the life of St. Francis, and painted a Madonna and Saints and other frescos in the Chapel of St. Jerome in the same church. In 1456, after painting in Perugia the Madonna and Saints, now in the Academy, Benozzo returned to Florence, and was employed by Piero de' Medici to paint a series of frescos representing the Journey of the Magi to Bethlehem, in the Chapel of the Palazzo Riccardi. In these, like the realists, he made Scripture incidents a vehicle for the treatment of rich costume, animal life, and landscape. In 1463-67 he painted in S. Agostino, San Gimignano, a series of scenes from the life of St. Augustine, and other subjects in the Pieve. Between 1469 and 1485 he painted, in the Campo Santo, Pisa, a series of frescos representing 24 subjects from the Old Testament, the most pleasing of which is Noah and his Family, which contains the charming episode of the vintage and a rich architectural and landscape background. Among his extant easel pictures are the Triumph of St. Thomas Aquinas, Louvre; Conception, Pisa Academy; Miracles of St. Hyacinth, Vatican, Rome; Madonna with Saints, Vienna Museum; Miracles of S. GRAAT, BAREND, born in Amsterdam in 1628, died there in 1709. Dutch school; landscape, genre, and history painter, pupil of his uncle, an animal and landscape painter; studied much from nature, and took Pieter van Laar for his model. He established a school of design at his house, where the best artists of his time congregated to draw from life. Works: Home Scene, Buckingham Palace, London; Hunt, Coursing (both with Reinier de Vries), New York Museum.—Immerzeel, i. 290; Kramm, ii. 598.

GRAAUW, HENDRIK, born at Hoorn, North Holland, in 1627, died at Alkmaar in 1682. Dutch school; history and portrait painter, pupil of Pieter de Grebber and of the architect Jacob van Campen; was then employed by Prince Maurice of Nassau to paint frescos in the cupola of the Palace in the Wood, which established his reputation; went in 1648 to Rome, where he was intimate with Poussin; returned after three years, and lived successively at Amsterdam and Utrecht until 1672, when he removed to Hoorn. For the family of Bronckhorst he painted a series of historical and fabulous subjects, which were much admired.—Immerzeel, i. 291.

GRACES, THREE, Palma Vecchio, Dresden Gallery; wood, H. 3 ft. 1 in. × 4 ft. 4 in. Three young women, half-length, grouped in a landscape. Sometimes called Palma's daughters, but it is doubtful whether they were painted from three models or from one. In 1525 in collection of Taddeo Conzarini, then in Giustiniani and Cornari families; bought from the Procuratessa Cornaro della Casa Grande for 600 ducats.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 480; Bottari, Raccolta, vii. 374.

By Raphael, Duc d'Aumale, Chantilly; wood, H. 6¾ in. × 4¾ in. Three Graces, nude, grouped in the classical form, each holding one of the apples of the Hesperides.

great reputation; in 1766 was called to Dresden as court-painter and professor at the Academy. There he developed an extraordinary activity, painted temporarily also in Berlin and Leipsic, besides making excursions into Southern Germany and Switzerland. According to his own statement, he painted, in 1766-73, 943 portraits and family groups, besides copying old masters for the Russian court and for his own improvement. Works: Portrait of Frederic Augustus of Saxony, do. (3) of himself, of Gellert, and six others, Dresden Gallery; do. of the Actor Eckhoff (1771), Gotha Museum; do. of the Painter Zingg, Saint Gall Museum; seven portraits, Leipsic Museum; six do., Weimar Museum; two do., Zürich Gallery; two do., National Gallery, Berlin; two do., Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Prince Friedrich Albrecht of Anhalt, Brunswick Museum; portraits of himself in Old Pinakothek, Munich, and Christiania Museum; do. of Lessing, Herder, Schiller, Moses Mendelssohn, Weisse, Ramler, Sulzer (Berne Museum), Hagedorn, Tiedge, Glück, Chodowiecky, King Frederic William II. His son, Karl Anton (born in Dresden, March 10, 1774, died there, March 9, 1832), was an able landscape painter, pupil of Zingg in Dresden.—Allgem. d. Biogr., ix. 565; Brockhaus, viii. 269; Muther, Ant. Graf, sein Leben, etc. (Leipsic, 1881).

GRÄFLE, ALBERT, born at Freiburg, Baden, May 2, 1809. History and portrait painter, pupil of Munich Academy under Cornelius and Schnorr; and in Paris in 1840 under Winterhalter; returned to Munich, went in 1848 to Alsace, where he painted portraits, then to England, again to Paris, and settled in Munich in 1852. Medal, Paris, 3d class, 1846. Works: Madonna, Triumphal Procession of Arminius, Karlsruhe Gallery; altarpieces in Lühr and Dundenheim, Baden; Four Seasons, Royal Palace, Karlsruhe; Procession in Dachau; Intimate Friends at Beethoven's; Dance of Elves; Woman with a Rose, Provinzial Museum, Hanover; portraits of Queen Victoria and Family, Princess of Wales, Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Prussia, Grand Duchess Louise of Baden, Emperor Maximilian and Empress of Mexico.—Müller, 216.

GRAHAM, JOHN, born in Scotland in 1754, died at Edinburgh in 1817. History painter, first apprenticed to a coach painter in Edinburgh, then in London pupil at the Royal Academy, where he exhibited from 1780 to 1797. Appointed in 1798 master of Trustees' Academy in Edinburgh, where he had among his pupils Wilkie, Allan, Burnett, and Gordon. Works: Daniel in Lions' Den (1780); Una (1783); Ceres in Search of Proserpine (1786); Escape of Mary Stuart from Lochleven (1788). GRANACCI, FRANCESCO, born in Florence, July 23, 1477, died there, Nov. 30, 1543. Florentine school; pupil of Domenico and David Ghirlandajo at same time with Michelangelo, with whom he formed an intimate friendship. His early tendency was to imitate the Michelangelesque, at the same time endeavouring to acquire the technical improvements of Mariotto Albertinelli and of Fra Bartolommeo. He was one of those whom Michelangelo invited to Rome in 1508 to aid in the frescos of the Sistine Chapel, but he did not satisfy him, and this led to their estrangement. After that Granacci came under Raphael's influence. On his return to Florence he became Ridolfo Ghirlandajo's partner, and devoted himself chiefly to the painting of banners and stage scenery. Among his best pictures are Virgin in Glory, Uffizi, Florence; Holy Family, Palazzo Pitti, ib.; Virgin and Saints, Academy, ib.; Madonna and Saints, The Trinity, Berlin Museum; The Virgin adoring the Child, Four Saints, Old Pinakothek, Munich; Nativity, Hermitage, St. Peters-

GRANDI

GRANDI, ERCOLE DI GIULIO, born in Ferrara about 1462, died there, July, 1531. Lombard school. Called also Ercole da Ferrara. Son of Giulio Cesare Grandi; was in the service of the Duke of Ferrara in 1492-99. He was a disciple of Costa, or rather of Francia as represented by Costa, in his later period. Among his typical works may be cited the Martyrdom of St. Sebastian in S. Paolo, Ferrara, and the St. George and the Dragon in the Corsini Gallery, Rome; Conversion of St. Paul, National Gallery, London.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 531, 550; Cittadella, Notizie di Ferrara, 422; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 141; ed. Le Mon., iv. 247; Burekhardt, 582.

GRANDI, ERCOLE DI ROBERTO, died in Ferrara before 1513. Lombard school. Called also Ercole da Ferrara or Ferrarese. Son of Roberto Grandi, and partner of his brother as a painter and gold-beater in Ferrara in 1479. Salaried by the Duke of Ferrara, by whom he was frequently employed; finished a view of Naples in 1490-93; and painted in 1494 the likeness of Hercules I. for Isabella of Mantua. Vasari, who confounds him with Ercole the disciple of Costa, ascribes to him the frescos in the Garganelli Chapel of S. Pietro, now destroyed. His Capture and Procession to Golgotha in the Dresden Museum (the centre-piece, belonging to these, a Pietà, is in the Royal Institution at Liverpool) show that he was a close follower of Mantegna rather than of Costa. In similar style are: Christ on the Mount, Ravenna Gallery; Crucified Saviour, Museo Civico, Venice; and the Lucretia, Modena Gallery.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 530; Vasari, ed. Le Mon., iv. 247; ed. Mil., iii. 141; Cittadella, Notizie di Ferrara, 583; Burekhardt, 582.

Works: Pont du Moulin (1865), Orléans Museum; The Brook (1866), Nantes Museum; River Meurthe (1871); Mill of Simoneau, Road to Fountain of St. Guinolé (1877); View near Gratain, Pasture in Sologne (1878); Valley of Plainfaing (1879); Valley of Bains, River Meurthe (1880); Port of Dieppe, Canal at Tréport (1881), Luxembourg Museum; Valley of the Bagnerot in November (1882); The Campine at Antwerp, Dieppe (1883); Kattendyk at Antwerp, Canal at Antwerp (1884); Sunrise, Sunset—Antwerp (1885).—Bellier de la Chavignerie, i. 687.

GRANET, FRANÇOIS-MARIUS, born in Aix, Provence, Dec. 17, 1775, died there, Nov. 21, 1819. Architecture painter, first instructed by an unknown Italian, then by the landscape painter Constantin, and afterwards by David in Paris. In 1802 he went to Rome, where he spent the greater part of his life and painted most of his pictures. They were chiefly interiors of churches, monasteries, etc., with historical scenes. Returned to Paris in 1819, made custodian of the paintings of the Louvre in 1826, and member of the Institute in 1830. After the revolution of 1848 he retired to Aix, and bequeathed to his native city his fortune and all his pictures to found a museum. Medal, 1808; L. of Honour, 1819; Officer, 1833; Order of St. Michael, 1826. Works: Interior of the Coliseum (1806), The Painter Sodoma carried to the Hospital (1815), Interior of the Basilica of St. Francis of Assisi (1823), Ransom of Prisoners in Algiers (1831), Portrait of Himself, Louvre, Paris; Funeral Honours to the Victims of Fieschi's Infernal Machine (1839), Invalides, ib.;

Alexander, contrary to the advice of his generals, crosses the rapid stream at the head of his cavalry, under a shower of missiles from the Persians, who occupy the opposite bank. He is attacked by Roesaces and Spithridates, two Persian captains, but, aided by Clytus, overthrows them; and the Macedonian phalanx crossing at the ford, the Persians are put to rout (Plutarch, Alex., xvi.). Series of History of Alexander. Engraved by G. Audran (1672).—Landon, Musée, iii. Pl. 45; Filhol, i. Pl. 5.

GRANT, Sir FRANCIS, born at Kilgaston, Perthshire, Scotland, in 1804, died in London, Oct. 5, 1878. Portrait painter, relinquished the law for art, and first became known in 1835–40 as a painter of sporting pictures containing portraits of noted huntsmen and horses, such as Meet of the Queen's Stag-Hounds (1837), and The Melton Hunt (1839), well known through engravings. Later he turned his attention to portrait painting; in 1841 exhibited an equestrian portrait of the Queen, and was elected an A.R.A.; in 1851 became R.A., and in 1866 succeeded Sir Charles Eastlake as P.R.A., and was knighted. His portraits were noted for striking resemblance, elegance, and simplicity. Among his

GREUZE, JEAN BAPTISTE, born at Tournus (Saône-et-Loire), Aug. 21, 1725, died in Paris, March 21, 1805. French school; genre and portrait painter, pupil in Lyons of Grandon, and in Paris of the Academy in 1755. His picture of the Father reading the Bible to his Children was exhibited and greatly admired in the same year, at the close of which he was taken to Italy by the Abbé Goujenot. After his return he exhibited at the Salons of 1757, 1759, and 1761, at which latter his Accordée du Village (Louvre) excited the greatest enthusiasm. Angry at being received into the Academy (1767) as a genre and not as a history painter, Greuze retired for a time to Anjou, whence he returned to exhibit pictures in his studio which attracted all Paris. He amassed a large fortune, but lost it at the Revolution. Neglected by the public, which admired only the new school of David, GRIFFIER, JAN, born in Amsterdam in 1656, died in London in 1718. Dutch school; landscape painter, pupil of Roeland Rognman, in whose atelier he became acquainted with Rembrandt, Ruysdael, Adriaan van de Velde, and Lingelbach. In 1667 he went to London, where he painted Italian landscapes with ruins, and views of the Thames. As the latter found great favour, he bought a vessel in 1695 and sailed about between Windsor and Gravesend in order to study coast scenery. In 1695 he sailed for Rotterdam, but was wrecked and lost all his property. Nevertheless, he bought a new vessel and again cruised from place to place to paint. In 1787 he returned to England, where his pictures were greatly valued. GRÖGER, FRIEDRICH KARL, born at Ploen, Holstein, Oct. 14, 1766, died in Hamburg, Nov. 9, 1838. Portrait painter, self-taught. In 1789 he went with Aldenrath to Berlin, frequented the Academy for some time, then went to Hamburg, and in 1798 studied in Dresden. Painted for several years in Kiel and Copenhagen, and finally settled in Hamburg. Works: Portrait of the Artist, Dresden Gallery; Portraits of Man and Wife (1829), Portrait of Pastor Klefeker, do. of Aldenrath, do. of himself, his adopted daughter, and Aldenrath (conjointly with the latter), Kunsthalle, Hamburg; others in Lübeck, Kiel, Copenhagen Galleries.—Allgem. d. Biogr., ix. 708; Weilbach, 213.

GRÖNLAND, THEUDE, born at Altona, Aug. 31, 1817, died in Berlin, April 16, 1876. Landscape and still-life painter, pupil of Copenhagen Academy; lived then for three years in Italy, as long in England, and twenty-five years in Paris. Settled in 1868 in Berlin, where he had many pupils. Member of Copenhagen Academy. Medals: Paris, 1st class, 1848; 2d class, 1855. Work, Fruit-piece, National Gallery, Berlin. His son, René, born in Paris, Oct. 3, 1849, painted similar subjects.—Weilbach, 213; Jordan, 108; Rosenberg, Berl. Malersch., 352.

GRÖNVOLD, MARCUS, born at Bergen, Norway, July 5, 1845. Portrait and genre painter, pupil of Copenhagen and of Munich Academies, and studied from 1870 to 1878 under Wilhelm Diez, Otto Seitz, and Piloty; won several medals, visited Italy in 1874, Berlin and Düsseldorf in 1876, and Paris in 1878; member of jury at Düsseldorf Exhibition in 1880. Works: The Burgomas-ter; Consolation; Uninvited Guests; Poachers; Sunday Morning; Scene from Saga of Wieland the Smith, Cologne Museum; Portrait of Knut Baade.—Illustr. Zeitg. (1881), i. 41; Müller, 218; Leixner, D. mod. K., ii. 79.

GROS, ANTOINE JEAN, Baron, born in Paris, March 16, 1771, died there, June 27, 1835. History and portrait painter, son of Jean Antoine, miniature painter, and pupil of David; competed unsuccessfully for the prix de Rome in 1792, supported himself by painting portraits, and in 1793 went to Italy. In 1796 he was presented to General Bonaparte at Milan, and obtained his favour by painting him on the bridge at Arcole. The General had the picture engraved by Longhi, gave the plate to Gros, appointed him review inspector, and put him on the commission charged to select works of art to be sent to France. In 1799 he escaped from Genoa on an English ship, arrived half dead at Antibes, and in 1801 gained at Paris a competition prize for a sketch of Battle of Nazareth, an historical picture never executed. Up to 1812, he painted battles of the Empire and portraits, then was commissioned to paint the cupola of St. Geneviève, which he finished in 1824, when he was ennobled. In 1815 directed the school of David during that painter's exile; in 1816 named member of the Institute, counsellor of Royal Museum, professor of École des Beaux Arts; 1819, Order of San Michel; 1828, L. of Honour. His portrait of Charles X. (1827), some ceilings at the Louvre, and a Hercules exhibited in 1835, were so severely criticised that Gros fell into a state of melancholy and drowned himself. Between 1816 and 1835 he had formed more than four hundred pupils. Works: Girl Bathing (1791), Female Portrait, Besançon Museum; Female Portrait (1798), Marseilles Museum; Battle of Nazareth (1801, sketch), Nantes Museum; Plague of Jaffa (1804), Battlefield of Eylau (1808), Francis I. and Charles V. visiting the Tombs in St. Denis (1812), Louvre, Paris;

GUERCINO, IL, born at Cento, Feb. 8, 1591, died in Bologna, Dec. 22, 1666. Bolognese school. Real name Giovanni Francesco Barbieri, but called Guercino because he squinted. Son of a peasant and mostly self-taught, but studied the works of the Carracci; afterward studied under Benedetto Gennari and later in Venice and Bologna. Went to Rome in 1621, returned to Cento in 1623, and in 1642 established himself in Bologna. His house in Cento, Casa di Guercino, contains many of his works; others are in the Church del Rosario. His statue by Galletti is in the Piazza. Guercino painted at first in the manner of the Carracci, but afterward inclined to imitate Caravaggio, and a few of his latest works approach the manner of Guido; but he is very unequal, and some of his pictures are crude and marked by an insipid mannerism. His masterpiece is St. Petronilla raised from the Tomb, Capitoline Gallery, Rome. Works: Investiture of St. Guglielmo (1620), St. John Evangelist, Death of St. Peter Martyr, Vision of St. Bruno in the Desert, Bologna Gallery; St. Sebastian (2), Madonna della Rondinella, Apollo and Marsyas, St. Peter raising Tabitha, Moses, St. Peter, Susanna at the Bath, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; Samian Sibyl (1651), Endymion, Uffizi, ib.; Dying Cleopatra, Death of Cato, Holy Family, Palazzo Brignoli-Sala, Genoa; Mutius Scaevola, Palazzo Palavicini, ib.; Andromeda, Death of Cleopatra, Palazzo Balbi, ib.; Dismissal of Hagar, Brera, Milan; Magdalen, Marriage of St. Catherine, Deposition, Naples Museum; Mater Dolorosa, Return of the Prodigal, Palazzo Borghese, Rome; Persian Sibyl, St. Petronilla, Cleopatra and Octavins, John Baptist, Capitol Gallery, ib.; Aurora, Fame with Force and Virtue, Palazzo Ludovisi, ib.; Christ at the Well, Ecce Homo, St. Jerome, Palazzo Corsini, ib.; Death of Dido, Palazzo Spada, ib.; Incredulity of St. Thomas, St. Margaret of Cortona, Magdalen, Vatican, ib.; Martyrdom of St. Peter, Mars, Venus and Cupid, Modena Gallery; Ecce Homo, St. Francis of Assisi, St. Jerome, St. Elizabeth Queen of Hungary, St. James, St. Frances, Return of Prodigal, and others, Turin Gallery; Ma-

GUIDI, TOMMASO DI GIOVANNI.
See Masaccio.

GUIDO (Guido Reni), born in Bologna, Nov. 4, 1575, died there, Aug. 18, 1642. Bolognese school. Son of Daniele Reni, a musician; pupil of Denis Calvart, afterward of the Carracci.

For a time he was the favourite pupil of Lodovico, but he soon aroused so much jealousy that he was dismissed from the academy. After painting several years in Bologna, where his pictures excited much admiration, he went to Rome about 1608, with his fellow-pupil Francesco Albani, and notwithstanding the opposition of Caravaggio and of Annibale Carracci, then at work in the Palazzo Farnese, he soon won an honourable position. Caravaggio was then the fashion in Rome, and when Cardinal Borghese gave Guido an order for the Crucifixion of St. Peter, he coupled it with the command that it should be in the manner of that painter. Guido obeyed, but he gave his composition a grandeur and dignity beyond the powers of Caravaggio. Paul V. employed him to decorate the private chapel in the Palace of Monte Cavallo, a work which gained him great reputation and made him many enemies, even his friend Albani becoming inimical when he found that Guido's fame was likely to exceed his own. After an absence in Rome of twenty years, Guido returned to Bologna, where he painted the Massacre of the Innocents for S. Domenico, now in the Bologna Gallery, and St. Paul reproving St. Peter, for the Palazzo Zampieri, now in the Brera, Milan. Paul V. soon induced him to return to Rome, where he executed works in S. M. Maggiore and other public buildings, his most famous one being the fresco Aurora, in the pavilion of the Palazzo Rospigliosi. Guido's productions vary much in manner according to the time of their execution, and may be assigned to three different periods: The first, marked by strong contrasts of light and shade; the second or transition period, stronger and more natural; the third, pale-gray tones and insipid sentiment. Works: Massacre of Innocents, Madonna della Pietà, Christ on the Cross, Samson Victorious, St. Sebastian, Madonna of the Rosary, Coronation of Virgin, Ecce Homo, Bologna Gallery; Bacchus and Ariadne, Fortune, Cupid, *Accademia di S. GUIDO DA SIENA, Siensese school, latter half of 13th century. The Madonna in S. Domenico, Siena, falsely dated 1221, was painted probably in 1281; and Guido is probably identical with Guido Graziani, who appears in documents of 1278. The inscription has been often retouched, and the heads of the Virgin and Child have evidently been entirely repainted. This is important, as upon it rests the question whether Florence or Siena was the cradle of the revival of painting in the 13th century. By the rectification of the date, the priority of the Florentine Cimabue to the Siensese Guido is established, and the honour remains to Florence. The Madonna in the Academy at Siena, also ascribed to Guido, is much inferior to the one at S. Domenico. A Madonna with Saints, attributed to him, is in the Gallery of the Historical Society of New York.—C. & C., Italy, i. 180; Vasari, ed. ## HADAMARD

Academy of Le Sueur. After visiting Stralsund (1762), the Isle of Rügen, and Stockholm, he went to Paris in 1765, painted in Normandy, and rapidly acquired a name and wealth; with his brother, Johann Gottlieb, he went to Rome in 1768, and there established his fame by six pictures representing the Naval Battle at Tschesme and the Burning of the Turkish Fleet, painted by order of Catharine II. In 1772 he visited London, returned to Italy, and in 1786 became court-painter to the King of Naples, and enjoyed much distinction, until the revolution caused him to leave for Florence in 1799. He bought a villa at Careggi in 1803. Although one of the most noteworthy landscape painters of the 18th century, he was a clever mannerist, who by his many pictures attained to greater reputation than he deserved. Works: Italian Landscape, Cassel Gallery; He-Goat at a Brook (1776), Weimar Museum; Ideal Landscapes (2, 1782), Gotha Museum; Coast View with Kunsthalle, Hamburg; Italian Landscape (1794), Oldenburg Gallery. He had four brothers, all painters: Karl Ludwig (1740-1800), Johann Gottlieb (1744-73), Wilhelm (1748-80), and Georg Abraham (1755-1805). They followed their brother to Italy, where they often worked conjointly, and for many Englishmen, the Pope, the Emperor Joseph II., Catherine II., and the court of Naples.—Allgem. d. Biogr., x. 295; Brockhaus, viii. 688; Goethe, Phil. Hackert.

HALS

HALS, FRANS, the elder, born in Antwerp in 1584, died in Haarlem, Aug. 26, 1666. Dutch school; portrait and genre painter of great renown; pupil of Karel Van Mander. A most influential teacher and founder of a national style, and a portrait painter to be ranked with the greatest masters. Addicted to drunkenness, according to Houbraken, he was never prosperous, despite his long and active life and his unusual talent, which excited Van Dyck's admiration. In 1664, reduced to sheer want, he was supported by the municipality and pensioned. Flesh-colouring unequalled; handling broad, masterly, and vigorous. Pictures unequal in merit; his immense facility sometimes led him to be careless and sketchy. Works: Joh. Bogardus (1614); Banquet of Officers (1616), do. (1627), do. (1627), Assembly of Officers (1633), Officers of St. George's Guild (1639), Regents of St. Elizabeth's Hospital (1641), Regents of Old Men's Hospital (1664), do. ## HEAPHY

Governor Morgan, Dr. C. R. Agnew (1883); Dr. Wyman, Miss Horsford, and others (1885).—Tuckerman, 339.

HEAPHY, THOMAS, born in London, Dec. 29, 1775, died Nov. 19, 1835. Was originally a dyer, then an engraver, and finally devoted himself to water-colour painting; in 1800 he exhibited two portraits at the Royal Academy, and became a student in the Academy schools. In 1804 his first subject picture, The Portland Fish-Girl, was well received, and in 1809 his Hastings Fish Market brought him reputation. He was one of the earliest members of the old Water Colour Society, but left it in 1812; and was one of the founders and the first president in 1824 of the Society of British Artists, but withdrew from it in 1829. Visited Italy in 1831, and on his return engaged in the formation of the new Water Colour Society, of which he was one of the first members. He painted miniatures of many distinguished people, and was portrait painter to the Princess of Wales. His eldest daughter, Miss Heaphy, exhibited miniatures at the Royal Academy from 1822 to 1845; and another daughter, Elizabeth Heaphy, from 1838 to 1844.

HEAPHY, THOMAS FRANK, born in 1813, died Aug. 7, 1873. History and portrait painter, son and pupil of Thomas Heaphy; began as a portrait painter, first exhibiting at Royal Academy in 1831, but after 1858 painted chiefly historical pieces. Member of Society of British Artists. Works: Mary Magdalen going to the Sepulchre (1846); Infant Pan educated by Wood Nymphs (1850); Parting of Catherine and Bianca (1853); Kepler in Poverty taken for a Fortune-Teller (1863); Palissy the Potter taken for a Coiner (1864); Unexpected Inheritance (1865); Mary Stuart at Tutbury Castle (1872).

HEARTS ARE TRUMPS, John Everett Millais, J. H. Seeker, London; canvas, H. 5 ft. 4 in. × 7 ft. 5 in. Three English ladies (Misses Armstrong) seated at a card table, playing whist with a dummy. Royal Academy, 1872; painted for Walter Armstrong; at his sale (1876) 1,300 guineas; Exposition Universelle, Paris, 1878.

HÉBERT, (ANTOINE AUGUSTE) ER-

NEST, born at Grenoble, Nov. 3, 1817. Genre painter, pupil of David d'Angers and Paul Delaroehe. Abandoned the law for painting on account of the success of a picture sent to the Salon, which was bought by the government. Won the grand prix de Rome in 1839. Made repeated visits to Italy. His style is poetical, but often too sentimental. Medals: 1st class, 1851 and 1855; 2d class, 1867; L. of Honour, 1853; Officer, 1867; Commander, 1874; Member of Institute, 1874; director of the French School of Art in Rome from 1866 to 1873, and again in 1885. Works: Tasso in Prison, Cup found in Benjamin's Sack (1839); Two Odalisques, Copy of the Sibyl Delphica (1840-41); Oriental Revery, The Siesta, Almeh, Italian Priest, Morning in the Woods, Peasant of Guérande making Butter (1847 and 1848); La Malaria (1850), Kiss of Judas (1853), Luxembourg; Crescenza, Ficnaroles, Girls of Alvito (1855), Rosa Nera at the Fountain; Girls of Cervaro (1859), Female Portrait, Luxembourg; Portrait of Princess Marie Clotilde, Street in Cervaro (1861); Young Girl at the Well (1863), Empress Eugénie; Pasqua Maria (1863), Baroness James de Rothschild; Black Pearl, Type of Italian Woman (1866); Adam and Eve driven from Paradise (1867); Pastorella, Lavandaia (1869); Morning and Evening of Life (1870); Popular Italian Muse (1872); Madonna de Délivrance, Church at Grenoble; do., Study, Mrs. Mary J. (baptized?), April 8, 1631, died in Antwerp, buried May 17, 1695. Dutch school; still-life painter, son and pupil of Jan Davidsz de Heem, whom he followed to Antwerp about 1665, and there became master of the guild in 1660; worked also at The Hague, where he is mentioned in documents in 1676 and 1678. There is little doubt that many of his works pass under the name of his famous progenitor. Works: Fruit-piece (1671),

HEEM, DAVID DE, the elder, born at Utrecht in 1570 (?), died at Antwerp (?) in 1632 (?). Dutch school; still-life painter of distinction, of whose life nothing is known, and some of whose works are possibly attributed in public galleries to his famous son, Jan. As, however, there were besides him three other painters called David de Heem, namely, his son, David the younger, master of the guild at Utrecht in 1668, and to whom is ascribed a Fruit-piece in the Amsterdam Museum; David III. (born in 1628), son of Jan Davidsz; and David IV. (1663-1718), son of Cornelis, it is difficult to determine to which of these the following works should be assigned: Fruits with Oysters and Wineglass (David the elder?), Brunswiek Museum; Fruits on Table, small picture with cavern, Flower-piece, Uffizi, Florence.—Kramm, iii. 652; Riegel, Beiträge, ii. 439; Van Lerijs, i. 213, 217.

Utrecht, probably in 1600,
died in Antwerp, between
Oct. 14, 1683,
and April 26, 1684. Dutch school; fruit and flower
painter, son and pupil of David the elder. He first developed the art of fruit painting; works distinguished for admirable taste of arrangement, excellent drawing, fine feeling for nature, and a depth and richness of colouring sometimes approaching Rembrandt. Works: Fruit-

HEINRICH OF DÜDERSTADT, monk, German school, early part of 15th century. His large altarpiece (1424), now in the library at Göttingen, representing the Twelve Apostles, the Crucifixion, and eighteen small Passion-Scenes, show that he was influenced by the school of Cologne.—Kugler, Gesch. d. Malerei, i. 257; Schnaase, vi. 479.

HEINTSCH, JOHANN GEORG, born in Silesia about middle of 17th century, died in Prague in 1713. German school; lived in Prague from 1678, married in 1704, and took the freedom of the city. Quirin Jahn, his contemporary, says that he belonged to a monastic fraternity. In his later works he was influenced by Carl Sereta, who died (1674) a few years before Heintsch's arrival in Prague. Works in Prague: Altarpiece, Jesuit Church; Madonna (1696), Karlshofer Stiftskirche; Altarpiece, St. Henry's; Side Altarpieces, St. Catherine's; Holy Family, Minorites Church; Transportation of St. Wenceslaus' Body to Prague in 910 (1692), Teinkirche; several pictures in chapels and cloister of the Kreuzherren-Stift; Christ in the Temple, St. Joseph, St. Clemens adoring the Virgin, St. Ignatius and Trinity, Martyrdom of St. Vitus, St. Francis Xavier baptizing Moorish Prince, Four Elements, Bust Portrait of Praying Woman, St. Norbert, St. Aloysius, Flight to Egypt.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xi. 660; Kugler (Crowe), 528.

HEINZ, JOSEPH, the elder, born in Berne in 1565, died in Prague, Oct. 15, 1609. German school; history painter, called by Van Mander a pupil of Johann van Achen, which seems doubtful, as the latter went to Venice in 1574. Heinz went to negro with an ape and a dog. This picture, celebrated in its time in verse and prose, was painted for the King of Spain; but he finding the price too high, Guido sold it to M. de La Foreade for Maria de' Médici; the queen being obliged to leave Paris, M. Foreade sold it to Louis Phéliepeaux, Seigneur de La Villière, from whom it passed through several other hands to the Musée Napoléon. Engraved by Desplaces.—London, Musée, xi. Pl. 50.

HELENA, painter, daughter of Timon of Egypt, 4th century B.C. The mosaic of the Battle of Issus, at Naples, is perhaps a reproduction of her only recorded work.—Ptolem. Hephaest. in Phot. Bibl., p. 482 (ed. Hoeschel).

HELENA, ST., VISION OF, Paolo Veronese, National Gallery, London; canvas, H.

Vision of St. Helena, Paolo Veronese, Vatican, Rome.

6 ft. 5 in. × 3 ft. 9 in. The Saint, in sleep or reverie, reclines on a marble window-seat, resting her head upon her right hand; through the open window are seen two cherubim bearing a cross. The design appears to be after an engraving by Marc Antonio, supposed to be after a drawing by Raphael. Etched by E. W. Sherborn in Art Journal (1884), 257.—Nat. Gal. Cat.; Bartseh, xiv. 443; Richter, 74.

By Paolo Veronese, Vatican, Rome. Seated, asleep, wearing the imperial crown, and clad in a rich brocaded Venetian costume, her head resting upon her left hand; at right, a little angel standing holds a Greek cross. Acquired from Galleria Sacchetti by Benedict XIV., who placed it in the Capitol Museum, whence removed to Vatican. Engraved by Gius. Craffonara.—Larousse, ix. 19; Vaticano descritto, vi. Pl. 76.

HELFFT, JULIUS, born in Berlin, April 6, 1818. Landscape and architecture painter, pupil of Berlin Academy and of W. Schirmer; went in 1843 to Italy, painted there a series of views around Florence for King Frederick William IV., then visited Rome, Naples, and Sicily, and returned in 1847, when he was appointed professor in Berlin Academy. Works: Sicilian Cloister Yard (1847), Doge's Palace—Venice (1856), National Gallery, Berlin; Canal Grande in Venice; San Miniato near Florence.—Müller, 247.

HELIODORUS, painter, of Athens, date unknown. Perhaps identical with sculptor of same name mentioned by Pliny (xxxvi. 4 [91]), some of whose statues were in the Temple of Jupiter in the Portico of Octavia, Rome.—Pausan., 1, 37, 1.

HELIODORUS, EXPULSION OF, Raphael, Stanza d'Eliodoro, Vatican; fresco. Heliodorus, treasurer of the Syrian king, attempting to plunder the Temple at Jerusalem, is driven out by two avenging angels (2 Maccabees, ii. 25). In background the High Priest Onias praying before the tabernacle; in foreground, right, the answer to the prayer—Heliodorus overthrown, and his soldiers put to flight by two angels with scourges and a celestial horseman; at left, the assembled people and Julius II. in his chair of state. The bearer in front is Marc Antonio Raimondi, and another farther back is supposed to be Giulio Romano. Typical of the victory of the Papacy over its enemies, especially Louis XII. of France. Painted in HELT-STOKADE, NICOLAAS VAN, born at Nymwegen about 1614, died in 1669. Dutch school; history and portrait painter, pupil of David Ryckaert the elder; for a time court-painter in France, but lived mostly in Rome and Venice, though at Amsterdam in 1654. Many European princes ordered pictures of him, as he was an excellent colourist. He supplied the landscapes of Wynants, Hackaert, and De Heuseh with figures. Works: Grain Market under Joseph in Egypt, Town Hall, Amsterdam; Figures in Border of a Forest (by Wynants, 1659), Hague Museum; Susanna at the Bath, Leipsic Museum; Male Portrait, Old Pinakothek, Munich.—Immerzeel, iii. 115; Kraunm, v. 1575; De Stuers, 186; Van den Branden, 871.

HÉMICYCLE, Paul Delaroche, Palais des Beaux-Arts, Paris; encaustic painting, H. 15 ft. × about 50 ft. Scene—the portico of an Ionic temple; in centre sits Apelles enthroned, with Ictinus on his right and Phidias on his left. Near them are five allegorical figures: in front, Fame, nude, kneeling, casting out wreaths from a heap at her side; back of her, at left, seated, are Greek Art and Gothic Art, the latter (with the model of a cathedral) a portrait of Delaroche's wife, daughter of Horace Vernet; at right, Roman Art and Renaissance Art. On each side of this ideal group extend the wings of the picture, in which are grouped the great artists of the world, standing or sitting in their habits as they moved of old. The work contains 75 colossal figures. The original, called the Hémicycle because it occupies the semicircular frieze of the amphitheatre of the Beaux-Arts, was painted in 1837–41. Delaroche received for it 80,000 francs, the price set for a canvas of fifteen figures, the work originally contemplated. It was injured by fire in 1855, but the damage was repaired by the artist himself, aided by Mercier and Fleury. The engraving by Henriquel Dupont cost eight years' labour. Delaroche made for Dupont's use a copy of the work, in small (1853), now owned by W. T. Walters, Baltimore. There is a photogravure of it in Art Treasures of America, together with a key to the figures. The original sketch for the large work is in the Nantes Museum.—Art Treas. of Amer., i. 82; Mrs. Jameson; Gaz. des B. Arts (1860), viii. 354.

HEMISSSEN (Hemishem, Hensen), JAN VAN, born at Hemishem (Hemixem), near Antwerp, about 1500, died at Haarlem between 1555 and 1566. Flemish school. Real name Jan Sanders. History and portrait painter, pupil at Antwerp of Hendrik van Cleve in 1519, master of the guild before 1524, its dean in 1548; removed to Haarlem in 1551. Although, in his time, the influence of the Italian school asserted itself strongly, he adhered to the old traditions, and took Quinten Massys for his model. Works: Calling of St. Matthew, Museum, Antwerp; do., Theodor van Lerius, ib.; do., Ghent Museum; Prodigal Son (1556), Brussels Museum; Tobias restoring his Father's Sight (1555), Louvre, Paris; Christ driving out the Money-Changeers (1556), Nancy Museum; Madonna, Village Physician, Madrid Museum; Abraham's Sacrifice, Germanic Museum, Nuremberg; Calling of St. Matthew (1536), Isaac blessing Jacob, Holy Family (1541), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Mocking of Christ (1544), Schleissheim Gallery; Calling of St. Matthew, do. (1537), do. (1548), St. Jerome, St. William, Portrait of Mabuse, Vienna Museum; St. Ursula, Adoration of the Magi, Prince Albert Collection, London. His daughter and pupil, Catharina, was an artist of merit; went with her husband, a musician, to Spain, where both entered the service of the Queen of Hungary. A Male Portrait by are surrounded by her companions. Painted for Don Andrea d'Avados, Prince of Montesarcelio. In catalogue of 1722. Engraved by C. Dutlos.—Gal. Roy. de Dresde, i. Pl. 40.

By Alessandro Turchi, Munich Gallery; canvas, H. 5 ft. 1 in. × 7 ft. 3 in. The god, nude, seated in an antique chair, spinning; before him, Omphale, nearly nude, her back covered with the lion's skin, leans one arm on the hero's club, and glances at her companions, three other young women, who mock Hercules, while Cupid looks on with a pitying expression. Formerly attributed to Domenichino.

HERCULES STRANGLING THE SERPENTS, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; canvas. In the centre Hercules grasps the serpents by the throat, while Iphicles cowers in terror beside him; on one side rushes in Alcmene, with attendants, half clad, as if aroused from sleep; on the other, Amphitryon, sword in hand, followed by servants with torches; Tiresias the blind seer (head of Samuel Johnson) stands by with uplifted hands; above, Juno looks down from black clouds at the battling of her vengeance. Painted in 1788 for Catherine II. of Russia, who paid for it 1,500 guineas, and sent Sir Joshua in addition a gold snuff-box, on which was her portrait with cypher in diamonds. Engraved by J. Hodges, J. Walker; original sketch in possession of Lord Arran. Lord Fitzwilliam owns a repetition of the figure of the Hercules.—Leslie Taylor, ii. 482, 500, 516, 538; Pulling, 83; Northcote, ii. 214; Beechey, i. 244; Art Journal (1860), 358; Notes and Queries, 4th S., ix. 333; Atkinson, Art Tour, 248.

HERCULES, TEMPLE OF, Francia Biggio, Uffizi, Florence; wood. The statue of Hercules, on a pedestal, under the portico of a temple, with soldiers, philosophers, and others grouped around it. Of his late period. Probably part of a cassone or chest.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 512; Ch. Blanc, École florentine; Molini, Gal. di Firenze, ii. 61; Lasinio, i. Pl. 63.

HERCULES

HERCULES BETWEEN VICE AND VIRTUE, Annibale Carracci, Naples Museum. Scene from allegory by Prodicus, preserved by Xenophon in the Memorabilia. Hercules, seated between two women, appears irresolute; Virtue, chastely clad, presents a sword and points heavenward; Vice, reclining upon a couch strewn with flowers, displays her charms and invites him to pleasure. Engraved by N. Mignard.—Larousse, ix. 214.

By Rubens, Uffizi, Florence. Hercules, seated in a landscape, with Venus on his right and Cupid embracing his knees; on his left, Minerva, who takes him by the hand and points to arms; above, Time, bearing emblems of life; the god, while turning his eyes toward the goddess of pleasure, appears ready to follow Minerva.—Larousse, ix. 214.

HERCULES LED BY WISDOM, Paolo Veronese, Hope Collection, London; canvas. Hercules, emblematical of strength, is led by Wisdom, and gazes tranquilly on worldly Love, who is at his feet. From Orleans Gallery; sold in 1793 for £300.—Cal. Crozat, ii. Pl. 24; Waagen, Treasures, ii. 113, 498.

HERDTLE, HERMANN, born in Stuttgart, Sept. 20, 1819. he accompanied the Turkish expedition to Asia Minor, Palestine, and Persia, was made a Bey by the Sultan; visited Egypt, Nubia, and Abyssinia in 1847, and returned to Berlin in 1848 via Italy, France, Spain, and England. In 1855 he moved to Dresden. Works: Street in Cairo; Plain of Thebes; Street in Bagdad; View of Sidon; View on White Nile; View on Red Sea; Colossus of Memnon; Coast of Paphos in Cyprus; View on Lake Como; Canal in Venice; Acropolis at Athens; Temple of Isis on Isle of Philæ; Theatre of Taormina; Forum at Rome; Temple of Vesta; Tivoli from Neptune's Grotto; Posilippo.—Müller, 254.

HERRERA, ALONZO DE, living at Segovia in 1579, intimate friend of El Mudo. Spanish school. In 1590 he painted, for the high altar of the Church of Villa-Castin, six pictures illustrating the life of Christ, which were ruined in 1731 by a bungling restorer.—Cean Bermudez; Stirling, i. 290.

HERRERA, FRANCISCO DE, el Viejo (the elder), born in Seville about 1576, died in Madrid in 1656. Spanish school; pupil of Luis Fernandez, but disdainful to imitate him, adopted a free bold style, and became one of the most original and famous artists of his time in Spain. He painted many religious compositions, and attracted numerous students, among whom was Velasquez, but his temper was so violent that he was abandoned by even his children. Accused of coining false money, he took refuge in the Jesuits' College, Seville, where he painted a noble altarpiece, St. Hermengild in Glory, now in the Seville Museum. Philip IV. on seeing this picture granted him a free pardon. In 1650 he settled in Madrid. Other works: Last Judgment, S. Bernardo, Seville; St. Peter, Cathedral, ib.;

St. Basil, Museum, ib.; Israelites gathering Manna, Moses smiting the Rock, Marriage at Cana, Miracle of Loaves and Fishes, Archbishop's Palace, ib.; St. Augustine and Church Fathers, St. Jerome and do., Montpensier Collection, ib.; St. Basil Dictating, Louvre; St. Matthew, Dresden Museum. He also executed many frescoes, of which but few remain. His eldest son, called El Rubio, was an artist of merit, but died young.—Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Stirling, i. 454; Viardot, 191.

HERRERA, FRANCISCO DE, el Mozo (the younger), born in Seville in 1622, died in Madrid in 1685. Spanish school; son and pupil of Francisco de Herrera, el Viejo, from whom he ran away and went to Rome, where he learned to paint still-life, especially fish, so well that he was called Il Spagnuolo degli Pesci. Returning to Seville on the death of his father, he painted several large altarpieces for churches. In 1660 he aided in founding the Academy at Seville, of which Murillo was chosen president and Herrera second or vice-president; but, displeased at this inferior position, he went in 1661 to Madrid, where he became painter to Philip IV. and superintendent of the royal works (1671). Named royal painter to Charles II. Though possessed of considerable mechanical facility, Herrera did not inherit much of his father's genius; he coloured with some brilliancy, but his drawing and his composition are alike affected.

Works: Triumph of St. Hermengild, Madrid Museum; two landscapes, Montpensier Gallery, Seville; Saints appearing to St. Dominick, Hermitage, St. Petersburg.—Ch. Blanc, École espagnole; Madrazo, 411; Stirling, ii. 936; Viardot, 191.

HILLIARD, NICHOLAS, born at Exeter in 1547, died in London, Jan. 6, 1619. Was goldsmith, carver, and portrait painter to Queen Elizabeth and to James I., who gave him for twelve years the exclusive privilege "to mint, make, grave, and imprint any pictures of our image or our royal family." He painted portraits of Elizabeth, of Mary Queen of Scots, and of other notable personages, and was the first English native artist of importance whose contemporary reputation has been maintained. Hilliard was especially noted for his miniatures, of which that of Jane Seymour in the Royal Library at Windsor is one of the best. The influence of Holbein is traceable in his works. His son, Lawrence Hilliard, who was living in 1634, was also a miniature painter, and enjoyed the exclusive patent granted to his father till its term expired. Work, Portrait of Queen Elizabeth, National Portrait Gallery.—Wilmot-Buxton, 22; Redgrave; Walpole, Anecdotes.

HILLS, ROBERT, born at Islington, June 26, 1769, died in London, May 14, 1844. Animal and landscape painter, pupil of Gresse; first exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1791, and was one of the founders of the Society of Painters in Water Colours in 1804, subsequently its secretary; sometimes worked conjointly with Robson and Barret. Works: Deer in a Landscape, Broken Plough (1804), Landscape with Cattle (1807), Ox Team (1810), Wild Boars in a Wood (1826), Stags in Knole Park (1827), Cows and Sheep, South Kensington Museum.—Redgrave, 211.

HILTENSBERGER, JOHANN GEORG, born at Haldenwang, Bavaria, Feb. 22, 1806. History painter, pupil of Munich Academy under Peter von Langer, then of Düsseldorf Academy under Cornelius, with whom, in 1825, he returned to Munich. King Louis soon after sent him to Naples and Pompeii, to study antique painting, and after his return he executed a large number of decorative works in the Königsbau. In 1846-50 he painted a cycle of pictures in the St. Petersburg Museum, became professor at the Munich Academy in 1851, and afterwards received extensive orders for the decoration of the Maximilianeum. Works: Duke Albrecht refusing Crown of Bohemia, Arcade of Royal Garden, Munich; twenty-seven Scenes from Comedies of Aristophanes, Scenes from Hesiod's Poems, Illustrations to Homer's Hymns, Cycle from Ulysses, Königsbau, Munich; Pegasus and the Hours, Apollo and the Muses, Royal Theatre, Munich; eighty-six Scenes from History of HILTON, WILLIAM, born at Lincoln, June 3, 1786, died in London, Dec. 30, 1839. Son and pupil of William Hilton, portrait painter (died 1822); also studied with Raphael Smith, mezzotint engraver, and in 1806 in school of Royal Academy. Became an exhibitor in 1803, A.R.A. in 1813, R.A. in 1819, and keeper in 1827. He won distinction as a subject painter, his works being marked by refined taste in design, and by rich and harmonious colouring, though they have much depreciated, owing to the excessive use of asphaltum. Though his skill was recognized by the profession, his art was not popular, and want of encouragement weighed heavily upon him. Works: Serena rescued by Sir Calpine (Faerie Queen, vi. 8; 1831), Edith discovering the Dead Body of Harold (1834), Cupid Disarmed (1828), Meeting of Abraham's Servant with Rebecca (1833), National Gallery, London; Rape of Ganymede (1818), Christ crowned with Thorns (1825), Royal Academy, ib.; Venus seeking Cupid at the Bath of Diana, Sir Richard Wallace; Rape of Europa (1818), Earl of Egremont; Crucifixion (1827), Liverpool Institution; Triumphal Entry of Duke of Wellington into Madrid; Portrait of Keats, National Portrait Gallery, London.—Redgrave; F. de Conches, 436; Ch. Blanc, École anglaise; Sandby, i. 362.

HILVERDINK, JOHANNES, born at Gröningen, Jan. 28, 1813. Landscape and marine painter, pupil of Daiwaille, and of Amsterdam Academy under Pieneman, visited Belgium, Germany, and the coasts of the Mediterranean, won several medals with his marines, and became member of Amsterdam Academy in 1852. Works: Coast of England, Pavilion, Haarlem; Calm Sea, Museum Fedor, Amsterdam; After the Storm; The Y near Zeeburg. His son and HIRSCHELY, KASPAR, born in Prague about 1701, died there in 1745. German school ; landscape, animal, and still-life painter, pupil of Angermayer ; endowed with an unusual talent for imitation, he often finished and sold pictures, painted after his master's sketches. Works : Flower-pieces (2) (1741), Thistles with Birds (2), Schleissheim Gallery ; others in private collections in Prague.—Wurzbach, ix. 53.

HIRT, WILHELM FRIEDRICH, born in Frankfort in 1721, died there in 1772. German school ; landscape and animal painter, son and pupil of Friedrich Christoph Hirt (1685-1763, landscape and portrait painter), whom he surpassed in colouring ; in 1757 became court-painter to the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, after whose death he sketched extensively from nature on a tour through Switzerland ; painted cattle especially well, and often supplied them in the pictures of Christian Georg Schütz. Works : Wood Landscapes (2) (1750), Landscapes with Herds and Figures (2) (1768), Stüdel Gallery, Frankfort ; Landscape with Fishermen (1754), Gotha Museum ; Landscape with Herd, Kunsthalle, Hamburg ; do. (2), Cassel Gallery ; do., Mannheim Gallery.

HJALTALIN

HJALTALIN, DORSTEIN ILLIA, born in Iceland in 1771, died at Brunswick in 1817. German school; landscape painter, pupil at Salzdahlum, Brunswick, of Johann Friedrich Weitsch, whom he even surpassed in the treatment of trees. He was the sixteenth son of his parents, was shipwrecked in Denmark, and wandered under great privations to Poland, and thence to Brunswick. Studied diligently the famous works in the Salzdahlum Gallery, and in 1802 visited Dresden, where he painted two landscapes in the manner of Ruisdael that excited the admiration of connoisseurs.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xii. 383.

HLAVÁČEK, ANTON, born in Vienna in 1842. Landscape painter, pupil of Vienna Academy under Steinfeld and Albert Zimmermann; made a study trip to the Bavarian Alps in 1863, then went to Worms, whence he visited the banks of the Rhine and the Odenwald. K. Ch., ix. 147; Kunst-Chronik, xx. 269, 495.

HOBBERMA, MEYNDERT (Minderhout), born at Koeverden or at Amsterdam (?) in 1638, died at Amsterdam, buried Dec. 14, 1709. Dutch school; landscape painter, formed himself under the influence of Jacob van Ruisdael. Much neglected in his life-time, and little esteemed, this painter now takes rank as one of the greatest masters of landscape art, thanks to the initiative of England, where nine-tenths of his works are to be found. With less inventive genius and less poetic feeling than Ruisdael, Hobbema surpassed him in truth to atmospheric effect, in tone, and in brilliancy of colour. These qualities give a magical beauty to the generally prosaic scenes which he habitually treated. Some of his landscapes are enlivened with figures by Pieter Bouts, Adrian van der Velde, Berghem, Lingelbach, Storek, Helt-Stokade, B. Gael, and Helmbreker. Works: Showery Weather, Avenue at Middelhamis, Ruins of Brederode Castle (1667), Village with Water-Mills, Forest Scene, Woody Landscape, Castle in Rocky Landscape, National Gallery, London; landscapes in Buckingham Palace (3), Bridgewater (3), Dulwich (2), and Grosvenor (2) Galleries, Hertford House, Baring, Dudley, Wynn Ellis, Holford, Lord Overstone's Collections, ib.; Glasgow Gallery (5); National Gallery, Edinburgh (2); Louvre, Paris; Museums of Bordeaux, Antwerp, Brussels (1663), Amsterdam (3), Rotterdam (2), Berlin, Darmstadt (1649), Dresden (2), Gotha, Königsberg, Leipsic (?), Stuttgart

HOGARTH, SCOTTISH. See Allan, David.

HOGARTH, WILLIAM, born in London, Dec. 10, 1697, died there, Oct. 26, 1764. Son of Richard Hogarth, schoolmaster; apprenticed to Ellis Gamble, silversmith, to learn to engrave arms and cyphers on plate; when his time had expired (1718), became a student in St. Martin's Lane Academy, where he learned to draw. About 1720 he set up in business as a silversmith, and began to engrave book-plates, the first of his prints to attract notice being a series of illustrations for Butler's Hudibras (1726). In 1730 he clandestinely married the daughter of Sir James Thornhill, serjeant-painter to the king, whose studio he had frequented. As his book-plates were not profitable, he set up as a portrait painter and met with considerable success. In 1733 he completed his series of six pictures entitled the Harlot's Progress (5 burned at Fonthill, 1755; 1, the sixth picture, Earl of Wemys, Gosford House), which was followed by the Rake's Progress (8 pictures), and Marriage à la Mode (6), in which he reached the height of his art, his more ambitious works, such as the Good Samaritan (1736), Paul before Felix (1748), Moses brought to Pharaoh's Daughter (1752), and others, being less successful. Among his other pictures painted especially for engraving are: Southwark Fair (1733), Duke of Newcastle; Midnight Modern Conversation (1734); Distressed Poet (1735); The Four Times of the Day (1738); Strolling Actresses Dressing in a Barn (1738, burned at Littleton House, near Staines, 1874); The Enraged Musician (1741); Calais Gate (1749); March to Funchley (1750); The Election (1755), Soane Museum, London. In 1753 he published a work entitled "The Analysis of Beauty"; in 1757 he was appointed serjeant-painter to the king. Hogarth painted several portraits of himself; the best of them, in which he is represented with his dog Trump (1745), is in the National Gallery, London. Other pictures in the National Gallery are: Marriage à la Mode (6), Portrait of his sister, Mary Hogarth (1746), Sigismonda (1763), Family Group, Polly Peachum, Shrimp Girl; Garrick as Richard III., Earl of Feversham. —Dobson, *Biogr. ## HOLBEIN

HOLBEIN, AMBROSIUS, born in Augsburg about 1494 (?), died after 1518. German school; history painter, son and pupil of Hans Holbein the elder, whom he probably assisted in his works, and with his brother, Hans the younger, went to Basle before or in 1515, to which year their first activity there can be traced, and where both were engaged chiefly in designing title-pages. Ambrosius was admitted into the guild "Zum Himmel" in 1517, and acquired the citizenship in 1518, but all trace of him is lost in 1519. Works: Christ as Mediator, Two Bust-portraits of Boys, Two Skulls in Grated Window. Portrait of Jörg Schweiger (?), Basle Museum; Portrait of Young Lady, Ambras Collection, Vienna; do. of Young Man (1518), Hermitage, St. Petersburg.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xii. 724; Woltmann, Holbein u. s. Zeit, i. 101, 110, 133, 202-212; ii. 31, 45, 48, 79, 92, 205; W. & W., ii. 461; Repertorium f. K., i. 251; Zahn's Jahrbücher, v. 197.

HOLBEIN, EDUARD, born in Berlin in 1807, died there, Feb. 19, 1875. History and genre painter, pupil of Karl Begas, with whose works his first picture in 1836 was ranked. He took his great namesake, Hans Holbein the younger, for his model; became professor at Berlin Academy, where his most famous pupil was Gustav Richter. Works: Aged Pilgrim dying in Sight of Jerusalem (1836); Madonna (1838); Twelve Patriarchs, Royal Chapel, Berlin.—Rosenberg, Berl. Malersch., 69.

HOLBEIN (Holbain), HANS, the elder, born in Augsburg about 1460, died there in 1524. German school; history painter, influenced by Martin Schongauer, if not his pupil at Colmar, and the chief representative of realistic tendency in the school of Suabia; in his later works under the influence of Italian renaissance. Works: Four Altar-panels (1493), Augsburg Cathedral; Madonna Enthroned, do. (1499), Germanic Museum, Nuremberg; Death of the Virgin (1490), Basle Museum; Basilica, S. M. Maggiore (1499), Coronation of the Virgin and Scenes from Passion (1500), Transfiguration (1502), Basilica of St. Paul (1504), four Altar-panels (1512), Augsburg Gallery; Seven Scenes from Passion (1501), Städel Gallery, Frankfurt; six others, Museum, ib.; Last Supper, St. Leonard's, ib.; twelve scenes from Passion (1502?), Donaueschingen Gallery; sixteen panels with Episodes in Life of Mary and Scenes from Passion (1502), Altar of St. Sebastian (1516, masterpiece), Old Pinakothek, Munich; Visitation of the Virgin, National Museum, ib.; Two Altarwings with Saints, Prague Gallery; Christ bearing the Cross (1515), Carlsruhe Gallery; Entombment (attributed to Sigismund H.), Portrait of Young Man (1515, attributed to Hans the younger), Darmstadt Museum; two portraits (1512), Hampton Court Gallery. His brother, Sigismund, who appears in the rate-books of Augsburg, first in 1504, and who moved in 1519 to Berne, where he died in 1540, probably worked conjointly with him on several works.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xii. 713; Cundall, H. Holbein; Förster, ii. 213; Kugler (Crowe), i. 140; Nagler, Mon., iii. 157; Woltmann, Holbein und sein Zeit, i. 41-100; ii. 7, 61; W. & W., ii. 116, 456; Graph. K., i. 110.

HOLBEIN, HANS, the younger, born in Augsburg in 1497, died in London between Oct. 7 and Nov. 29, 1543. German school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Hans Holbein the elder. After completing his apprenticeship he went to Basle with his brother, Ambrose, in 1515, served as journeyman under Herbster, Koch, or Dig, matriculated in 1519, when he joined the painters' guild. Two years before, he decorated the house of Jacob von Hartenstein at Lucerne with frescos no longer extant (copies in Lucerne Library). His frescos in the City Hall at Basle were painted in 1521-22, and The Passion, in the Basle Museum, about the same time. It is possible that Holbein made a short visit to Northern Italy before 1523, when he painted the fine portrait of Erasmus at Longford Castle, which the great humanist sent to Sir Thomas More in 1525 as a specimen of the painter's ability and as a recommendation to his patronage. Probably in September, 1526, Holbein visited Antwerp to see Quinten Massys, and spent some time there, after which he went to England, where Sir Thomas More lodged him in his own house near London. There he painted the Chancellor and his family (original lost, sketch in Basle Museum), and many fine portraits. From August, 1528, Holbein lived at Basle until 1532, when he returned to England, where, despite the earnest invitations of the magistrates of Basle, he remained, with the exception of a visit in 1538, during the rest of his life. At what time Holbein became painter to Henry VIII. is not known (1536?), but probably not until after the death of Anne Boleyn, whose successor, Lady Jane Seymour, he represented in the family picture of the two Henrys, which was burned at Whitehall in 1698. (Copy at Hampton Court.) In March, 1538, when Holbein is first mentioned as the recipient of a quarterly salary from the king, he was sent to Brussels, and then revisited Basle. In August, 1539, Henry again sent him to Flanders to paint Anne of Cleves (Louvre). The wonderful series of 89 portraits in red chalk and India ink by Holbein in the royal collection at Windsor are in themselves sufficient to stamp him as one of the greatest of all masters in portraiture. As a designer he shines most brightly in the wood cuts of the Dance of Death, executed by Hans Lützelburger, and published at Lyons in 1538 and 1547. Works: Head of the Virgin (1514), do. of a Saint, Christ on Mount of Olives, Taking of Christ, Pilate washing his Hands, Last Supper, Flagellation, Writing Lesson, A School, Portrait of Burgomaster Jacob Meyer and Wife (1516), Basle Museum; Portrait of H. Herbster (1516), Baring Collection, London; Hartenstein House Frescos (1519), Lucerne; Frescos, Town Hall, Basle (1521-30); Designs for glass windows, Adam and Eve (1517), Last Supper, 8 Scenes from Passion, Dead Christ (1521), *Christ crowned with Thorns, Mater Dolorosa, Fragments (7) of Frescos in Town Hall, Basle Museum; Birth of Christ and Adoration of Magi, Cathedral, Freiburg in Breisgau; SS. from a scroll. Painted about 1503-6. Engraved by S. Martelli.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, i. Pl. 1.; C. & C., Italy, iii. 486; Meyer, Kunst. Lex., 219.

By Federico Baroccio, National Gallery, London; canvas, H. 3 ft. 9 in. × 3 ft. The Virgin, seated in an apartment, with Jesus in her lap, clasps with her right arm St. John, who holds up a bird in his hand to protect it from a cat, watching it from left-hand corner; behind, at right, St. Joseph. Sometimes called Madonna del Gatto (of the Cat). Painted for Count Antonio Brancaloni; belonged to Cesarei family of Perugia, and later (1805) to Buchanan and to Rev. W. H. Carr, who bequeathed it in 1831 to the National Gallery. Several old copies. Engraved by C. Cort (1577); A. Cardon; J. F. Leybold.

By Fra Bartolommeo, Palazzo Corsini, Rome; wood, H. 4 ft. 6 in. × 2 ft. 2 in.; signed, dated 1516. The Virgin, seated in a flowery meadow, holds Jesus, who struggles to cast his arms round the little Baptist's neck; St. Joseph looks on, smiling.

A likeness between the Virgin and Raphael's portrait of Maddalena Doni in the Pitti warrants the assumption that this is the picture which Vasari says was painted for Agnolo Doni. Copy in Musée Fabre, Montpellier.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 183; C. & C., Italy, iii. 468.

By Fra Bartolommeo, Panshanger House, England; wood, H. 3 ft. 5 in. × 4 ft. 3 in. The Virgin seated, holding Jesus, who is taking the reed cross from the infant St. John standing at right; at left, St. Joseph seated, smiling; background, a beautiful landscape with a bright horizon and a palm-tree. Painted about 1509, probably for Filippo Salviati. "The colouring," says Waagen, who considers this the finest picture of the artist, "is of extraordinary warmth and depth."—C. & C., Italy, iv. 449; Waagen, Treasures, iii. 10.

Holy Family, Andrea del Sarto, National Gallery, London.

John standing. St. Joseph, to left, leans his head on his hand. Landscape background. Painted about 1521 for Zanobi Bracci. Engraved by Paradisi.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 576; Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 35; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, ii. Pl. 117.

By Andrea del Sarto, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 4 ft. 6 in. × 3 ft. 3 in. Jesus, astride on the knee of the Virgin, who sits on the ground, turns to infant Baptist, supported by St. Elizabeth; in foreground a reed cross. "Perfectly handled in Andrea's fused transparent manner" (C. & C.). Painted about 1529 for Ottaviano de' Medici. Ancient copy in Dulwich Gallery, St. Joseph being added. This figure, different in style, recalls the manner of Vasari, Andrea's scholar. Engraved by Guzzi.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 576; Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 51; Gal. du Pal. Pitti, iv. Pl. 114; Richter, Cat. Dulwich Gal., 151.

By Girolamo Savoldo, Turin Gallery; canvas, H. 3 ft. × 4 ft. 6 in.; signed, dated 1527. The Virgin, with hands joined, behind a cradle or cushion on which Jesus is lying; at left a donor—a man in a furred cloak—lifting a cloth from the waking Child; at right, St. Francis, in prayer. Replica, long attributed to Pordenone, at Hampton Court, in which a second donor, a woman, is substituted for St. Francis.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 427; Law, Hist. Cat. Hampton Court, 43.

By Andrea Solario, Casa Poldi, Milan; wood, figures one-fifth life-size; signed, dated 1515. The Virgin, sitting, holding Jesus, to whom Joseph is presenting fruit; in background, the ass in a glade.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 59.

By Titian, Louvre; canvas, H. 2 ft. 8 in. × 3 ft. 6 in. The Virgin, seated under a tree to the left, holds Jesus on her lap; St. John coming forward with his lamb and St. Joseph looking on; in distance a servant leads the ox and ass, and two angels in the air carry the cross; landscape background. Painted in 1530; belonged to Cardinal Mazarin, bought of his heirs for Louis XIV. Replica of Titian's time in Escorial; another from Orleans Gallery, now in Holford Gallery, London; engraved by Teniers, considered by Waagen and Mündler superior to that in Louvre; others in Royal Institution, Liverpool, and Modena Gallery; later adaptations in Stockholm and Berlin Galleries.—C. & C., Titian, i. 341; Vasari, ed. Mil., vii. 429; Waagen, Treasures, ii. 194; Mündler, Essai, 207; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

right, infant St. John kissing the foot of the child; behind him, Joseph restraining him with one hand; at left, St. Catherine, making a gesture as if of silence. Bought in 1654 by Cardinal Leopoldo de' Medici, from collection of Paolo del Sera, Venice; placed in Uffizi in 1798.—Lasinio, Gal. de Florence, i. Pl. 71; Ridolfi, Marav., i. 325; Molini, Gal. di Firenze, ii. 85; Soc. Ed. and Paris, Gal. di Firenze, Pl. 83.

Attributed to Leonardo da Vinci, Hermitage, St. Petersburg; wood, H. 1 ft. 8 in. × 1 ft. 3 in. Composition similar to the Madonna of the Bas-relief, but infant St. John is omitted, and a young woman reading takes the place of Zacharias. This young woman is commonly called St. Catherine; it is probably a portrait of the sister-in-law of Leo X., who became the wife of Giulio de' Medici in 1518. Painted after 1490; belonged to Dukes of Mantua, and was lost when their palace was pillaged by the Germans. About 1770-77 it came into possession of Abbé Salvadori, secretary of Count Firmian, then Governor of Mantua. He concealed it, lest he should have to return it to the palace, and after his death it was sold by his heirs to agents of Catherine II.—Heaton, 232; Rigollot, Hist. des Arts, etc., i. 272; Kugler, ii. 283; Gal. de l'Hermitage; Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 63.

HOLY FAMILY—DEL BACINO, or DELLA CATINA (of the Basin), Giulio Romano, Dresden Gallery; wood, H. 5 ft. 4 in. × 4 ft. The Virgin, three-quarters length, standing, holding Jesus, who stands in a basin, into which the infant St. John is pouring water from a vase; at left, St. Elizabeth with a towel; at right, in background, head of St. Joseph. Painted for Duke Federico of Mantua, who gave it to his mistress, Isabella Buschetta; purchased from Modena by Augustus III. Engraved by M. Ferry; G. G. Hipart.—Vasari, ed. Mil., v. 545; Hübner, Dresden Gallery, i. 2; Morelli, 212; W. & W., ii. 677.

HOLY FAMILY WITH THE BEAR-LESS JOSEPH (Joseph imberbe), Raphael,

Hermitage, St. Petersburg; wood, transferred to canvas, H. 2 ft. 3 in. × 1 ft. 9 $\frac{3}{4}$  in. Figures half-length. The Virgin seated in a marble hall, with Jesus on her knee; St. Joseph standing near, resting both hands upon a staff; on the right, a landscape through an arched window. Painted in 1506 probably for Guidobaldo da Montefeltro, though C. & C. think it cannot be the picture of the Urbino inventory, but may be the second one painted for Taddeo Taddei, said to have belonged in 17th century to Due d'Angoulême in Paris; sold to one Barroy, and finally came into the Crozat Collection; bought of Crozat by Empress Catherine. Engraved by J. Chereau; C. W. Ketterlinus; A. Pistehalkine.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 322; Passavant, ii. 44; C. & C., Raphael, i. 284; Gaz. des B. Arts, xvii. (1864), 317; xix. (1879), 187; *Cab. about 1506 for Domenico Canigiani, of Florence; passed into hands of the Medici, and given by Cosmo III. to his daughter, Anna Maria Luisa, on her marriage in 1690 with Johann Wilhelm, Elector Palatine; transferred to Munich from Düsseldorf Gallery, whence sometimes called Düsseldorf Madonna. Much repainted; the angels in the sky were so much injured by a restorer named Colin, that Krahe, director, caused them to be painted out. Sketches in Albertina Collection, Vienna, and in Duc d'Aumale's Collection, Chantilly. Copy in Corsini Gallery, Florence, formerly in Casa Rinuccini, Florence; probably by a disciple of Raphael, though landscape looks like the work of a Fleming. Another copy in sacristy of S.

Frediano, Florence. Engraved by Bonasone, René Boirin, Calendi, Prestel, Cossé, K. Russ, Carl Hess (1804), S. Amsler (1836).—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 326; Passavant, ii. 53; Müntz, 191; C. & C., Raphael, i. 294; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 282; Kugler (Eastlake), ii. 420.

HOLY FAMILY—DEL CORDERO (of the Lamb), Raphael, Madrid Museum; wood, H. 11½ in. × 8 in.; signed, dated 1507. The Virgin, half kneeling, holds Jesus on a lamb; St. Joseph, standing and leaning on his staff, looks on; background, landscape with castle on a hill and church on low ground, with flight into Egypt, very small figures. Painted in Florence; long unnoticed in Oratorio of the Escorial until one day Don Sebastian, the Infante, examining it, was surprised to find Raphael's signature. A fine copy of Raphael's time sold in 1810 by Signor Baldeschi, of Rome, for 12,000 scudi, to Count Castellbarco, of Milan, who sold his collection in Paris in 1870. Many other copies. Engraved by R. Morghen; Sadeler.—C. & C., Raphael, i. 337; Passavant, ii. 55; Müntz, 188; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 296; Madrazo, 181.

HOLY FAMILY—DEL DIVINO AMORE (of Divine Love), attributed to Raphael, but probably by Giulio Romano, Naples Museum; wood, H. 1 ft. 11 in. × 1 ft. 7 in. The Virgin sitting with clasped hands; Jesus on her lap, with right hand raised as if blessing St. John, who kneels, holding a cross; behind is St. Elizabeth seated, and in the background Joseph. Painted about 1513 for Leonello Pio da Carpi; in possession of Cardinal Ridolfo Pio da Carpi in 1558; thence passed to Farnese family and was taken to Parma, whence carried to Naples by King Ferdinand I.; in 1805, on the approach of the French, Queen Caroline took it with her to Palermo, Vienna, and Constantinople, and finally brought it back to Naples. Original sketch in Naples Museum. Engraved by Marc Antonio, with variations, from an original sketch. Passavant mentions many

HOLY FAMILY OF FRANCIS I. Raphael, Louvre; wood, transferred to canvas, H. 6 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 7 in.; signed, dated 1518. The Virgin, bending forward, is raising Jesus from the cradle; at left, SS. Elizabeth and John kneeling; on right, behind the Virgin, Joseph in contemplation; on left, two angels, one with crossed arms, the other scattering flowers. Painted in Rome for Lorenzo de' Medici, who presented it, with the large St. Michael of the Louvre, to Francis I of France, in hope of gaining his support in his pretensions to the Duchy of Urbino. Much of it painted by Giulio Romano. Many copies. Engraved by G. Edelinek; Virg. Solis; Richomme; G. Rousselet; P. Drevet; J. Chereau; Poilly.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 389; v. 525; Gruyer, Vierges de Raphael, iii. 393; Passavant, ii. 257; Filhol, x. Pl. 709; Landon, Musée, i. Pl. 31; Klas. der Malerei, i. Pl. 34; Musée royal, ii.; Cab. Crozat, i. HOLY FAMILY—DEL LAGARTO, Raphael (?), Madrid Museum; wood, H. 4 ft. 9 in. × 3 ft. 8 in. The Virgin seated under an oak, with one arm resting on an antique altar decorated with bas-reliefs, sustains Jesus on her knees with the other; he looks up into her face and bends forward to put his arm round St. John, who stands near offering him a scroll inscribed "Ecce Agnus Dei;" each child rests one foot on a cradle; on right, St. Joseph, leaning upon the altar. Probably painted about 1517 by Fr. Penni after a design by Raphael. In Royal Aleareturned to Madrid in 1822. Many copies: one by Giulio Romano in Palazzo Pitti, Florence, has a lizard in foreground, whence called Madonna della Lucertola; another, attributed to same, at Hampton Court, without lizard, called M. della Quercia (of the Oak), a name applied sometimes also to the Madrid example. Engraved by G. Bonasone, Diana Mantovana, Ag. Carracci (etching), Carattoli, and others.—Gruyer, Virgès de Raphael, iii. 382; Passavant, ii. 249; Madrazo, 194.

HOLY FAMILY OF THE LAMB. See Holy Family del Cordero.

HOLY FAMILY OF LORETO, Raphael, original lost; figure to knees, life-size. Virgin, standing behind couch of Jesus, lifts the veil which covers him; St. Joseph, leaning on a staff, behind in contemplation. Painted in Rome about 1512-13 by order of Cardinal Riario for S. M. del Popolo; supposed to have been given in 1717 to the shrine of Loreto, whence its present name. It disappeared at the close of the last century, and is only known now through its many copies. Discovery of original often announced, but without good evidence. Poor copy in Louvre; better example lately placed in South Kensington Museum by Dr. Axell Lamm, of Stockholm. This is probably the copy mentioned by Passavant as "peu remarquable," in the possession of the sculptor Bystroom at Stockholm. Engraved by Michele Lucchese (1553); Paulus Caronni.—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 339; Passavant, ii. 100; Müntz, 375; Gruyer, Virgès de Raphael, iii. 310; Springer (Dohme 2ii.), 191; Filhol, iv. Pl. 230.

HOLY FAMILY OF THE PALM (Vierge au Palmier), Raphael, Bridgewater House, London; wood, transferred to canvas; round, 3 ft. 4 in. diameter. The Virgin, seated under a palm, holds Jesus astride of her knee by means of her veil, one end of which is swathed around his body; St. Joseph, on one knee, offers flowers to the child, who stretches out both hands to receive them. Probably the second of two painted in Florence in 1506 for Taddeo Taddei. Belonged before 1680 to Countess de Chiverni in Paris, then to Marquise d'Aumont, who sold it for 5,000 livres to M. de la Noue; from his collection passed to President Tambonneau, and thence to the Orleans collection, at the sale of which (1798) bought by Earl of Bridgewater for £1,200. Two vertical splits in the panel have necessitated repainting. Drawing in the Louvre. Copied by Philippe de Champagne for the Abbey of Port Royal. Engraved by E. Rousselet (1656), Jean Reymond, Felix Massard, and Achille Martinet (1844).—Vasari, ed. Mil., iv. 321; Passavant, ii. 38; Müntz, 188; C.

HOMER, APOTHEOSIS OF, Dominique Ingres, Louvre, Paris; canvas, H. 12 ft. 8 in. × 16 ft. 10 in.; signed, dated 1827. Homer, seated, with figures representing the Iliad and the Odyssey at his feet, is crowned by Fame, and receives the homage of all the great men of Greece, of Rome, and of modern times. Painted for a ceiling of the Musée Charles X., Louvre, but replaced now by a copy. Paris Exposition, 1855; afterwards in Luxembourg. Engraved by A. Martinet. Original sketch also in Louvre.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Ch. Blanc, Life, 91; Larousse, i. 497.

HOMER AND THE GREEKS, Wilhelm von Kaulbach, New Museum, Berlin; mural painting, staircase hall. Homer, in a boat steered by the Cumæan Sibyl, approaches the shores of Greece while Thetis and the Nereids rise from the sea to listen to his song; on the shore are gathered the great men of Greece—Orpheus in the centre, then Hesiod, Æschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes, and Pindar; Phidias, and other sculptors and painters; the prophet Bacis, and Solon, Pericles, and Alcibiades, while from forest and field the people approach to partake of the new culture.

HOMER AND HIS GUIDE, Adolphe Bouguereau, Mrs. A. T. Stewart, New York; canvas. The blind bard, led by a boyish guide, is attacked by dogs set on by rude Ionian shepherds; in the background, the curs rush on in full cry, but one, in the foreground, which has reached the poet, has come under his influence, and fawns upon him in submission. Salon, 1874.—Art Treas. of Amer., i. 44.

HOMER, WINSLOW, born in Boston, Mass., Feb. 24, 1836. Genre painter, pupil of the National Academy and of F. Rondel. During the civil war sketched for Harper's and other periodicals, and also painted works in oil and water-colours. Elected an A.N.A.

Salon, 1880.—Art Treas. of Amer., ii. 110.

HONTHORST, GERARD VAN, born at Utrecht, Nov. 4, 1590, died there, April 27, 1656. Dutch school; history, genre, and portrait painter, pupil of Abraham Bloemart, but spent several years in Rome, where he studied the pictures of Caravaggio, and found a patron in the Marchese Giustiniani. As he painted many night scenes lighted by torches or candles, he was sur-named Gherardo dalle Notti. After his return he worked (1619-20) at the court of King Frederic in Prague, later for Charles I. in England, where in 1628 he executed portraits and historical paintings for the Banqueting Hall, Whitehall. He was free of the Utrecht guild in 1623, and at The Hague in 1637. In 1645-50 he worked chiefly for the princes of Orange, but also painted a series of pictures from Danish history for the King of Denmark, and in his later years a number of portraits for Frederick William, Elector of Brandenburg. His early pictures are preferable to those painted after his journey to Italy (1612-15), where he imitated Caravaggio and Correggio in his night pieces, Rubens in his historical paintings, and Mierevelt in his portraits. He worked very rapidly. His numerous works are markedly realistic, show skilful arrangement, good drawing, and powerful chiaroscuro, but they are deficient in elevation. Works: Lute-Player (1614), Concert (1624), Pilate washing his Hands, Young Shepherd, Triumph of Silenus, Man tuning Mandoline, two portraits, Louvre; St. Mary Magdalen, Bordeaux Museum; Soldier sleeping on a Drum, Aremberg Gallery, Brussels; Portrait of Stadhouder Willem II., Portraits of two young Princesses (1653), do. of Frederic William I. Elector of Brandenburg and Louise Henriette of Nassau, do. of Prince Frederik Hendrik and Wife, Nude Child plucking Pears, Hague Museum; Merry Musician, Portrait of Princess Amalia van Solms (1650), do. of Prince Frederik Hendrik, do. of Prince Willem II. HOP GARDENS OF ENGLAND, Cecil Lawson, private gallery, England; canvas, H. 5 ft. × 7 ft. Scene in neighbourhood of Wrotham, Kent, in September, when the hops are ripe and ready for picking. The small circular buildings at left are the oasts, or kilns, for drying the hops over heated flues. The machine in the foreground is an instrument for clearing the weeds between the rows. Painted in 1874; rejected by Royal Academy, 1875; Grosvenor Gallery, 1879. Engraved by J. Sadeler; etched by Hubert Herkomer.—Art Journal (1880), 4; Gosse, Cecil Lawson, 24.

HOPPNER, JOHN, born at Whitechapel, London, April 4, 1758, died there, Jan. 23, 1810. When young was a chorister in the Royal Chapel, but in 1775 became a pupil of Royal Academy, and, by the patronage of the Prince of Wales, became a fashionable portrait painter, finding a rival only in Lawrence. The Prince, the Duke and Duchess of York, and many other notable personages were among his sitters. Became in 1793 an A.R.A., and in 1795 R.A. Published, in 1803, "A Select Series of Portraits of Ladies of Rank and Fashion," painted by him. HORNY, FRANZ, born in Weimar in 1797, died in Olevano in 1819. Pupil of Johann Heinrich Meyer in Weimar, and Joseph Anton Koch at Rome in 1816. Commissioned to paint fruit and flower decorations in fresco about the Dante frescos of Cornelius at the Villa Massimi. He was an artist of great promise, whose career was cut short by an early death.—Riegel, 337 ; Seubert, ii. 254.

HOROSCOPE, Giorgione (?). Dresden Gallery ; wood, H. 4 ft. 5 in. × 3 ft. An old man in Oriental costume, with a disc and compass in his hand, sits at a marble table in front of a ruined building ; to the left, a woman lying on the ground, playing with a naked child, while a man in armour stands by ; background, a landscape, with warriors reposing under a tree. Looks as if it might have been painted by Girolamo Pennacchi. Formerly in Palazzo Manfrini, Venice.—C. & C., N. Italy, ii. 153.

HOROWITZ, LEOPOLD, born at Rozgony, Hungary, in 1839. Portrait and genre painter, pupil of Vienna Academy under Meyer, Wurzinger, and Geiger ; won first prize and went in 1860 to Paris, where he remained eight years, acquiring considerable reputation ; moved in 1868 to Warsaw to study Polish and Jewish life, which he has since treated in a number of successful pictures. Works : Mourning of the Jews over Jerusalem ; Polish Tutor ; Harmless War ; The First-Born (1885).—Allgem. K. C., ix. 664 ; Müller, 266.

HORSCHOLT, THEODOR, born in Munich, March 16, 1829, died there, April 3, 1871. Battle painter, pupil of Munich Academy under Anschütz, and of Albrecht Adam ;

Painted first hunting scenes and horses, visited Spain and Algiers in 1853, and in 1858 went to the Caucasus and took part in the Russian expedition. In 1863 returned to Munich via Moscow and St. Petersburg, and painted many military scenes in oils and water-colours. In 1870 he made sketches during the siege of Strasbourg. Member of St. Petersburg Academy in 1860, of the Vienna Academy in 1868, honorary member of the Munich Academy in 1865 ; first prize in Paris in 1867, gold medal in Munich in 1869 ; military decorations in 1858-59, for his campaigns in the Caucasus. HORSE FAIR (Marché aux Chevaux), A. T. Stewart Collection, New York ; canvas, H. 8 ft. × 15 ft. 7½ in. A drove of horses, of various colours and sizes, some with riders, and some led by men, trotting to right ; in background, left, the dome of the Invalides in distance ; at right, an avenue of trees with spectators. A masterpiece ; cost eighteen months' labor. Salon, 1853 ; sold to Gambart & Co., London, for 40,000 francs, and exhibited in London and in Manchester in 1856 ; purchased in 1857 for about $6,000 by Wm. P. Wright, Weehawken, New Jersey, and exhibited in New York in October of that year ; thence passed to Mr. Stewart.

HORSLEY

Engraved, when in Gambart's possession, by Thomas Landseer, for whose use the artist painted a reduced copy (H. 3 ft. 11 in. × 8 ft. 2½ in.), with some changes in details. This copy passed to Jacob Bell, who bequeathed it in 1859 to the National Gallery, London. Mlle. Bonheur, preferring to be represented by a better work, painted a third Horse Fair, which she offered to the National Gallery in place of the hastily executed sketch bequeathed by Mr. Bell, but the trustees deciding that they had no power to make the exchange, she contented herself with retouching the Bell picture. The third picture was sold lately in London. A fourth replica in small (water-colour), with changes, is owned by C. F. H. Bolekow, Middleborough, England.—Harper's Weekly (1857), 645; London Times, April 27, 1865, 12.

HORSLEY, JOHN CALCOTT, born at Brompton, Jan. 29, 1817. Genre

painter, pupil of Royal Academy; first exhibited work, Rent Day at Haddon Hall (1837). He received prizes in the Westminster Hall Competition in 1843, and painted the Spirit of Prayer, in the House of Lords, and Satan touched by Ithuriel's Spear, in the Poets' Hall of the Palace of Westminster. Elected an A.R.A. in 1855, and R.A. in 1866. Works: Pride of the Village (1839), in National Gallery; Malvolio in the Sun (1849); Hospitality (1850); Madrigal (1852); Lady Jane Grey and Roger Ascham (1853); Morning of St. Valentine (1863); Waiting for an Answer, A Pleasant Corner (1866); Gaoler's Daughter (1869); Old Folk and Young Folk (1870); Stolen Glances (1873); Page in Waiting, Waiting Maid (1875); Under Lock and Key (1876); Fashions Change (1877); Salute, Cupboard Love (1878); A Trespasser (1879);

HUGUENOT, Sir John Everett Millais, Mrs. Miller, Preston, England; canvas, II. 3 ft. 2 in. × 2 ft. 1 in. Incident founded on the order of the Duc de Guise, that every Catholic should bind a strip of white linen round his arm on the morning of St. Bartholomew's Day (Aug. 15, 1572), when the bell of the Palais de Justice should give the signal for the massacre. The Huguenot of the picture gravely refuses to permit his Roman Catholic mistress to bind a white scarf around his arm, as he takes a last embrace; at the same time the rose in her bosom falls to the ground, shedding its leaves. Royal Academy, 1852; painted for David T. White, a dealer, for £150, to which £50 was added after the engraving by T. O. Barlow had proved remunerative. This picture brought Mr. Millais to the height of his reputation. The Huguenot was painted from Mr. Arthur, now General Lempriere, and the Catholic from Miss Ryan, who sat also for the Puritan Maiden in the Proscribed Royalist. Sketch in water-colours, Mr. C. Langton, Liverpool.

HUGUET, VICTOR PIERRE, born in Lude (Sarthe); contemporary. Genre and landscape painter, pupil of Émile Loubon; paints pleasing though sketchy Eastern landscapes and scenes. HYACINTH, ST., VISION OF, Lodovico Carracci, Louvre; canvas, H. 12 ft. 2 in. × 7 ft. 3 in. St. Hyacinth at prayer before a marble tablet sustained by an angel, in a temple adorned with columns; above, the Virgin and Child upon clouds, accompanied by a choir of angels and cherubim. Painted in 1594 for chapel of Turrini family in S. Domenico, Bologna. Lodovico modelled the composition in clay, and the casts from it long served as studies in the schools of Bologna. Engraved by Agostino Carracci.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Landou, Musée, ii. Pl. 39.

HYRE, LAURENT DE LA. See Hire.

I AIA (Lala, or Lala), portrait painter, from Cyzicus on the Propontis, lived in Rome about beginning of 1st century, B.C. Her female portraits, painted both with the pencil and with the cestrum on ivory, commanded higher prices than those of Sopolis and Dionysius, the most renowned portrait painters of the time. She painted her own portrait by the aid of a mirror.—Pliny, xxxv. 40 [147].

IBBETSON, JULIUS CÆSAR, born at Masham, Yorkshire, Dec. 29, 1759, died there, Oct. 13, 1817. Landscape, marine, animal, and figure painter, mostly self-taught; went to London about 1778, first exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1785, and after having accompanied, as a draftsman, Colonel Cathcart's embassy to China in 1788, was for many years a large contributor to its exhibitions; returned to his native place in 1801. Benjamin West called him the Berchem of England. Works: Tigers in a Jungle, Jack in his Glory, Landscape with Rustic Bridge, The Mermaid's Haunt, Sailor's Return Home, View in Isle of Wight, South Kensington Museum, London.—Redgrave, 232.

IDYL, Jean Jacques Henner, Luxembourg Museum, Paris; canvas, H. 2 ft. 5 in. × 2 ft. Nude figures. A young girl, seated beside a fountain shaded by trees, playing a reed pipe, and a second one standing, intently listening. Salon, 1872.

IGNATIUS, ST., MIRACLES OF, Rubens, Vienna Museum; canvas, H. 17 ft. × 12 ft. 6 in. St. Ignatius Loyola, standing on the steps of the altar in a magnificent temple, healing the sick and the possessed, who are grouped around him; above, angels hovering, and in background, demons escaping. Painted for Jesuits' Church, Antwerp; bought in 1774 by Empress Maria

IMOLA, GIOVANNI DA. See Ferretti.

IMOLA, INNOCENZO DA, born at Imola in 1494, died at Bologna about 1550. Bolognese school. Real name Innocenzo di Pietro Francucci; pupil in Bologna of Francesco Francia, and in Florence of Mariotto Albertinelli, in whose style he painted (1517) the Madonna with Angels and Saints, Bologna Gallery. Later he became an imitator of Raphael. On his return from Florence, executed many works at Imola and Bologna. Among the latter the most important are frescoes of the Death and Assumption of the Virgin (1519), in S. Michele in Bosco; Madonna in Glory with Saints and Angels, Gallery; Annunciation, Servi; Crucifix (1549), S. Salvatore; Madonna with Saints, S. Matteo; Madonna with Kneeling Donors, Gallery; Marriage of St. Catharine (1536), S. Giacomo Maggiore. There is an altarpiece (1526) by Imola in the Duomo, Faenza; another in the Berlin Museum; a third in the Munich Gallery; and a Madonna in the Carlsruhe Gallery.—Vasari, ed. INFIDELITY, Paolo Veronese, Cobham Hall, England; canvas, 5 ft. 10 in. sq. A woman, nude, seated between two men, to one of whom she gives her hand while putting a letter into the hand of the other; below, two cupids. From collection of Queen Christina of Sweden in Orleans Gallery; valued at sale in 1793 at £150, sold for 46 guineas. Engraved by S. Vallée.—Waagen, Treasures, ii. 499; iii. 20; Cab. Crozat, ii. Pl. 28; Ch. Blanc, École vénitienne.

INGANNI, ANGELO, born at Brescia in 1807. Architecture painter, member of Milan Academy; lives at Brescia, and enjoys reputation in North Italy. Works: View of Cathedral and Square at Milan (1839); Vienna Museum; Harbor of Como (1846); Piazza Fontana, Piazza Borromeo (1847); Arco della Costa in Verona (1851); Façade of Milan Cathedral (1852); Municipal Palace at Brescia (1857); Blessing the Weather (1858).—Wurzbach, x. 206.

INGEGNO, L. born in Assisi, flourished end of 15th and early part of 16th century. Umbrian school. Real name Andrea Luigi, Alovigi, or Lovigi, but called L'Ingegno (the Cunning), on account of his pictorial ability and his versatility. Vasari's account of him is full of errors. He was more probably the pupil of Niccolò Alunno, who opened a school at Foligno in 1460, than of Perugino, whose school at Perugia did not begin until about 1499, and is first heard of in 1484, painting coats-of-arms in the Council Hall and on the city gates of Perugia. He was proctor in 1505, justice in 1507, assistant in 1510, and Papal cashier in 1511, under Pope Julius II. His name is attached to several pictures in European galleries, evidently painted by a master who was at the school of Fiorenzo di Lorenzo, and a companion of Pinturicchio.—C. & C., Italy, iii. 161; Vasari, ed. Mil., iii. 595, 617; Burekhardt, 566; Rumohr, Italienische Forschungen, ii. 324; iii. 29; Kunstblatt (1821), No. 73; (1837), 94.

INGENMEY, FRANZ MARIA, born at Bonn in 1830, died in Düsseldorf, June 3, 1878. Genre painter, pupil in Munich of Correns, then studied in Düsseldorf. Works: Blind Fiddler and his Child; After the Storm; Bad Tobacco; Barred Way Home; Poaching; Study in the Woods; Dream-King and his Love; Surprise, Cinderella; Uninvited Guests.—Kunst-Chronik, xiii. 598.

INGHAM, CHARLES CROMWELL, born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1796, died in New York in 1863. Figure and portrait painter, pupil of Dublin Academy; went to the United States in 1817, and soon acquired reputation by his portraits of the reigning beauties of New York, where he was one of the founders of the National Academy of Design, and for years its vice-president. Works: Death of Cleopatra; Flower Girl; Day Dream; The Black Plume, Portrait of Lafayette (1825), do. of Gulian C. Verplanck (1830), Historical Society, New York.

INGHIRAMI, TOMMASO (Phædra), portrait, Raphael, Palazzo Pitti, Florence; wood, H. 2 ft. 11 in. × 2 ft. Half-length, without beard, in a cap and red dress, sitting, pen in hand, behind a table, on which are an inkstand, a book, and a casket. He was Secretary to the Conclave; called Phædra, because, having once taken part in the performance of Seneca's Hippolytus, he improvised some Latin verses about Phædra to avert a panic when the theatrical machinery gave way. Painted in Rome about 1513; carried to Paris in 1799; returned in 1815. Replica in Casa Inghirami, Volterra. Engraved by Theo. della Croce; T. Vereruyts; Ferrerri; Bardi.—Gal. du Pal. Pitti, i. INGRES, JEAN AUGUSTE DOMINIQUE, born at Montauban (Tarn-et-Garonne), Aug. 29, 1780, died in Paris, Jan. 14, 1867. History and portrait painter, pupil of Roques in Toulouse, and of David in Paris (1796); won the second grand prix in 1800, and the grand prix de Rome in 1801, but being unable to go to Italy on account of the war he spent the next five years in Paris studying the pictures in the Louvre, supporting himself meanwhile by making designs and book illustrations. After living from 1806 to 1820 in Rome, where he studied the works of Raphael with devotion, and from 1820 to 1824 in Florence, he returned to Paris to take rank as one of the greatest artists of his time, and to produce an immense number of works, many of which are of great excellence. As a colourist he is cold and unsympathetic, but as a draughtsman he is perhaps the first of French artists. Some of his portraits, as, for instance, that of M. Bertin, are masterpieces in character and in drawing. He had many distinguished pupils, such as Hippolyte Flandrin, and was familiarly known in Paris as "Le père Ingres." Member of Institute, 1826; director of the French Academy in Rome, 1834-41; L. of Honour, 1824; Officer, 1826; Commander, 1845; Grand Officer; Medal of Honour, 1855; Senator, 1862. Works: Antiochus sending back Scipio's Son (1800); Arrival of Agamemnon's Ambassadors in Tent of Achilles (1801), École des Beaux Arts; Philemon and Baucis (1802), Puy Museum; portraits of his father, of himself, of the sculptor Bartolini, of Bonaparte as First Consul (1804), Liège Museum; Napoleon at the Bridge of Kehl, Venus wounded by Diomed (1804, both lost); Woman Bathing,

Copy of Raphael's Farnesine Mercury, Marseilles Museum; Copy of Raphael's Adam and Eve, Edipus and the Sphinx, Napoleon on his Throne (1806), Invalides; Portraits of M. Philibert Rivière, do. of Mme. Rivière (1806), Louvre; Portrait of Mme. de Vaucay, Portrait of Granet Member of Institute (1807), Woman Bathing (1808), Pius VII. holding Chapel, Jupiter and Thetis (1811), Aix Museum; Portrait of M. A straggling column of weary, wounded, and dying men, painfully marching along a rough hillside; to the right, slightly in advance, rides a young staff officer with a wounded bugler clinging to his stirrup to help himself along.

Engraved by W. T. Davey.—Portfolio (1877), 100.

INMAN, HENRY, born in Utica, N. Y.,

Oct. 20, 1801, died in New York, Jan. 17, 1846. Portrait, landscape, and genre painter, pupil of John W. Jarvis, in New York. In 1844 visited England, where he painted the portraits of Wordsworth, Dr. John Chalmers, Lord Chancellor Cottenham, Macaulay, and other noted men; among his American portraits are Bishop White, Chief Justice Marshall, Jacob Barker, and the two sons of Bishop Doane. Works: Rydal Falls—England; Newsboy; Rip Van Winkle; Boyhood of Washington; Ruins of Brambletye House (1876), Wm. E. Dodge, New York; Student, L. L. Stuart, ib.; October Afternoon; Portraits of Henry Rutgers and Fitz Greene Halleck (1828), Historical Society, New York. At the time of his death Inman was engaged on a series of historical pictures for the Capitol at Washington. His son, J. O'Brien Inman, genre painter, has lived in Rome since 1866; is an Associate of the National Academy, but rarely exhibits.

INN, THE (L'Estaminet), Jan Steen, Hague Museum; canvas, H. 2 ft. 3 in. × 2 ft. 8 in. Twenty or more persons gathered in the tap-room of an inn, eating oysters, drinking, smoking, and playing trick-track. The upper part is covered with a large violet curtain, partly drawn up, beneath which is seen a balcony, and under that an elevated stage, on which a boy is lying down, blowing soap-bubbles. Sometimes erroneously called Picture of Human Life. Bout sale, Hague (1733), 515 florins; Benjamin d'Acosta sale, Hague (1764), 1,745 florins, to William IV. Engraved by Oortman in Musée français.—Reveil, x. 688.

INNESS

INNESS, GEORGE, born at Newburgh, N. Y., May 1, 1825.

ISABELLA, Sir John Everett Millais, Royal Institution, Liverpool; canvas, H. 3 ft. 3 in. × 4 ft. 7½ in. Scene from Keats's poem—"Isabella, or the Pot of Basil"—founded on Boccaccio's story; descriptive of the feelings of the two brothers on discovering the mutual love of Isabella and Lorenzo. This, the first Pre-Raphaelite picture by Millais, represents two rows of persons seated at table, nearly all seen in profile, and most of them portraits of friends. At right, Lorenzo (William Rossetti) holds a plate, on which he offers half of a cut blood-orange to Isabella (Mrs. Henry Hodgkinson), who is caressing a hound. At left, one of the brothers (Mr. John Harris), enraged at her reception of Lorenzo's courtesy, viciously kicks the hound, while the other (Dante Gabriel Rossetti), looking over his glass, watches the lovers with cruel eyes. A guest (the artist's father) wipes his lips with a napkin; another (Mr. W. Hugh Fenn) pares an apple; a serving-man (Mr. Wright), with a white napkin over his arm, stands behind Isabella and Lorenzo. Painted in 1848–9; Royal Academy, 1849; bought by B. G. Windus, of Tottenham; at his sale (1868), £672 10s., to Thomas Woolner, R.A.; his sale (1875), £892 10s., to Constantine A. Ionides, London; sold at Christie's (1883) for £1,102 10s. ISUMBRAS, SIR, AT THE FORD. Sir John E. Millais, Bart., John Graham, Esq., London; canvas, H. 4 ft. 1 in. x 5 ft. 7 in. An ancient knight, clad in golden armour, who has attained all the glories of this life, has laid aside his pride to help two woodcutters' children over a river ford upon the saddle of his grand war-horse. The landscape, a sunset in the forest along the river's bank, was painted on the Tay. The verses in the Academy Catalogue, ascribed to the "Metrical Romance of Syr Ysumbras," were written by Tom Taylor. Royal Academy, 1857. Satirized in a caricature of the time entitled "A Nightmare" (by Frederick Sandys?), representing the artist on an ass, carrying Dante G. Rossetti and Holman Hunt, with Michelangelo, Raphael, and Titian on the distant bank, in attitudes expressive of horror of this last Pre-Raphaelite attempt. The picture was purchased originally by Charles Reade, the novelist.

ITTENBACH, FRANZ, born at Königswinter, near Cologne, April 18, 1813, died in Düsseldorf, Dec. 1, 1879. JACOMO, BARBERINO. See Barbari, Jacopo de'.

JACOPO AVANZI. See Avanzi.

JACOPO DA CASENTINO, 14th century, born in Prato Vecchio, died there, aged eighty. Florentine school. Met Taddeo Gaddi while the latter was decorating a chapel in the church of Sasso della Vernia in Casentino, and followed him to Florence. He painted many frescos in that city, both as a subordinate and as a master, and was one of the founders, in 1349, of the Company of St. Luke. About 1354 he went to Arezzo, where he reconstructed the water-works of the Fonte Guinizelli, and executed a great number of frescos. His work is weakly Giottesque and feeble in execution. Among the few extant examples of his style are a St. John Evangelist with predella in the National Gallery, London; a predella in the Uffizi, Florence; and a Dead Christ (fresco) in S. Bartolommeo, Arezzo.—C. & C., Italy, ii. 2; Vasari, ed. Mil., 669; W. & W., i. 454.

JACOPO DI SAN SEVERINO. See Lorenzo di San Severino.

JACOPO DA VALENTIA or VALENTINA, Venetian school, end of 15th and beginning of 16th century. Pupil of Bartolommeo and Luigi Vivarini, whose faces and figures he frequently reproduced. He was a second- or third-rate journeyman, devoid of feeling as a colourist, who rivalled Palmezzano and Filippo of Verona in dulness. Earliest work, a half-length Madonna, dated 1485, at Belluno. He probably became a master, beginning of the 16th century, in Serravalle, where he received frequent commissions. Two Madonnas by him (one 1508) are in the Cathedral of Ceneda, and another (1509) is in the Venice Academy.—C. & C., N. Italy, i. 73.

JACQUE, CHARLES ÉMILE, born in Paris, May 23, 1813. Animal and landscape painter, engraver, and etcher. Few French artists have a more widely extended or better deserved reputation, though more noted as an etcher than a painter, his colouring being somewhat crude. He paints farmyard scenes in perfection, and excels in accurate knowledge of sheep and poultry, of which he is a fancier; has also been called Le Raphael des Porceaux, from his truthful pictures of pigs. Medals: 3d class, 1861, 1863; Medal, 1864; L. of Honour, 1867. Works: Herd of Oxen driven to Watering Place (1849), Angers Museum; Landscape with Cattle (1856), JANSSENS or JANSON, CORNELIS. See Culen.

JANSSENS, H. (Hieronymus), born at Antwerp, baptized Oct. 1, 1624, died there, summer 1693. Flemish school; genre painter, pupil of Christoffel Jacob van der Lamén; master of the guild in 1644. The pictures by this artist were formerly attributed to Victor Honoré Janssens, who was not born until 1664. The subjects are taken from Flemish court life of the times, and are treated in an original, truthful, refined manner; drawing correct, colouring excellent. Works: La Main Chaude, Louvre (attributed to Victor Honoré); Ball at Court (1658), Lille Museum; Trietrac (1659), La Main Chaude (1660), M. Le Brun Dalbaume, Paris; Prince of Orange (1663), Misses Giebens, Antwerp; Ladies and Gentlemen escorting Married Couple to Travelling Coach, Theodor van Lerius, ib.; Women fighting about a Pair of Trousers, Ghent Museum; Assembly of Noblemen before a Palace (1672), Dunkirk Museum.—Gaz. des B. Arts (1865), xviii. 524; Rooses (Reber), 384; Van den Branden, 1024.

JANSSENS, VICTOR HONORÉ, born in Brussels in 1664, died there in 1739. Flemish school; history painter, pupil of Lancelot Volders, became master in 1689, then spent four years at the court of the Duke of Holstein, who sent him to Rome, where he stayed eleven years, imitating Albani and allied in friendship with Tempesta, in whose landscapes he supplied the figures. Returned to Brussels, and executed many altarpieces; in 1718 went to Vienna as court-painter to the Emperor Charles VI., and thence to London in 1721. His small historical pictures are superior to his large works. Works: Apparition of the Virgin, St. Charles Borromeo, Sacrifice of Æneas, Dido building Carthage, Brussels Museum; Assembly of the Gods, Allegory of Events of 1708, City Hall, ib.; St. Roch curing the Diseased, St. Nicholas, ib.;

Venus and Adonis, Copenhagen Gallery.—Ch. Blanc, École flamande; Immerzeel, ii. 79.

JANSSENS VAN NUYSSEN, ABRAHAM, born in Antwerp in 1575, died there, buried Jan. 25, 1632. Flemish school; painter of religious subjects and allegories, pupil of Jan Snellinck, and studied in Italy; in 1601 admitted to the guild, its dean in 1606-7. After Rubens, he was one of the most famous of the great Flemish painters of the 17th century. According to recent documentary discoveries the accounts of his enmity against Rubens, and the misery into which he fell, are devoid of truth. Works: Madonna, Adoration of Magi, River God of the Scheldt, Museum, Antwerp; Entombment, Madonna and Saints, Carmelites, ib.; The Four Fathers of the Church, Cathedral, ib.; St. Luke painting the Virgin, St. Rombold's, Mechlin; Adoration of the Shepherds, Bruges Cathedral; Descent from the Cross, Ecce Homo, St. Bavon's, Ghent; Miraculous Draught of Fishes, St. Peter's, ib.; Allegory on Age, Brussels Museum; Descent from Cross, St. Bavon's Church, Ghent; Meleager and Atalanta, Vertumnus and Pomona, Berlin Museum; Venus and Adonis, Vienna Museum; Tobias and the

JARDIN, KAREL DU, born in Amsterdam about 1625, died in Venice, Nov. 20, 1678. Dutch school; landscape and animal painter, pupil of Berchem, and perhaps of Paul Potter, whose style he adopted. Visited Rome early, and there conceived a preference for Italian scenery. On his return from Italy settled at The Hague, where in 1656 he was one of the founders of the new guild Pictura; removed to Amsterdam in 1659, whence, after 1670, he went to Rome, and thence to Venice. He painted also domestic scenes, portraits, and historical subjects. His Italian landscapes are harmoniously treated. His animals are true to nature and well drawn. His large figures are extremely weak. Works: Figures and Animals Resting (1656), Forging the Stream (1657), Landscape with Cattle, Sheep, and Goats (1673), National Gallery, London; Landscapes (4), Buckingham Palace; do. (1), Bridgewater Gallery; do. (2), Lord Ashburton; do. By Leonardo da Vinci, Vatican, Rome; wood, H. 3 ft. 4 in. × 2 ft. 5 in. The Saint, kneeling in a grotto, with the lion by his side. Sketch in grisaille; about 1480–83. Belonged to Cardinal Fesch, who had only the head of the Saint, which had been cut out of the panel; but he found the rest at a dealer's in Rome, and joined the parts. Preparatory drawings for this picture in Windsor Collection.—Richter, Leonardo, 10; Clement, 341; Burekhardt, 627.

JEROME, ST., COMMUNION OF, Agostino Carracci, Bologna Gallery; canvas, H. 10 ft. 9 in. × 6 ft. 5 in. The dying St. Jerome, kneeling, under a Corinthian portico, receives his last communion in the presence of several priests and other spectators. Painted for Church of the Certosini, Bologna; carried columns and pierced by an arcade opening on a landscape, attempts to join his trembling hands to receive the Host which St. Ephraim of Syria extends to him on a golden patine; the deacon, in a dalmatica, holds the chalice, and in front, a young clerk kneels with a closed book in his hands; in background, St. Paulina, kneeling, kisses the hand of the Saint, while two other persons, one wearing a turban, stand behind; in foreground, left, the lion, the Saint's faithful companion, lies with his head on his paws; above, a group of four angels.

Painted for 50 Roman crowns for a priest, who presented it to the Church of S. Girolamo della Carità. It excited violent criticism, Guido, Lafranco, and the Chevalier d'Arpino accusing Domenichino of having copied the picture of Agostino Carracci. Poussin declared it one of the three best pictures in Rome, ranking it with Raphael's Transfiguration and Volterra's Descent from the Cross. Taken to Paris (1729); returned in 1815. Engraved by F. Perrier; Cesare Testa; J. Frey (1729); B. Farjat (1702); Alex. Tardieu; Chataigner, and others.—Vaticano descritto, i. Pl. 23; Larousse, iv. 755; Ch. JEROME, ST., VISION OF, Guercino, Louvre; copper, H. 1 ft. 4 in. × 1 ft. 7 in. St. Jerome, lying on a mat in a grotto, awakes in terror on hearing the sound of the last trump, which is blown by an angel. Near him are two books and a skull. Belonged to Comte de Brienne in 1662; bought in 1685 for Louis XIV. Engraved by Nicolet; F. Chauveau; Pasqualini.—Villot, Cat. Louvre; Musée français; Filhol, x. Pl. 712.

By Farmigianino, National Gallery, London; wood, H. 11 ft. 6 in. × 4 ft. 11 in. The Virgin and Child in glory; below, St. John Baptist pointing upwards, as announcing Christ, and St. Jerome sleeping. Painted at Rome in 1527, by order of Maria Bufoni.

JERUSALEM, DESTRUCTION OF, Wilhelm von Kaulbach, New Museum, Berlin; mural painting, staircase hall. Above the burning Temple appear in the clouds the prophets of the Old Testament, while Titus enters the destroyed city; the High Priest, standing among the flying multitude, kills himself; at left, demons flogging the Wandering Jew; at right, a congregation of Christians peacefully leaving the city.

JERVAS, CHARLES, born in Ireland about 1675, died in London, Nov. 2, 1739. Pupil of Sir Godfrey Kneller, and a pleasing painter in the vigorous style of the school to which he belonged. A Dr. Clark, for whom he copied Raphael's Cartoons in little, sent him to France and Italy to study art. After his return he married a rich widow, frequented the society of Pope and Addison, and filled the office of court-painter to George I. and George II. He paid a second visit to Italy the year before his death. His portraits of Queen Caroline, Pope, and Martha Blount, the Duchess of Queensbury, and Dean Swift, are in the National Portrait Gallery. There is a second portrait of Pope by him at Lansdowne House, and one of about 1460, died at Haarlem in 1519. History painter, first instructed at Calcar, then formed himself undoubtedly in the school of Haarlem, whence he seems to have returned to Calcar in 1505, and began to paint the great altarpiece in the parish church of St. Nicholas, representing, in twenty panels, the Life, Passion, and Triumph of Christ, containing 216 figures, which was completed in 1508. This shows him to have been a skilful master, trained in the old school of the Netherlands. In all probability he then returned to Haarlem, where he seems to have spent the remainder of his life, and where he was buried in the cathedral of St. Bavon. A Holy Family, attributed to him, is in the Brussels Museum.—Allgem. Zeitg. JORDAENS, JAKOB, born in Antwerp, May 19, 1593, died there, Oct. 18, 1678. Flemish school; history painter, scholar of Adam van Noort, whose daughter he married; received as master in the painters' guild in 1615, and in the following year married Katherine, his master's daughter. Instead of going to Italy, he studied the pictures of the great Italian masters, especially Titian, at home, and becoming intimate with Rubens, assisted him in preparing cartoons for the tapestries of the king of Spain. With a fine feeling for colour and chiaroscuro, great facility and skill in composition, Jordaens wants taste and elevation of style, is often but a vulgar Rubens. In 1641 he built a fine house at Antwerp, where he spent the greater part of his life. JUSTUS or JODOCUS OF GHENT, latter half of 15th century. Flemish school. Supposed by some to be identical with Justus de Allamagna or Giusto d'Alamanca, who painted an Annunciation of the Virgin in the Convent of S. M. di Castello, Genoa, in 1451, but there is little if any evidence of it.

Justus of Ghent, a contemporary of Van der Goes and of Van der Meire, and perhaps pupil of Hubert Van Eyck, was called to Urbino by Duke Federigo di Montefeltro to paint the portrait of his duchess, and to decorate his library. In 1470-74 he painted the Last Supper, an altarpiece for S. Agata, Urbino, now in the Town Gallery. In the Palazzo Barberini, Rome, and in the Louvre, are a series of panels representing poets, philosophers, etc., supposed to be the decorations of the library at Urbino. If Justus painted them, he tempered in his later work the harshness of the Flemish style with Italian breadth and freedom. Works attributed to him: The Last Judgment, Church

JUVENEL (Jouvenel), PAUL, born in Nuremberg in 1574, died at Pressburg, Hungary, in 1643. German school; history and portrait painter, son and pupil of Nicolaus Juvenal (died at Nuremberg, 1597), then of Adam Elsheimer in Frankfurt. He excelled in perspective; decorated the ceilings of several houses in Nuremberg, and was a tolerable copyist of Dürer's works. In 1638 he went to Vienna, and afterwards settled at Pressburg. His three sons and a daughter were artists of repute. Works: Ceiling-panels, Portraits of Ferdinand II., Matthias, Rudolph I. & II., Town Hall, Nuremberg; Copy of Dürer's Ascension of Virgin, Frankfurt Gallery.—Allgem. d. Biogr., xiv. 762; Kugler (Crowe), ii. 524.

KAAZ, KARL LUDWIG, born in Karlsruhe or Pforzheim in 1776, died in Dresden, July 14, 1810. KAUFFMANN, (MARIA ANNA) ANGELICA, born at Coire, Switzerland, Oct. 30, 1741, died in Rome, Nov. 5, 1807. History and portrait painter, daughter and pupil of Joseph Kauffmann, an inferior portrait painter, who was, at that time, employed by the Prince-Bishop of Coire. From 1742 until 1757 the family lived in North Italy, at Morbegno until 1752, at Como until 1754, where Angelica, at the age of eleven, attracted general attention by her portrait of the Bishop of Como, and finally at Milan, where she copied the masterworks of the Lombard school, and painted portraits. After her mother's death, she went with her father to Schwarzenberg, Vorarlberg, his native place, and assisted him in decorating the parish church. Soon after completing this work, she returned to Italy, and having visited Milan, Bologna, and Parma, was in Florence in 1762, in Rome in 1763-64, whence she visited Naples, then in Bologna in 1765, and studied in Venice Titian, Tintoretto, and Paolo Veronese. In 1776 she accompanied Lady Wentworth to England, where she met with the most flattering reception. An unfortunate marriage with an impostor who had passed himself off for a Swedish Count Horn blighted her life, although she soon obtained a divorce. In 1769 she was elected one of the original members of the Royal Academy, to whose exhibitions she annually contributed until 1781, when she married the Venetian painter Antonio Zucchi, and went to Venice, and in 1782 to Rome and Naples, where she was in great favour with the royal family. On her return to Rome, the Emperor Joseph II. sought her acquaintance, and gave her commissions for his gallery. Her numerous compositions, although weak in drawing and often monotonous through repetition of the same subject, especially in her female figures, show in their warm colouring and graceful treatment the influence of Mengs. She painted her own portrait several times; her bust was placed in the Pantheon in 1808. Works: Twelve Apostles (fresco, 1757), Church at Schwarzenberg; Female Figure allured by Music and Painting (1760); Death of Leonardo da Vinci (1781); Servius Tullius as a Child (1784, for the Czar Paul); Hermann and Thusnelda, Funeral of Pallas (both 1786, for Joseph II.), Vienna Museum; Virgil reading his Æneid to Empress Octavia, Augustus reading Verses relating to Death

KAULBACH, WILHELM VON, born at Arolsen, Oct. 15, 1805, died in Munich, April 7, 1874. History painter, pupil of Düsseldorf Academy under Cornelius, whom he followed in 1825 to Munich and continued his studies in the Academy there. Though occupied from 1826 with several great decorative compositions in the Palace, the Odéon, and the Hofgarten, Munich, he did not really learn to paint until he went to Rome in 1839. In 1847 he was called to Berlin to decorate the Treppenhaus (Staircase Hall) of the New Museum, which occupied him many years; in 1849 appointed director of the Munich Academy. He was an officer of the L. of Honour, Grand Commander of St. Michael, Commander of the Order of Francis Joseph, corresponding member of the Institute of France, and member of several academies. Kaulbach made many designs for book illustrations, among them those for Reynard the Fox (1846), Goethe's Faust, The Gospels, Dance of Death, the works of Shakespeare and Schiller, and Wagner's operas. Despite his mannerisms, he was one of the greatest modern German painters, and with his master Cornelius represents the new Munich school during the reign of King Louis of Bavaria. Works: Apollo and the Muses (1826), Odéon, Munich; Symbolical figures of four Bavarian Rivers, Bavaria, sixteen wall paintings from Fable of Cupid and Psyche, Palace of Duke Max, Munich; Insane Asylum, Battle of the Saxons (1834, cartoon), Battle of the Huns (1835-37, cartoon), Raczynski Gallery, Berlin; Destruction of Jerusalem (1838, cartoon) (1842-47, in oil), New Pinakothek, Munich; Deliverance of Holy Sepulchre by the Crusaders; Christ in Purgatory; Anacreon and his Love, Villa Rosenstein, near Stuttgart; Artist's portrait from Masquerade Festival in 1840, Germanic Museum, Nuremberg; Life-size Group after Goethe's Elegies, National Museum, Pesth; Wall paintings in Treppenhaus, Berlin Museum: Fall of Babel, Homer and the Greeks, Destruction of Jerusalem, The Crusaders, Battle of the Huns, The Reformation, and connecting figures (1847-65); Apotheosis of a Good King (1851), Schleissheim Gallery; The Saga (1852), Shepherd Boy in Rome, Raczynski Gallery, Berlin; Oil Sketches (19) for Frescos (executed on outside of Pinakothek by Nilson and Barth) representing Development of Modern Art in Munich, Portrait of King Louis I. of Bavaria (Sketch, 1843), Portraits of the Painters Heinlein and Monten (1840), New Pinakothek, Munich; Battle of Salamis, Stuttgart Museum; Portrait of Louis I. of Bavaria, Pennsylvania

KENT, WILLIAM, born in Yorkshire in 1685, died in London, April 12, 1748. Portrait and decoration painter; went about 1704 to London, and in 1710 to Rome, where he gained a second-class medal. After a second journey to Rome he settled in London, under the patronage of Lord Burlington. He decorated Wanstead House, Rainham, and painted several ceilings for Sir Robert Walpole at Hampton, but is best known as the architect of Devonshire House, Piccadilly; the Earl of Yarborough's house, Arlington Street; the Horse Guards, Whitehall, and other buildings. He was a weak man and was caricatured by Hogarth, but had considerable influence on the taste of his day and held the appointment of master carpenter, architect, keeper of the pictures, and principal painter to the Crown. In Hampton Court Palace are pictures by him of the Interview and Marriage of Henry V. and Princess Catherine.—Redgrave; F. de Conches, 90.

KERCKHOVE, JOSEPH VAN DEN, born in Bruges, May 4, 1667, died there, Aug. 8, 1724. Flemish school; history and portrait painter, pupil at Bruges of Jan van Meuninxhove, then at Antwerp of Jan Erasmus Quellin. Perfected himself on a journey through France, lived for some time in Paris, and on his return founded with Duvenede the Bruges Academy, of which he was appointed the first professor. Painted for churches and public buildings many historical pictures, distinguished for good composition and colouring and knowledge of architecture and perspective. Works: Assembly of the Gods, Town Hall, Bruges; St. Catherine of Siena (1716), Academy, ib.—Immerzeel, ii. 102; Nagler, vi. 559; Weale, Cat., 90.

KERKHOVE, FRITZ VAN DE, born at Bruges in Oct., 1862, died there, Aug. 12, 1873. Landscape painter. This phenomenal child began to paint, at the age of seven, landscapes on a diminutive scale, of which about 350 were exhibited in the great cities of Europe, calling forth a protracted controversy among the art-critics as to their authenticity.—Siret, L'enfant de Bruges (Paris, 1876).

KERN, ANTON, born at Tetschen, Bohemia, in 1710, died in Dresden, June 8, 1747. Louis. painted. On his return from Italy, lived for a time in Hamburg, but was induced to go to England in 1674, and received such a flattering reception from Charles II. that he determined to remain there. After the death of Sir Peter Lely he was made court-painter, and he received equal favour from James II., William III., who knighted him (1692), Queen Anne, and George I., who made him a baronet (1715). His forty-three portraits of the members of the Kit Kat Club, and his Beauties at Hampton Court, are examples of his facile and meretricious style and corrupt taste. That he was the leading portrait painter of his day shows the low state of art at the time. "Where," says Walpole, "he offered one picture to fame, he sacrificed twenty to lucre." The National Portrait Gallery contains fifteen portraits by him, including Addison, Congreve, Watts, Wren, James II. (1685), and Lady Russell.
