

Pearls
of American Poetry.

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

<http://www.archive.org/details/pearlsofamerican00newyuoft>

Pearls
of American Poetry

illuminated

by

T. W. Gwilt Mapleson Esq.

LE.C P3595

LE.C P3595

Pearls
of American Poetry

Wiley and Putnam

New York.

124654 23/10/12

Ge

James Watson, Esq.
of New York.

Sheweth that he has for the use of the said James Watson, Esq.
of New York, the following
rights and privileges:

That he has for the use of the said James Watson, Esq. of New York, the following
rights and privileges:

To James Thomson Esq.
of New York.

A lover of literature and the fine arts, in token of esteem and respect, as well as from a grateful recollection of many kindnesses received, the following illu-minated pages are inscribed by his obliged and faithful servant T W Gwilt Mapleson.

ccellior.

My Songfellow

The shades of night were falling fast, as through an Alpine village past a youth, who bore, mid snow and ice, a banner with this strange device

Arcelsior!

His brow was sad, his eye beneath, flashed like a falchion from its sheath and like a silver clarion rung the accents of that unknown tongue,

Arcelsior!

In happy homes he saw the light of household fires gleam warm and bright, above, the spectral glaciers shone, and from his lips escaped a groan,

Arcelsior!

Try not the pass" the old man said,
"dark lowers the tempest overhead, the roaring torrent is deep and wide;
and loud that clarion voice replied

Arcelsior!

Arcelsior!

Oh stay"the maiden said,"and rest.
Thy weary head upon this breast!
A tear stood in his bright blue eye, but still he answered with a sigh,

Arcelsior!

Beware the pine tree's withered branch Beware the awful avalanche, this was the peasants last goodnight, a voice replied far up the height,

Arcelsior!

At break of day, as heavenward The pious monks of St. Bernard uttered the oft repeated prayer, a voice cried thro' the startled air,

Arcelsior!

Atraveller by the faithful hound, half buried in the snow was found, still grasping in his hand of ice that banner with the strange device,

Arcelsior!

Here in the twilight cold and gray Lifeless but beautiful he lay, and from the sky, serene and far,
a voice fell, like a falling star,

Arcelsior!

Faint, illegible text, possibly bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The text is arranged in several lines and paragraphs, but the characters are too light to be read accurately.

177

177

When the tree of love is budding first, ere yet its leaves are green, ere yet, by shower and sunbeam nurst its infant life has been, the wild bee's slightest touch might wring the buds from off the tree, as the gentle dip of the swallows wing breaks the bubbles on the sea.

But when its open leaves have found a home in the free air, pluck them, and there remains a wound that ever rankles there.
the blight of hope and happiness is felt when foud ones part, and the bitter tear that follows is the lifeblood of the heart.

When the flame of love is kindled first,
'tis the fire fly's light at even,
'tis dim as the wandering stars that burst in the blue of the summer heaven.
a breath can bid it burn no more,
or if at times, its beams come on the memory, they pass o'er like shadows in our dreams

But when that flame has blazed into a being, and a power, and smiled in scorn upon the dew that fell in its first warm hour,
'tis the flame that curls round the martyrs head whose task is to destroy,
'tis the lamp, on the altars of the dead, whose light is not of joy!

Ghen crush, e'en in their hour of birth, the infant buds of love, and tread his growing fire to earth, ere 'tis dark in clouds above, cherish no more a cypress tree to shade thy future years, nor nurse a heart flame that may be quenched only with thy tears.

 Sonnet

by

N. P. Willis.

Storm had been on the hills, the day had worn
As if a sleep upon the hours had crept,
And the dark clouds that gathered at y morn In dull, impenetrable masses slept,
And the wet leaves hung droopingly and all Was like the mournful aspect of a pall.
Suddenly, on the horizon's edge, a blue And delicate line, as of a pencil, lay,
And as it wider and intenser grew,
The darkness removed silently away,
And, with the splendor of a God shone forth
The perfect glory of departing day, So, when his stormy pilgrimage is o'er Will light upon the dying christian pour.

Ocean,

Dana

Now stretch your eye off shore, o'er waters made To cleanse the air and bear the world's great trade,
To rise, and wet the mountains near the sun,
Then back into themselves in rivers run, Fulfilling mighty uses far and wide,
Through earth, in air, or here, as ocean-tide.
Ho! how the giant heaves himself, and strains And flings to break his strong and viewless chains, Foams in his wrath, and at his prison doors, Hark! hear him! how he beats and tugs and roars,
As if he would break forth again and sweep Each living thing within his lowest deep.
Type of the Infinite! I look away Over thy billows, and I cannot stay My thought upon a resting place, or make A shore beyond my vision, where they break,
But on my spirit stretches, till it's pain
To think, then rests, and then puts forth again.
Thou hold'st me by a spell, and on thy beach
I feel all soul, and thoughts unmeasured reach

[The text in this image is extremely faint and illegible. It appears to be a page from a manuscript or book, possibly containing a list or a series of entries. The left side of the page has a vertical column of text, and the rest of the page is filled with several columns of text. There are some faint red markings, possibly initials or decorative elements, visible in the left margin.]

Far back beyond all date. And, O! how old Thou art to me. For countless years thou hast roll'd.
 Before an ear did hear thee, thou didst mourn, Prophet of sorrows, o'er a race unborn, Waiting, thou mighty minister of death, Lonely thy work, ere man had drawn his breath.
 At last thou didst it well! The dread command Came, and thou swept'st to death the breathing land,
 And then once more, unto the silent heaven Thy lone and melancholy voice was given.
 And though the land is throng'd again, O Sea!
 Strange sadness touches all that goes with thee.
 The small bird's plaining note, the wild, shutep call,
 Share thy own spirit: it is sadness all!
 How dark and stern upon thy waves looks down Yonder tall cliff-ke with the iron crown.
 And see! those sable pines along the steep Are come to join thy requiem, gloomy deep!
 Like stoled monks they stand and chant the dirge O'er the dead, with thy low beating surge.

Lines
Written in Spring Time
by
Charles Fenna Hoffman.

Thou wak'st again, oh Earth
From winter's sleep!—
Bursting with voice of mirth From icy keep,
And laughing at the Sun,
Who hath their freedom won,
Thy waters leap!

Thou wak'st again, oh Earth!
Freshly again,
And who by fireside hearth
Will now remain?
Come on the rosy hours—
Come on thy buds and flowers As when in Eden's bowers Spring first did reign.

What is the purpose of this project? and the benefits of it.

It is a project of the National Science Foundation.

The project is to develop a new type of teaching material for the computer.

The project is to develop a new type of
teaching material for
the computer.

The project is to develop a new type of
teaching material for
the computer.

The project is to develop a new type of
teaching material for
the computer.

The project is to develop a new type of
teaching material for
the computer.

The project is to develop a new type of
teaching material for
the computer.

The project is to develop a new type of
teaching material for
the computer.

Birds on thy breezes chime, Blithe as in that matin time,
Their choring begun:
Earth, thou hast many a prime - Dau hath but one.

Thou wak'st again, O Earth!
    Freshly and new,
As when at Spring's first birth First flowerets grew Heart that to Earth doth cling, While boughs are blossoming Why wake not too?
Long thou in sloth hast lain, Listening to Love's soft strain - Wilt thou sleep on?
Playing thou sluggard heart In life no manly part Though youth be gone.
Wake! tis Springs quick'ning breath
    Now o'er thee blown;
Wake thee! and e'er in death Pulseless thou slumbereth, Pluck but from Glory's wreath
    One leaf alone!

A Butterfly at a Childs Grave
 ———— c by ————
Lydia H. Sigourney

A butterfly bask'd on an infants grave, where a lily had chanced to grow, why art thou here with thy gaudy dye?
 where she of the bright and the sparkling eye must sleep in the churehyard low.

Then it lightly soar'd thro' the sunny air, and spoke from its shining track, I was a worm till I won my wings and she whom thou mouru'st like a seraph sings wouldst thou call the blest one back?

STAMPED AND SIGNED

(Signature)

AD HONORANDUM
MAGISTRI SIGMUNDI
[Faded text lines follow, including what appears to be a name and a date or location, but they are illegible due to fading.]

Come, in the northern gale,
The summer tresses of the trees are gone,
The woods of autumn, all around our vale, Have put their glory on.

The mountains that in fold,
In their wide sweep, the coloured landscape round, Seem groups of giant kings, in purple and gold,
That guard the enchanted ground.

Froam the woods that crown
The upland, where the mingled splendours glow, Where the gay company of trees look down On the green fields below.

Any steps are not alone
In these bright walks, the sweet southwest, at play Flies, rustling, where the painted leaves, are strown Along the winding way.

And far in heaven, the while,
The sun that sends that gale to wander here, Pours out on the fair earth its quiet smile,
The sweetest of the year.

Where now the solemn shade, Verdure and gloom where many branches meet,
So grateful, when the noon of summer made The vallies sick with heat!

|                                                               |                                                                                      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1. [Faint text] 2. [Faint text]   |    |
| 3. [Faint text] 4. [Faint text]   |    |
| 5. [Faint text] 6. [Faint text]   |    |
| 7. [Faint text] 8. [Faint text]   |   |
| 9. [Faint text] 10. [Faint text]  |  |
| 11. [Faint text] 12. [Faint text] |  |

|  |                                                                                                  |
|--|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|  | 1. The first of these is the         ... ..         ... ..         ... ..  |
|  | 2. The second of these is the         ... ..         ... ..         ... .. |
|  | 3. The third of these is the         ... ..         ... ..         ... ..  |

Let in through all the trees Come the strange rays, the forest depths are bright, Their sunny-color'd foliage, in the breeze, Twinkles, like beams of light.

The rivulet late unseen, Where bickering through the shrubs its waters run, Shines with the image of the golden screen,
And glimmerings of the sun.

But neath yon crimson tree, Cover to listening maid might breathe his flame, Nor mark, within its roseat canopy Her blush of maiden shame.

Ah, Autumn! why so soon Depart the hues that make thy forests glad;
Thy gentle wind and thy fair sunny noon,
And leave thee wild and sad!

Ah, 'twere a lot too bless'd For ever in thy color'd shades to stray, Amid the kisses of the soft southwest
To rove and dream for aye.

And leave the vain low strife That makes men mad, the tug for wealth and power
The passions and the cares that wither life And waste its little hour.

Florence Vane

by

P. P. Cooke of Virginia.

Loved thee long and dearly,
Florence Vane,
My life's bright dream and early Hath come again;
I renew in my fond vision,
My heart's dear pain,
My hopes, and thy derision,
Florence Vane.

The ruin, lone and hoary, The ruin old
Where thou didst hark my story.
At eventold,— That spot—the hues Elysian Of sky and plain—
I treasure in my vision,
Florence Vane.

Flammé Vain

P.P. Gault of Vign

1850 1851 1852 1853 1854 1855 1856 1857 1858 1859 1860

1861 1862 1863 1864 1865 1866 1867 1868 1869 1870

Thou wast lovelier than the roses In their prime,
Thy voice excelled the closes Of sweetest rhyme;
Thy heart was as a river Without a main,
Would I had loved thee never Florence Vane!

But, fairest, coldest, wonder!
Thy glorious clay Lies the green sod under—Alas, the day!
And it boots not to remember Thy disdain—
To quicken love's pale ember.
Florence Vane.

The lillies of the valley
By young graves weep,
The daisies love to dally Where maidens sleep,
May their bloom, in beauty dying, Never wane
Where thine earthly part is lying, Florence Vane.

I see thee still

Sprague

I see thee still:
Remembrance, faithful to her trust,
Calls thee in beauty from the dust,
Thou comest in the morning light, Thou'rt with me through the gloomy night,
In dreams I meet thee as of old:
Then thy soft arms my neck enfold,
And thy sweet voice is in my ear:
In every scene to memory dear
I see thee still.

I see thee still

Syraine

1641

I see thee still:
In every hallow'd token round,
This little ring thy finger bound,
This lock of hair thy forehead shaded,
This silken chain by thee was braided,
These flowers, all wither'd now, like thee, Sweet sister, thou didst call for me;
This book was thine, here didst thou read;
This picture, ah! yes, here, indeed,
I see thee still.

I see thee still:
Here was thy summer noon's retreat,
Here was thy favorite fireside seat;
This was thy chamber—here, each day,
I sat and watch'd thy sad decay.
Here, on this bed, thou last didst lie,
Here, on this pillow, thou didst die;
Dark hours! once more its woes unfold;
As then I saw thee, pale and cold,
I see thee still.

I see thee still.
Thou art not in the grave confined—Death cannot claim the immortal mind, Let earth close o'er its sacred trust,
But goodness dies not in the dust;
Thee, O! my sister, 'tis not thee Beneath the coffin's lid I see;
Thou to a fairer land art gone,
There, let me hope, my journey done,
To see thee still.

A pithalamium.

by

J. G. C. Brainard

I saw two clouds at morning, Cinged with the rising sun,
And in the dawn they floated on,
And mingled into one.
I thought that morning cloud was blest,
It moved so sweetly to the west.

I saw two summer currents Flow smoothly to their meeting,
And join their course, with silent force,
In peace each other greeting.
Calm was their course thro' banks of green While dipping eddies played between.

Such be your gentle motion Till life's last pulse shall beat,
Like summer's beam, and summer's stream Float on in joy, to meet A calmer sea where storms shall cease—
A purer sky where all is peace.

A Singer Sewing

Patented

[Faint, illegible handwritten text on the left margin]

Methodism.

J. G. C. Strickland

Methodism is a religious movement that began in the 18th century. It is characterized by its emphasis on personal faith, evangelism, and social reform. The movement was founded by John Wesley, who was a member of the Church of England. Wesley's teachings emphasized the importance of the individual's relationship with God, and he encouraged his followers to live lives of holiness and to engage in social reform. Methodism spread rapidly throughout the world, and it is now one of the largest Christian denominations. It is known for its hymns, its emphasis on education, and its commitment to social justice.

See how the glories of the sinking day, fade in a mellow richness from the west — while the first star with newly-blossomed ray like a bright spirit seems awhile to rest on yonder rose-cloud, e'er it floats away, to drink fresh pearl-drops from the oceans breast diamond of Heaven! above the broad sun's glare, thy smile is glistening beautifully fair!

The violet-colored atmosphere is rife, with twice ten thousand perfumes, like a bee whose odorous pinions bear away the life of leaf and bud, and flower and incense tree that mingle sweetly in a loving strife, with the luxurious gales of Araby and blissful thoughts upon the senses creep, like soft delights on raptures bridal sleep.

Gold and delicious as the kissing stream to the fired deer, when the far-dying strain of hunter's bugle makes his bright eye gleam, or as the soothing of the tender rain, to the parched earth, or as a morning dream to one released from restlessness and pain, or as the influence of a silent prayer, steals the calm whisper of this Evening air!

[Faint, illegible text in the first column, possibly a list or index of items.]

[Faint, illegible text in the second column, possibly a list or index of items.]

[Faint, illegible text in the third column, possibly a list or index of items.]

176

177

1. The first part of the manuscript contains a list of names and titles of the various persons who were involved in the project. The names are arranged in alphabetical order of their surnames. The list is followed by a list of the various titles held by these persons.

2. The second part of the manuscript contains a list of the various titles held by these persons. The titles are arranged in alphabetical order of their surnames. The list is followed by a list of the various titles held by these persons.

3. The third part of the manuscript contains a list of the various
titles held by these persons. The
titles are arranged in alphabetical order of their surnames. The list
is followed by a list of the various
titles held by these persons.

From the green forest aisles and woven bowers, breathes the pure soul of music, richly clear, such as a Peri from a claud of flowers, in floating ecstacy might stoop to hear—strewing enchantment o'er the twilight hours, and falling on the spirit like the dear and beautiful remembrance of past love, or strains seraphic wafted from above.

And now the wing of a most deep repose, is brooding o'er the bosom of yon lake, which like a heavenly mirror brightly glows while the swan leaves a gem-bespangled wake, shewn as the silvering of moonlight snows, and the small waves, that on its margin break, scarce murmur louder than the lightest tone of a lone dove, whose darling mate hath flown.

But lo! the stars are gazing through the deep mysterious softness of the shadow'd sky, and night is coming with her wand of sleep,
to smoothe the fringes of the drooping eye.
Thou glorious scene! still in my vision keep, still let thy music murmur sweetly by, till poised on plumes of fadeless night I stand near the bright waters of the better land.

Stanza
by
R. H. Wilde.

My life is like the summer rose That opens to the morning sky,
But e'er the shades of evening close,
Is scattered on the ground—to die!
Yet on the rose's humble bed
The sweetest dews of night are shed,
As if she wept the waste to see—
But none shall weep a tear for me!

My life is like the autumn leaf
That trembles in the moon's pale ray,
Its hold is frail—its date is brief, Restless—and soon to pass away!
Yet, e'er that leaf shall fall and fade,
The parent-tree will mourn its shade
The winds bewail the leafless tree
But none shall breathe a sigh for me!

My life is like the prints which feet Have left on Tamy's desert strand, Soon as the rising tide shall beat,
All trace will vanish from the sand.
Yet, as if grieving to efface
All vestige of the human race,
On that lone shore loud moans the sea,
But none, alas! shall mourn for me!

THE SOCIETY OF MUSICIANS OF
THE
CITY OF LONDON

- S... ..
- M... ..
- M... ..

Faint, illegible text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page, arranged in several lines within the central white panel.

The old Clock on the Stairs

by Henry W.
Longfellow

Somewhat back from the village street stands the old fashioned country seat.
Across its antique portico tall poplar trees their shadows throw, and from its station in the hall an ancient timepiece says to all,

Forever never!
Never forever!"

Halfway up the stair it stands, and points and beckons with its hands from its case of massive oak, like a monk, who, under his cloak, crosses himself, and sighs alas!
with sorrowful voice to all who pass

Forever never!
Never forever!"

By day its voice is low and light, but in the silent dead of night distinct as a passing footstep's fall, it echoes along the vacant hall, along the ceiling, along the floor and seems to say, at each chamber door

Forever never!
Never forever!"

Through days of sorrow and of mirth, through days of death and days of birth, through every swift vicissitude of changeful time, unchanged it has stood, and as if, like God, it all things saw, it calmly repeats those words of awe, —

*Forever—never!
Never—forever!”*

In that mansion used to be free-hearted Hospitality, his great fires up the chimney roared, the stranger feasted at his board, but like the skeleton at the feast, that warning timepiece never ceased, —

*Forever—never!
Never—forever!”*

Here groups of merry children played, there youths and maidens dreading strayed, O precious hours! O golden prime, and affluence of love and time!
even as a miser counts his gold those hours the ancient timepiece told, —

*Forever—never!
Never—forever!”*

From that chamber, clothed in white, the bride came forth on her wedding night, there, in that silent room below, the dead lay in his shroud of snow, and in the hush that followed the prayer was heard the old clock on the stair,

*Forever-never!
Aever-forever!"*

All are scattered now and fled, some are married, some are dead,
and when I ask, with throbs of pain,
"ah! when shall they all meet again?"
as in the days long since gone by, the ancient timepiece makes reply,

*Forever-never!
Aever-forever!"*

Never here, forever there, where all parting, pain, and care, and death and time shall disappear, forever there, but never here!
The horologe of Eternity sayeth this incessantly

*Forever-never!
Aever-forever!"*

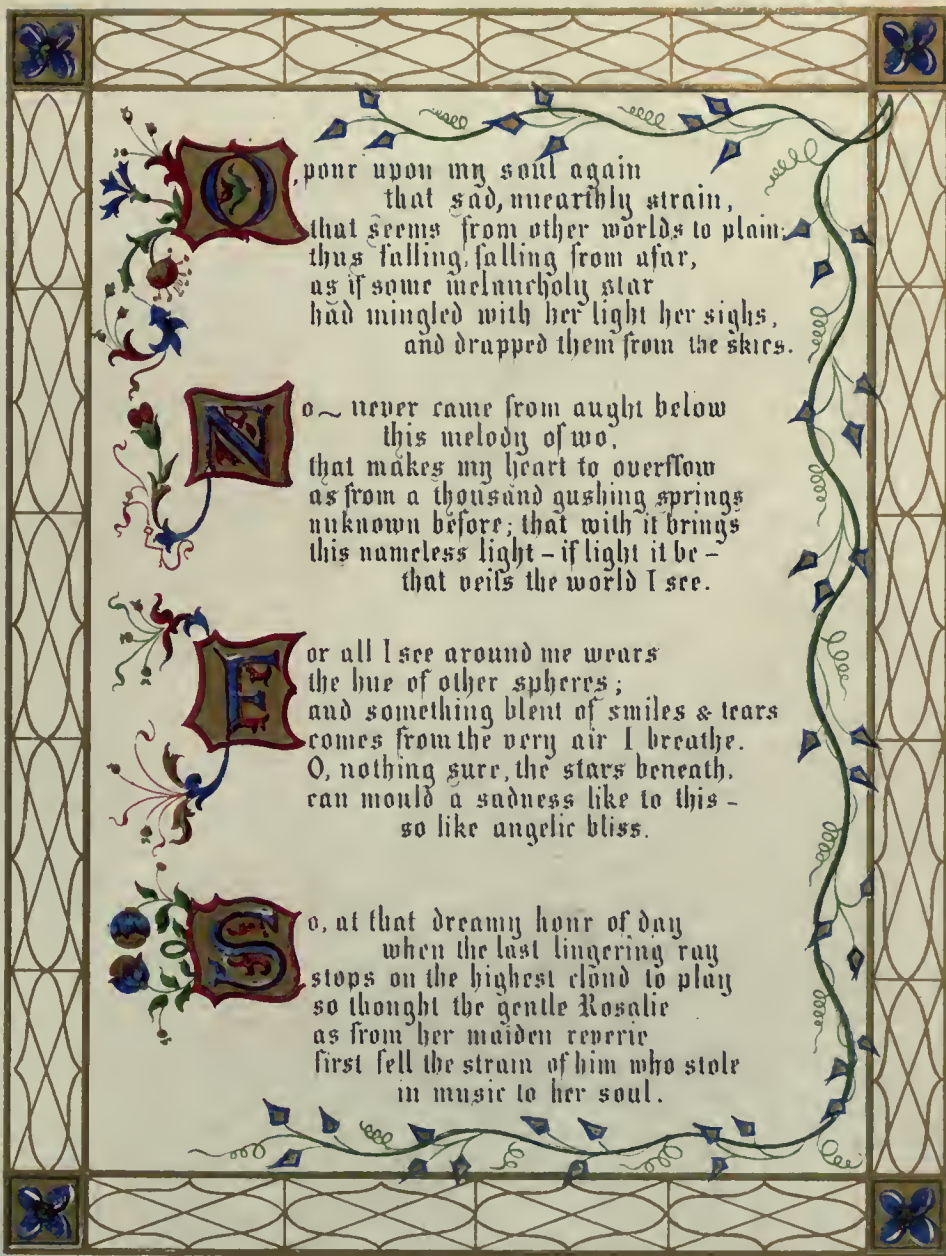

... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..

... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..

... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..

... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..
... ..

O pour upon my soul again that sad, unearthly strain, that seems from other worlds to plain:
 thus falling, falling from afar, as if some melancholy star had mingled with her light her sighs, and drapped them from the skies.

No ~ never came from aught below this melody of wo, that makes my heart to overflow as from a thousand gushing springs unknown before; that with it brings this nameless light - if light it be - that veils the world I see.

For all I see around me wears the hue of other spheres; and something blent of smiles & tears comes from the very air I breathe.
 O, nothing sure, the stars beneath, can mould a sadness like to this - so like angelic bliss.

So, at that dreamy hour of day when the last lingering ray stops on the highest cloud to play so thought the gentle Rosalie as from her maiden reverie first fell the strain of him who stole in music to her soul.

Calm twilight,

by

Mark Benjamin.

Calm twilight! in thy mild and silent time, When summer flowers their perfume shed around And nought save the deep, solitary sound Of some far bell, is heard, with solemn chime Tolling for vespers, or the evening bird Pouring sweet music o'er the woodland glade,
As if to viewless sprites and fairies played,
Who join in dances when the strain is heard:
Then thoughts of those beloved and dearest come Like sweetest hue upon the shadow'd wave
And joys which blossom'd in the bowers of home
The dews of memory with freshness lave
O! that my last daybeam of life would shine, Serenely beautiful, calm hour, as thine.

Handwritten text at the top of the page, possibly a title or date, which is mostly illegible due to fading.

Bestellad.

Handwritten text at the bottom of the page, possibly a signature or name, which is mostly illegible due to fading.

Twilight

By Mark Twain

Published by G. B. Putnam's Sons

THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE
THE PARTIALITY OF THE WORLD AND THE

Ballad.

Emma C Embury

A decorative horizontal border featuring a central green vine with several leaves. Interspersed along the vine are various flowers: a large pink rose on the left, a smaller pink rose on the right, and several small black flowers in the center.

She maiden sat at her busy wheel, her heart was light and free, and ever in cheerful song broke forth her bosoms harmless glee.
her song was in mockery of Love, and oft I heard her say,
"the gathered rose and the stolen heart can charm but for a day."

I looked on the maiden's rosy cheek, and her lip so full and bright, and I sighed to think that the traitor Love, should conquer a heart so light:
but she thought not of future days of wo, while she carolled in tones so gay;
"the gathered rose and the stolen heart
can charm but for a day."

After reading and of her long and the great and the great
and the great and the great
the great and the great
the great and the great
the great and the great

Looking at the mountains and the
and the great and the great
and the great and the great
and the great and the great
and the great and the great
and the great and the great

THE GREAT

THE GREAT

A near pass'd on, and again I stood by the humble cottage door ;
the maid sat at her busy wheel , but her look was blithe no more ;
the big tear stood in her downcast eye , and with sighs I heard her say ,
"the gathered rose and the stolen heart
can charm but for a day."

Well I knew what had dimmed her eye , and made her cheek so pale ;
the maid had forgotten her early song , while she listened to Loves soft tale .
she had tasted the sweets of his poison'd cup , it had wasted her life away :
and the stolen heart , like the gather'd rose had charm'd but for a day .

Farewell to Italy, by

Deg! fossi tu men bella, o almen più forte - Filicaja

Would that thou wert more strong, at least, less fair land of the orange grove and myrtle bower! to hail whose strand, to breathe whose genial air is bliss to all who feel of bliss the power; to look upon whose mountains in the hour when thy sun sinks in glory, and a veil of purple flows around them, would restore the sense of beauty when all else might fail,

O Italy! my country, faretheewell!

for art thou not my country, at whose breast were nurtured those whose thoughts within me dwell the fathers of my mind? whose fame impress'd e'en on my infant fancy, bade it rest with patriot fondness on thy hills and streams, e'er yet thou didst receive me as a guest, lovelier than I had seen thee in my dreams!

Handwritten title in a decorative font, possibly a name or a specific reference.

First paragraph of handwritten text, appearing to be a list or a series of entries.

Second paragraph of handwritten text, continuing the list or entries.

Summary of July

The month of July was a month of great activity and interest. The weather was generally warm and sunny, with a few showers. The crops were doing well, and the harvest was expected to be a good one. The school term was in full swing, and the children were making good progress. The church was very busy, and the services were well attended. The month closed with a few days of vacation, and the children were very happy to see their parents.

Admond Orr Griffin of Wyoming Pennsylvania

When faretheewell my country, loved & lost too early lost, alas! when once so dear ; I turn in sorrow from thy glorious coast, and urge the feet forbid to linger here .
for off I seem to hear the Atlantic roar—it washes not thy feet that envious sea , but waits with outstretched arms to waft me oer to other lands , far, far, alas, from thee .

When faretheewell once more, I love thee not as other things inanimate . Thou art the cherished mistress of my youth ; forgot thou never canst be while I have a heart .
Vaunched on those waters wild with storm & wind, I know not, ask not, what may be my lot ;
for torn from thee, no fear can touch my mind, brooding in gloom on that one bitter thought .

Extract from Marco Bozzaris.
by
Fitz-Greene Halleck.

Come to the bridal chamber, Death!
Come to the mothers, when she feels
For the first time, her firstborns breath
Come when the blessed seals
That close the pestilence are broke,
And crowded cities wail its stroke,
Come in consumption's ghastly form,
The earthquake's shock, the ocean storm,
Come when the heart beats high & warm,
With banquet song and dance and wine,
And thou art terrible — the tear,
The groan, the knell, the pall, the bier,
And all we know, or dream, or fear
Of agony are thine.
But to the hero, when his sword
Has won the battle for the free,
Thy voice sounds like a prophet's word,
And in its hollow tones are heard
The thanks of millions yet to be.

New England

Whittier.

Land of the forest and the rock—
Of dark blue lake and mighty river—
Of mountains reared a loft to mock The storm's career, the lightnings shock—
My own green land forever!
Land of the beautiful and brave—
The freeman's home—the martyr's grave—
The nursery of giant men, Whose deeds have linked with every glen,
And every hill and every stream,
The romance of some warrior dream.

Never may a son of thine, Where'er his wandering steps incline, Forget the sky which bent above His childhood like a dream of love,
The stream beneath the greenhill flowing,
The broad-armed trees above it growing,
The clear breeze through the foliage blowing,
Or hear unmoved the tanal of scorn Breathed o'er the brave New England born, Or mark the strangers iaguer hand Disturb the ashes of thy dead,
The buried glory of a land Whose soil with noble blood is red And sanctified in every part, — Nor feel resentment, like a brand, Unsheathing from his fiery heart!

Greener hills may catch the sun Beneath the glorious heaven of France, And streams rejoicing as thy run Like life beneath the daybeams glance,
May wander where the orange bough With golden fruit is bending low And there may bend a brighter sky O'er green and classic Italy —

[The text in this image is extremely faint and illegible. It appears to be a poem or a short story, possibly a children's tale, given the decorative border. The text is arranged in approximately 15 lines within a central rectangular frame.]

1. The first thing I saw of the country was a vast plain
of yellow earth, as far as the eye
could reach. The ground was so hard and smooth, that I could not see any marks of hills or valleys. The air was so clear,
that I could see the tops of the mountains in the distance.
The first night I spent in a tent, and the next day
I set out on my journey.
The first day I went towards the west, and the second day I went towards the east. The ground was so hard, that I could not see any marks
of hills or valleys. The air was so clear, that I could see the tops of the mountains in the distance.

2. The first thing I saw of the country was a vast plain
of yellow earth, as far as the eye
could reach. The ground was so hard and smooth, that I could not see any marks of hills or valleys. The air was so clear,
that I could see the tops of the mountains in the distance.
The first night I spent
in a tent, and the next day
I set out on my journey.
The first day I went towards the west, and the second day I went towards the east. The ground was so hard, that I could not see any marks
of hills or valleys. The air was so clear, that I could see the tops of the
mountains in the distance.

And pillar'd fane and ancient grave Bear record of another time,
And o'er shaft and architrave
The green luxuriant ivy climb,
And far toward the rising sun
The palm may shake its leaves on high, Where flowers are opening one by one,
Like stars upon the twilight sky;
And breezes soft as sighs of love
Above the broad banana strag
And through the Brahmins sacred grove
A thousand bright-hued pinions play!
Yet unto thee, New England, still Thy wandering sons shall stretch their arms And thy rude chart of rock and hill Seem dearer than the land of palms
The massy oak and mountain pines More welcome than the banyan shade
And every free, blue stream of thine Seem richer than the golden bed Of oriental waves, which glow And sparkle with the wealthy below.

Reverie at Glenmary

R. P. Willis

I have enough, O God! My heart tonight Runs over with its fulness of content,
And as I look out on the fragrant stars,
And from the beauty of the night take in My priceless portion — yet myself no more Than in the universe a grain of sand —
I feel his glory who could make a world, Yet in the lost depths of the wilderness Leave not a flower unfinished!

My dear friend

As I have just received your letter of the 10th I am glad to hear that you are well and hope you will continue to be so I am sure you will find it very interesting to hear from me and I hope you will find it so too

My dear friend

I am glad to hear that you are well and hope you will continue to be so I am sure you will find it very interesting to hear from me and I hope you will find it so too

Rich though poor!
My low roofed cottage is this hour a heaven.
Music is in it — and the song she sings,
That sweet-voiced wife of mine, arrests the ear
Of my young child awake upon her knee,
And, with his calm eyes on his master's face,
My noble hound lies couchant — and all here —
All in this little home, yet boundless heaven — Are in such love as I have power to give Blessed to overflowing.

Thou, who lookest
Upon my brimming heart this tranquil eve, Knowest its fulness, as thou dost the dew Sent to the hidden violet by Thee,
And as that flower from its unseen abode Sends its sweet breath up, duly, to the sky, Changing its gift to incense, so, oh God,
May the sweet drops that to my humble cup Find their far way from heaven, send up to Thee Fragrance at thy throne welcome!

Night.

James G. Percival.

Am I not all alone? The world is still In passionless slumber— not a tree but feels The far-pervading hush, and softer steals
The misty river by— yon broad bare hill Looks coldly up to heaven, and all the stars Seem eyes deep fix'd in silence, as if bound By some unearthly spell— no other sound
But the owls unfrequent moan— their airy cars
The winds have stationed on the mountain peaks.
Am I not all alone? A spirit speaks From the abyss of night, "Not all alone—Nature is round thee with her banded powers,
And ancient genius haunts thee in these hours—Mind and its kingdom now are all thy own

James G. Stewart

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 10th inst. in relation to the matter mentioned therein. I have the pleasure to inform you that the same has been forwarded to the proper authorities for their consideration. I am, Sir, very respectfully, Your obedient servant,
James G. Stewart

The Song of the Alp.

by
J. Bayard Taylor

I sit aloft on my thunder throne,
And my voice of dread the nations own
As I speak in storms below!
The valleys quake with a breathless fear,
When I hurl in wrath my icy spear
And shake my locks of snow!
Aloft, in the bright empyrean air,
I lift my forehead proud and bare,
And the lengthened folds of my forest-robe Sweep down to the low and conquered globe, Till their borders touch the dark green wave
In whose soundless depths my feet I lave.
The winds, unprisoned, around me blow,
And terrible tempests whirl the snow, Rocks from their caverned beds are torn,
The blasted forest to heaven is borne,
And the thunder-revel o'er-sounds the woe
That cries from the desolate vales below!
I part the clouds with my lifted crown, Till the sun-ray slants on the glaciers down,
And trembling men, in the valleys pale,
Rejoice at the gleam of my icy mail!

I wear a crown of the sunbeam's gold,
 With glacier-gems on my forehead old—
 A monarch crowned by God!
 And bounded by heaven's eternal walls
 In the mighty realm where my shadow falls,
 By the feet of centuries trod!
 I know of a nobler and grander lore Than Time records on his crumbling pages,
 And the soul of my solitude teaches more Than the gather'd deeds of perished ages!
 For I have ruled since Time began,
 And wear no fetter made by man.
 I shout aloud to the chainless skies:
 The stream through its falling foam replies,
 And my voice, like the sound of the surging sea,
 To the nations thunders: "I am free!"
 From Uris peak my summons fell,
 And an echo leaped from the heart of Tell,
 The student-boy on the Gmunden-plain Heard my solemn voice, but he sought in vain, I called from the crags of the Passir-Glen,
 When the despot stood in my realm again.

Faint, illegible text within the decorative frame, possibly a list or a series of lines.

And Hofer sprang at the proud command And roused the men of the Tyrol land!
 I struggle up to the dim blue heaven,
 From the world, far down in whose breast are driven
     The props of my pillared throne,
 And the rosy fires of morning glow
 Like a glorious thought on my brow of snow While the vales are dark and lone!
 The finger of God on my brow is pressed...
 His spirit beats in my giant breast,
 And I breathe, as the endless ages roll,
 His silent words to the eager soul!
 I prompt the thoughts of the mighty mind
 Who leaves his century far behind,
 And speaks from the Future's sun-lit snow
 To the Present, that sleeps in its gloom below!
 I stand unchanged, in creation's youth—
 A glorious type of Eternal Truth, That, free and pure, from its native skies Shines through Oppression's veil of lies,
 And lights the world's long-fettered sod With thoughts of Freedom and of God!

To a Waterfowl.

Bryant.

Whither, midst falling dew, While glow the heavens with the last steps of day, Far, through their rosy depths, dost thou pursue Thy solitary way!

Tainly the fowler's eye Might mark thy distant flight to do thee wrong, As, darkly painted on the crimson sky,
Thy figure floats along.

Seek'st thou the plashy brink Of weedy lake, or marge of river wide, Or where the rocking billows rise and sink
On the chafed ocean side?

There is a garden in the heart of every man's soul, and the flowers that grow there are the flowers of his life.

It is not the flowers that we see that are the flowers of our life, but the flowers that we are, that are the flowers of our life.

It is not the flowers that we have that are the flowers
of our life, but the flowers that we give, that are the flowers of our life.

It is not the flowers that we keep that are the flowers
of our life, but the flowers that we share, that are the flowers of our life.

It is not the flowers that we buy that are the flowers
of our life, but the flowers that we grow, that are the flowers of our life.

De a Matrimonij

lib. 1. c. 1. §. 1. Bonum est matrimonium, quod
est unio personarum hominum, inter se conjugata, ad procreandum et educandum liberum.

¶ Hinc videtur, quod matrimonium non est solummodo unio personarum, sed etiam unio personarum
ad procreandum et educandum liberum.

¶ Hinc etiam videtur, quod matrimonium non
est unio personarum
ad procreandum et
educandum liberum,
sed etiam unio personarum
ad procreandum et
educandum liberum.

¶ Hinc etiam videtur,
quod matrimonium non
est unio personarum
ad procreandum et
educandum liberum,
sed etiam unio personarum
ad procreandum et
educandum liberum.

There is a power, whose care Cratches thy way along that pathless coast —
The desert and illimitable air — Thou'rt wandering, but not lost.

All day thy wings have fanned,
At that far height, the cold thin atmosphere,
Yet stoop not, weary, to the welcome land, Though the dark night is near.

And soon that toil shall end, Soon shalt thou find a summerhome & rest
And scream among thy fellows; reeds shall bend Soon o'er thy sheltered nest.

Thou'rt gone, the abyss of heaven Hath swallowed up thy form, yet on my heart Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given,
And shall not soon depart.

He, who, from zone to zone, Guides thro' the boundless sky thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread alone,
Will guide my steps aright.

Murphy f

Music

by

Fitz Greene Halleck

To a boy of four years old, on hearing him play on the harp.

Sweet boy! before thy lips can learn in speech thy wishes to make known, are thoughts that breathe and words that burn heard in thy music's tone.

Were genius tasked to prove the might,
the magic of her hidden spell, she well might name thee with delight as her own miracle.

Who that hath heard, from summer trees, the sweet wild song of summer birds, when morning to the far-off breeze whispers her bidding words.

Or listened to the bird of night, the minstrel of the starlight hours, companion of the firefly's flight, cool dews, and closed flowers;

But deemed that spirits of the air had left their native homes in heaven, and that the music warbled there to earth a while was given?

Lith of A. Beech, Ag. Phil.

Music

(Faint, illegible text follows, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page)

For with that music came the thought that life's young purity was theirs, and love, all artless and untaught, breathed in their woodland airs.

And when, sweet boy! thy baby fingers wake sounds of heaven's own harmony, how welcome is the thought that lingers upon thy lyre and thee!

It calls up visions of past days, when life was infancy and song to us, and old remembered lays, unheard, unheeded long;

Re vive in joy or grief within us, like lost friends wakened from their sleep with all their early power to win us, alike to smile or weep.

And when we gaze upon that face, blooming in innocence and truth, and mark its dimpled artlessness, its beauty and its youth;

We think of better worlds than this,
of other beings pure as thou, who breathe, on winds of Paradise, music as thine is now.

And know the only emblem meet of that pure faith the heart adores, to be a child like thee, whose feet are strangers on life's shores.

